COLLECTOR STARTS OUT ON MONDAY

55,000 BILLS ARE SENT

Orange County Has Total Of 430,569 Acres Land Assessed for This Year

THE LARGEST drive for funds ever launched in Orange county will start on Monday when County Tax Collector J. C. Lamb begins to gather the first payments on $5,910,803.34 in taxes which his office is charged with collecting. Taxes will become delinquent on December 3 and Lamb pointed out that property owners will have nearly seven weeks in which to make their payments.

Orange county has the fourth lowest tax rate among the 58 counties of the state, it was revealed today. Inside cities the figure is $1.45 per $100 and outside cities it is $1.95 per $100 of assessed valuation.

In addition to this position, the county today had moved into top place among rural counties of the state in total assessed value of non-operative property, taxed by the county. The figure is $175,819,685. This valuation is surpassed only by that in the metropolitan counties of San Francisco, Alameda and Los Angeles.

Approximately 60 per cent of the total charged to Lamb's office will be collected on the first tax installments, it is expected.

The total which is scheduled to come into the county's coffers this year is $7,242,753.57. This includes personal property taxes collected by County Assessor James Sleeper and all other income derived in the county from every source.

Lamb put 55,000 tax bills in the mails today. He explained to new owners of property that, if they do not receive bills within a few days, they may not have been mailed

EAST REGISTRATION BREAKS RECORD

G.O.P. Leaders Claim Victory In New York

Declare Large Vote Means Hoover Certain to Win All Atlantic States

BY LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Record-breaking registration throughout the pivotal north Atlantic seaboard states was hailed today by Representative John Q. Tilson, director of the eastern G. O. P. Speakers' Bureau, as a portent of "certain victory" for Herbert Hoover in every state in the section, including Governor Alfred E. Smith's own New York.

The increase in the total registration and the vastly disproportionate increase in the registration of women constitutes one of the most amazing phenomena of the presidential campaign to date, according to managers of both parties. Chairman John J. Raskob of the Democratic National committee vehemently discounts the Republican assertion that the increased registration signalizes "an uprising of the feminine voters against Governor Smith's frontal attack on prohibition."

New York city leads the country in the increased registration, with still one day more for registry before election day, November 6. In the five boroughs of the metropolitan area, the Smith stronghold, the registry books today show a total eligible voters list of 1,195,594. The full registration for the five boroughs in 1924 the previous record, was but 787,000. Thus, with the final day's registration added, the 1928 polling list will show an increase of approximately 600,000 voters over the previous record for Greater New York.

Details of Power Industry Reveals Huge Sum Paid To Publicity Bureau

BY CECIL OWEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Details of power industry propaganda in northwestern states were in the record today of the federal trade commission's investigation of the power industry after a series of hearings on activities in those states.

High lights of the evidence developed included:

1.—Disclosure that the E. Hofer & Sons News Service at Salem, Ore., is receiving $84,000 yearly from power companies for distributing anti-government ownership material to about 14,000 newspapers in 48 states.

2.—Financing by private utilities of a survey undertaken by a fact finding committee sponsored by the University of Idaho on rural electrification whose report favored private power plants.

3.—Waging of an organized campaign of opposition by Oregon utilities to defeat a proposed state amendment authorizing the state to enter the power business.

4—Surveillance of the Oregon legislature by agents of power interests in that state.

5.—Widespread distribution in Oregon and Washington schools of pamphlets written by utilities publicity men but signed by a woman employee of a bureau financed by private utilities.

6.—Quoting of an alleged address by Herbert Hoover, presidential candidate, in the Oregon campaign against public ownership projects in the northwest.

Publicity material sent to newspapers by the Oregon utility information bureau on Feb. 4, 1928, quoted Hoover as saying:

"Neither our national nor our

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—(UP)—Before a fellow member of the superior court bench, Judge Carlos S. Hardy must appear today to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for refusing to testify for a state bar committee investigating a $2500 check he received from Aimee Semple McPherson.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TALKS OVER TELEPHONE 10 MINUTES WITH KING OF SPAIN TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(INS)—President Coolidge and King Alphonso, of Spain, held a ten-minute radio-telephone conversation today.

The president was seated at a desk at the U. S. chamber of commerce and used an ordinary commercial telephone. The telephone systems of United States and Spain were bound together by radio across the Atlantic.

More than a score of instruments had been set up for the use of officials and newspaper correspondents who listened in on the greetings exchanged between Mr. Coolidge and the king. Never before had a president of United States talked to a ruling European monarch by telephone.

King Alfonso spoke in a decided "English" accent.

"Your Majesty, it gives me great pleasure to greet you in the name of the people of United States," the president said.

"I welcome this added link. no less strong because it is invisible, between Spain and the United States. I believe it to be true that when two men can talk together any serious disagreement is immeasurably lessened and that what is true of individuals is true of nations. The international telephone, therefore, which carries the warmth and friendliness of the human voice, will always correct what might be mis-interpreted in the written word.

"Whatever brings our two countries closer is of value to us and to the world. This western hemisphere, discovered by the wonderful navigators of Spain, has always owed much to your country. The language of Spain is the language of a great part of the Americas. The fine traditions of Spain are the basis of the culture of a large part of the Americas and our friendship with the great nations to the south draws us closer to the mother country. With your country and with theirs the United States stands for the promotion of world understanding and peace. I was therefore particularly pleased that Spain so promptly and generously adhered to the general pact for the renunciation of war. It was what I expected on the part of your great and peace loving nation.

"I am especially glad thus orally to greet your Majesty because I know the position of great personal responsibility you hold in directing the policies and progress of your country. I wish for your Majesty a long and happy life and for your country all the pros-

Bourbon Standard Bearer Challenges Hoover to Debate Over Issues

Governor Smith's Louisville address this evening will be broadcast over Radio Station KFI at 5 o'clock Santa Ana time.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 13.—Enroute with Gov. Smith in Kentucky— Leaving in his wake across Tennessee a series of challenges to Herbert Hoover to debate with him the issues of the campaign, Gov. Al Smith broke over into Kentucky today to make his bid for 13 more electoral votes.

Tonight he speaks in Louisville. His subject will be the tariff.

Kentucky is another border state where the fighting is keen and the outcome in doubt. Always a battleground, Kentucky presents this year probably as hot a conflict as can be found anywhere in the country.

Normally it is Democratic—but by the scantest of margins—and twice in its turbulent political history Kentucky has gone Republican in presidential elections. McKinley squeezed out a victory by 281 votes. Coolidge carried it four years ago by 24,000, although the combined Davis-LaFollette vote was greater than his. In all other years it has gone Democratic, but by small margins

This year the professional politicians call Kentucky a toss-up It is a battle-ground, it is doubtful, and, like Tennessee, the religious and prohibition issues play a big part

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—(UP)—Weather conditions turned normal in Southern California today after an outbreak Thursday night and Friday which brought rain, snow, hail and high winds.

3 FIREMEN KILLED WHEN TRUCKS CRASH

She was flying well to the [illegible] of the Azores to avoid [illegible] weather and the position [illegible] would mean she had flown approximately 1300 miles from [illegible] Madeira, which she left at about 9 a. m., Eastern standard [illegible] yesterday.

Favorable wind would bring her in earlier.

The Graf Zeppelin was receiving messages from ships. The steamer New York reported at about 6 a. m. that she was sending to the dirigible and mentioned a position which checked with that given by Ponta Del Gada.

Among the messages intercepted last night was one from the Hamburg-American liner New York to

S. A. ROOSTERS' CAR TURNS UPSIDE DOWN

An automobile accident is an accident and a football game is a football game and when high school rooters are involved the football game comes first.

This afternoon a Santa Ana youth and three girls started out to Long Beach to see the Santa Ana and Long Beach game.

Three miles west of Westminster the car was crowded off the road and turned upside down.

The occupants of the car miraculously escaped injury.

Not perturbed the students called up the State Highway garage at Seal Beach, rented a car and were on their way.

Efforts to ascertain the names of the occupants of the car proved fruitless, the automobile evidently having been a rented one and it had been gaily decorated with the Santa Ana school colors.

Snow said: "The situation boils down to this: That mutual responsibility exists between the utilities and institutions of higher learning and if agreement by these two important factors in our economic structure is reached there might be evolved a plan of cooperation of advantage to youth and that would also benefit our business."

DIRIGIBLE TO LAND IN U. S. SUNDAY NOON

"Brandt—Congratulations."

Brandt is a member of the passenger list.

Another message, relayed either by the Stuttgart or the Muenchen, and sent in German, was of congratulations to the entire crew.

Earlier last night the Chatham, Mass., radio station intercepted a message from the Graf Zeppelin which read:

"If weather continues good we expect to arrive at Lakehurst, N. J., Sunday noon."

This message said the German dirigible was proceeding at a rate of 85 miles an hour.

But that the Graf Zeppelin slowly is approaching the end of its long journey to the United States—a journey that will be in excess of 5,000 miles—was indicated by the great number of messages intercepted by the Radio Marine corporation last night.

At 3 a. m. several steamers, bound back and forth across the Atlantic, were in constant communication with the Graf Zeppelin. These were the Reliance, the Stuttgart, the Muenchen and the Berlin.

The Graf Zeppelin still has a great flight before it. The distance from Funchal in the Madeira islands where the dirigible passed over at 8:30 a. m., Eastern standard time, yesterday is 3,596 miles.

Between Funchal and Bermuda there is a stretch of 2,812 miles.

On the [illegible] of an average speed of 70 miles an hour, slightly more than the cruising range of the dirigible, it would take about 40 hours for the dirigible to be over Bermuda. Another 11 hours would be necessary before the craft arrived in New York, which would put the arriving time well into Sunday night.

However advices from Dr. Eckener indicated he would attempt to arrive in New York some time around noon Sunday and this would indicate that he would speed up the dirigible's five motors to their full capacity—around 80 miles an hour.

The message received through Chatham, Mass., indicated an [illegible]5 miles an hour speed and it would seem Dr. Eckener insists upon keeping his arrival time of noon Sunday.

Several of the passengers aboard the Graf Zeppelin are reported extremely air-sick, according to Funchal dispatches to the Daily Express in London.

GOV. SMITH TO SPEAK TONIGHT IN LOUISVILLE

after a whirlwind day in Tennessee, a day which Democratic leaders of the state described as a day of triumph. It included two unscheduled speeches and the greatest ovation and reception Governor Smith has yet encountered in his national campaign travels

This was in Nashville last night. Nashville residents said it was the biggest crowd and the biggest night the city has experienced since the Armistice celebration of ten years ago.

As a result, Governor Smith left Tennessee with assurances from state leaders who up to now have been none to confident, that he will carry the state, Senator Kenneth D. McKellar who is up for re-election, told the governor he would carry the state by "at least 25,000."

Yielding finally to the pleas of state leaders for "a real fighting speech" in Tennessee, Governor Smith in Nashville last night went after Mr. Hoover without gloves. He included also President Coolidge and Senator Charles Curtis.

He accused his Republican opponent of "evasion, ducking, dodging and confusing" the issues of the campaign—from farm relief to prohibition, from water power to immigration.

Gov. Smith concerned himself particularly with the speech which Mr. Hoover delivered at Elizabethton, Tenn., last Saturday. He regaled his audience with copious extracts from Mr. Hoover's speech and then would demand, with rich sarcasm:

"What does that mean? Now where does he stand on that?"

It was upon the water power issue that Governor Smith went after his Republican opponent hardest. Water power is a warm issue in Tennessee. Just across the border lies the great Muscle Shoals project, the development and disposition of which means much to Tennessee industry.

He declared he had searched Mr. Hoover's speech in vain for some mention of Muscle Shoals.

"To my great surprise," he said, "Mr. Hoover didn't even mention it."

and that they should be called for at his office in the hall of records. Anyone who has bought property and whose deed was recorded after March 1 will not receive a bill in the mail because the tax list is made up from data collected prior to that date, Lamb said.

He pointed out today that while the county tax rate has dropped 10 cents, tax rates in local districts have remained the same as before in many cases or have risen. In Santa Ana there is a total drop in the rate amounting to five cents. The county rate went down 10 cents, the cemetery rate dropped one cent and the city rate is one cent lower. This gives a total drop of 12 cents but the school tax rate in the city was raised seven cents, giving a final drop of five cents. The rate this year is $5.35 per $100 as against $5.40 per $100 as assessed valuation last year. The county, with a total of 430,569 acres of land assessed this year, showed the following valuations:

Improvements on real estate, $39,291,610.

Personal property, $21,458,920.

Money and solvent credits, $72,-120.

Total county indebtedness, $992,-000.

Los Angeles county held the distinction of having the lowest tax rate for county purposes of any county in the state, Riley's report said.

This was $1.168 on property inside of cities, and $1.368 on property outside.

The Los Angeles rate was largely due to its tremendous property valuation, according to the controller. The county's total wealth was in excess of three and a half billion dollars.

Santa Cruz county stood at the top of the list for the highest individual county rate, of $3.40 inside of cities, and $4.05 outside. This county, it was pointed out, has a county debt of only $650,-284.57, and a total property valuation of $27,977,033.

Eight times a billionaire is California's present financial rating—the exact total of all property in the state, including real estate, improvements, personal property, money and solvent credits, being $8,123,208,593.

While California now stands fourth in assessed valuation of her real estate and improvements—exceeded by New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania—the Golden State is rapidly overtaking Pennsylvania, and expects to rank third in the list before many years.

TO REPRESENT ORANGE COUNTY IN KNX TRYOUT

Robert Bradford, baritone, and Nada Smith Hill, soprano, will represent th eOrange county division in the next audition contest of the Atwater-Kent foundation, in competition for the large monetary and tuition prizes offered by the foundation, it was determined last night as a consequence of the first audition, held in Santa Ana Ebell clubhouse and presented by a group oftalented young artists from all sections of Orange county.

The clubhouse auditorium was filled to capacity with interested auditers, all of whom were to make their decision without visible proof of the identity of each individual artist. The young people made no personal appearance on the flower-decked stage, but were completely screen from the audience while presenting their songs.

Audience Acts As Judge

Opinion of the audience, expressed in applause, had a 60 per cent voting power, with the remaining 40 per cent power invested in the three judges, Anna Priscilla Richer, Laguna Beach composer and musician; U. Holmes Bishop, Orange county county tenor, and Ellis Rhodes, Los Angeles and Anaheim vocal teacher and soloist.

Well-known pianists including Ione Tunison Peek, Earl Fraser, Miss Ruth Armstrong, Miss Allien Lair and Miss DeLong, aided in the program by serving the young artists as accompanists. Contestants were Miss Hazel Smith, Miss Lorene Croddy, Miss Matney, Nada Smith Hill, Mis Bernice Hawley, Miss Milburn, Hayden Bohlander, Robert White, Robert Bradford and Hugh Runneys, representing Orange, Tustin, Anaheim, Laguna Beach, Balboa, Santa Ana and other communities.

Of this group, the audience expressed first choice of Robert Bradford with a score of 113, and Nada Smith Hill, soprano, 56. Second choice fell to Robert White, 28, and Miss Matney, 19.

The three judges cast their votes for Hugh Runnels and Hazel Smith, first; Robert Bradford and Nada Smith Hill, second. In equalizing the two voting powers, however, the race was led by Bradford and Miss Hill, thus entitling them to the honor of representing Orange county at the second audition, to be presented over Radio KNX, Hollywood, on the night of October 31.

Other contestants from all points of the Southland will sing over KNX that night and the two winners next will appear in San Francisco. That, too, will be an elimination contest, whose winners will sing in one of the five district contests to be held late in November. One young man and one young woman will be pronounced victors in each of these districts, thus making 10 finalists to sing in New York City for the prizes.

Each one entering the finals will receive a prize. The first two will receive a gold decorations, $5000 in cash and two years' free tuition in a leading conservatory. The man and girl taking second places will receive $2000 and one year's tuition each; third places will yield $1000 and one year's tuition; fourth place awards will be $500 cash for each, and fifth, $250 cash.

Final judgment will be made by a jury of national musical leaders and no radio vote will enter into it.

Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, well-known throughout Orange county for her work with young people as leader in Parent-Teacher association activities, was chairman of the local committee on arrangements. Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, prominent soloist, was survey chairman, and Madame Manuela V. Budrow, soloist and teacher, was audition chairman.

WILDCAT WELL FOR TALBERT DISTRICT

TALBERT, Oct. 13.—A new 110-foot oil derrick has gone up on the Willows Land and Water company's property four miles directly south of Talbert, just off Talbert road.

Three boilers are on the ground, ready for installation and the sump holes are being prepared.

The wildcat project is being carried on about two miles from any derrick yet put up, the nearest being the one now in the Costa Mesa section.

There is a water well on the Willows Land and Water company's holdings that cannot be used for irrigation on account of the gas which comes from the well, it is reported.

Mellow, nut-brown, hand-rubbed finish distinguishes this suite—also exquisite high-lighting and hand-shading. Modern touches:—Hand-fitted, dust-proof mahogany drawers; plush-lined tray for silverware in center drawer of sideboard.

Smartly New in Style

FURNITURE can't talk, but its prices often do — and here's an instance! This Montfort Suite is not just an ordinary group, but a genuine Berkey and Gay creation offered at a figure almost disproportionately low. This is style-quality-plus. Old World charm stands out in the staunch and hardy English lines. Great craftsmanship speaks in the finely carved work of onlays and panel borders — in the rugged legs, in the exquisitely turned pedestals and bold stretchers. Real furniture distinction is here in the lovely proportions, the glorious flame and mottle-figured woods.

No one can pass charm and beauty. No one should pass by such a price!

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

One mother said to me, "All the fineness in our character is developed by sacrifice, sorrow, and service to others. If children are to grow into the sort of men and women the world needs, they must be developed through just such methods."

Once we had a garden. The soil was clay and shale. Moreover, the garden lay on a hillside where moisture refused to linger. Dry, and hot and barren, it was, and our neighbors laughed when we put it in.

We did not expect much the first year, but we wanted a garden, and it had to be started some time, so we dug in. To our amazement and the neighbors', the seeds not only sprouted, but flourished. The radish bed was a robust green, the peas were ready for vining in no time, the wax beans had leaves almost as large as saucers by the first of June, the tomato plants grew into tall young trees before our amazed eyes. We were ambitious and had put in potatoes. Up they rose like Aladdin's genii.

It was as pretty a garden as I ever have seen, and proud we were of it. I can see it still, its patches of vari-toned green swaying and rippling on that windy hill.

How we watched for the first beans and the first pea-pods; how we scanned the tomato vines daily for the first golden-starred blossom! Breathlessly we pulled up the flourishing radish tops, hoping to see the red stringy roots filled out a little more toward a toothsome harvest.

But never a bean came, nor a pea, nor a tomato, nor a radish, nor a beet, a potato, nor carrot!

There wasn't a thing that came out of our garden on the barren, stony hill.

I don't say that a child's life should be all coddling and cushions and comfort. A little sacrifice, certainly, and service, absolutely. But as for the sorrow—a little of it goes a great way. I should try to keep sorrow out of his experience.

ATTENDANCE AT CAMP OSCEOLA 504 THIS YEAR

The executive committee of the Orange County Y.M.C.A. met yesterday to hear final reports concerning the summer camp of the last season and to plan for the winter's activities.

Earl E. Campbell, chairman of the County Y, was in charge of the meeting and A. J. Raitt, of Fullerton, acting county secretary, presented the reports.

His report on the camp showed that Osceola was open from June 15 to September 3 and that a total of 504 boys, girls and leaders attended camp. That number does not include the many visitors in camp. There were 19,241 meals served in the camp dining room during the summer.

New buildings and equipment added to the camp outfit this season had a total value of nearly $700. Cash receipts amounted to $5,824.51, which lacked about $90 of covering the entire cost of operating the camp.

Of especial interest was the report of 26 boys, who, while in camp, decided to begin the Christian life.

Camp Osceola is located on the south fork of the Santa Ana river, near Seven Oaks, and has been conducted for five years by the Orange County Y.M.C.A. Permanent buildings and other improvements on the land now have a total value of nearly $10,000 and are all paid for. The Y.M.C.A. camp for many years, according to Secretary Raitt, has paid its own way. It is not subsidized in any of the budgets and the small deficits that have occurred usually have been cared for by interested friends. Careful management and unselfish service on the part of secretaries and committeemen have made this record possible.

In addition to the camp reports and plans for next year, action was taken to place the Y work in Garden Grove and Westminster under the jurisdiction of the Anaheim association, of which Conrad Jongewaard is secretary. This work has been handled by the Santa Ana Y.M.C.A., but because of the heavy increase in its work, due to the free membership for boys, it has been found necessary to make this change so as to give the Garden Grove district closer supervision.

LEGISLATIVE BODY TO MAKE WATER INVESTIGATION HERE

Orange county will be host, next Friday, to the California legislative committee, which is investigating water conditions throughout the state, it was learned today.

The Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce will arrange a dinner for the group and others who will accompany them on their tour. Paul Bailey, flood control engineer for Orange county, has been named chairman of a committee representing the board of supervisors, citizens' advisory committee on flood control and the chamber of commerce, which will make arrangements for receiving the delegation and presenting to them the water situation here.

It is expected that William Schumacher, chairman of the board of supervisors, will name four others to assist Bailey.

State Engineer Edward Hyatt will accompany the party here, it was announced. The group will arrive in Los Angeles next Thursday, after which it will journey to San Bernardino and Riverside counties. It will be in Orange county on Friday and in San Diego county on Saturday. It is expected that an Orange county group will accompany the party when it tours Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The group was appointed by the last legislature to investigate water conditions in the state and possibly make recommendations to the legislature.

DISCUSSION ON COLLECTION OF ACCOUNTS FEATURE OF CREDIT ASSOCIATION'S MORNING MEET

Various features of handling and collecting accounts were discussed at the forenoon sesion of the regional conference of the California Association of Retail Credit Bureaus, today, at St. Ann's Inn.

The morning conference was under direction of the adjustment department managers and Harry Westover, attorney for the Santa Ana Business Men's association, presided.

The meeting opened at 9:30, with an address by James W. Scott, of Burbank, concerning the use of an investigator in an adjustment department, and discussions following brought out many thoughts on this particular subject.

Discussing collection charges on forwarded accounts, C. W. Remele, of El Centro, revealed that the bureaus are not uniform in their rates for service rendered an association or an individual.

H. C. Naylor, of Upland, discussed "the application of money collected when there is more than one account and the debtor does not designate to whom the money is to be paid."

The forenoon session concluded with presentation of papers by Carl Hogland, Alhambra, and W. P. Potter, of Glendale, on the "Costs of Operating an Adjustment Department."

Discussion of merchants' association activities was scheduled for the afternoon, with one of the principal addresses to be by C. O. Stiles, of Pueblo, Colo. His subject was to be "Business Methods in Association Operation."

An address by J. H. Van De Water of Los Angeles, president of the association, on "A Community Credit Policy," vocal selections by the police quartet of Los Angeles, and whistling numbers by H. N. Schneeweis, of Anaheim, will feature the program at the dinner at 6:30 p. m.

Attention of Orange County Shrine club members has been called to a change in plans for the Al Malaikah ceremonial scheduled for Monday night. Early plans were for the ceremonial to be held in the rose bowl at Pasadena, but because of the cold weather, the scene will be changed to the Shrine auditorium annex, Los Angeles, where special honors will be accorded Frank C. Jones, illustrious imperial potentate, who with his party, will arrive from the east tomorrow.

CAR FOUND 45 MINUTES AFTER IT WAS STOLEN

Forty-five minutes after Gladys Minnix, Irvine, reported to the sheriff's office and the Santa Ana police department that her automobile had been stolen from near Fourth and Spurgeon streets, yesterday, the car was recovered and the alleged thief arrested, according to F. G. Yoder, arresting officer.

Yoder was patrolling the Lincoln boulevard, near Anaheim, when he saw the car approaching. Noticing that it had been in a wreck, he stopped the machine and arrested J. L. Colburn, 30, 134 South Cypress street, Orange.

Colubrn was brought to the county jail, where a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and og grand theft were lodged against him.

The defendant was arraigned on the grand theft charge this morning before Justice Kenneth Morrison. Bail was set at $2500 and the preliminary examination will be held on October 18, at 9 a. m.

140 YEARS OF THE PRESIDENTIAL PARADE!

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this chapter of "The Presidential Parade," Rodney Dutcher tells of the events leading to Grant's much discussed administration. It is the seventeenth of the series reviewing presidential politics since Washington's days.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

(Copyright, 1928, NEA Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The political wrangling and the battle over President Andrew Johnson after the Civil war left the people so disgusted with party politicians that in 1868 the Republicans nominated a Democrat and the Democrats nearly named a Republican.

General Ulysses S. Grant was the great popular hero. But he had never voted the Republican ticket, not even for Lincoln in 1864, and had sided with the pro-slavery Democratic ticket in 1860.

Republican leaders, anxious lest the next president give the vanquished south enough political liberty to regain control, wanted a stronger party man. But popular clamor was unmistakable and they proceeded to take Grant away from his old party. Grant turned down the Democrats and went Republican because the latter party had sympathized with him when Johnson had tried first to get him out of the country and then to supersede him.

Ohio's Entries

President Johnson, elected on a Republican ticket with Lincoln, also sought the Democratic honors. Johnson had tried to carry out the Lincoln reconstruction policies, but wasn't big enough for the job in the face of a radical congress which feared that the solid south would renew its pre-war domination of national politics if not held down.

The Republicans convened first at Chicago and nominated Grant unanimously. A large portrait of Grant was unveiled, inscribed

U. S. GRANT

"MATCH HIM!" and a white dove let loose to flap about the hall. A trio of chaplains sang a hastily-composed doggerel song, "We'll Fight It Out on the Old Union Line," which became a campaign slogan with Grant's famous "Let Us Have Peace." Speaker Schuyler Colfax of Indiana was named for vice president and the platform coupled denunciation of Johnson's "treachery and corruption" with a demand for equal rights for negro voters.

The Democrats met at Tammany hall on July 4, wondering how to "match him." Their great old leader, Stephen A. Douglas, might have led them to victory had he not died during the war, famous for his dictum: "There can be no neutrals in this war—only patriots and traitors."

"Gentleman George" Pendleton of Ohio led the field, with the field determined to beat him. Three hundred Pendleton rooters marched into the hall bearing greenback emblems, but they were up against the same Tammany that was to pack Madison Square Garden against McAdoo in 1924. Southern delegates were for Johnson and the soldiers for General Winfield S. Hancock. Johnson had a distinct chance, but the strongest undercurrent was for Chase.

Seymour Stampede

The controlling politicians re-adopted the two-thirds rule and sank Pendleton, who withdrew on the 19th ballot, leaving Hancock and Hendricks of Indiana high men. New York and Pennsylvania bosses then played these two against each other, allowing neither to win. Governor Horatio Seymour of New York left the chair to work on the floor for Chase. But "Slippery Sam" Tilden, who had yet to break up Tammany's vile Tweed ring, had been busy crucifying Chase and gets sole credit for blocking him.

Seymour suddenly received votes on the 22nd ballot and promptly refused to be a candidate. But a Seymour stampede followed as if by rehearsal. General Frank P. Blair of Missouri landed in second place. Johnson had received 65 votes on the first ballot, but never gained.

The platform charged the G.O.P. with submitting the south to military despotism and negro supremacy, abolishing the bill of rights, with frauds, monopolies and "corruption and extravagance exceeding anything known in history."

Then it demanded payment of war bonds in "lawful currency," when possible. This meant paying a large section of war bonds in greenbacks, then worth something like 50 cents to the dollar because of the enormous war-time issues of paper money.

The plank enraged the eastern bondholding class and the Republicans called it repudiation, but it appealed to the masses and the party raised the slogan, "The same currency for bondholder and plowholder." This was the beginning of the use of money as a political issue which was to culminate in 1896 and solidified the support of northern business and industry which the Republican party had captured with its high tariff and anti-slavery planks in 1860.

Carpet-Baggers

Grant's election was never in doubt, although the Democrats polled 47½ per cent of the vote. The Republican carpet baggers (so called because they were hungry politicians said to have traveled south to gain political control with negro support after packing all their belongings in a satchel), held the south by the aid of the military. Only the rising Ku Klux Klan made Georgia and Louisiana Democratic. With the solid south Seymour would have won for the Democrats, and this fact spurred the Republican congress to new measures to insure votes for the ex-slaves.

Frauds were charged in Louisiana and a congressional investigating committee later charged that:

"Over 2000 persons were killed, wounded and injured there within a few weeks of the election; half the state was overrun by violence, midnight raids, secret murders open riots, which kept the people in constant terror until the Republicans surrendered all claims." In Caddo parish "the Ku Klux killed and wounded over 200 Republicans, hunting and chasing them two days and nights through fields and swamps,' after which "the masses of negroes were captured by the Ku Klux, marked with badges of red flannel, and led to the polls and compelled to vote the Democratic ticket."

Ballot-Stuffing

But Grant carried the Carolinas, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida, with Texas and Mississippi not voting, for a national majority of 300,000.

He lost New York by exactly 10,000 votes, the returns said, and this queer result was laid to the ballot stuffing of the Tweed Ring, done to protect large bets made by Tammany's faithful. The popular and electoral vote:

BROADCASTERS ORDERED OFF AIR FOR SOS'S

If your radio set failed to function during a period of a couple of hours last night, fans, don't become excited. It was no fault of the set, as many apparently thought to judge from the hundreds of complaints received by dealers throughout the city.

The Trojanstar, British steamer, was afire off the northern California coast last night and radiocast an appeal for aid. Immediately upon reception of the first SOS call, about 7 o'clock, the federal radio commission ordered all broadcast stations in Los Angeles and along the northern coast off the air so as to remove all interference and facilitate handling of SOS reports from the steamer.

Radio fans, unaware of the grim drama being enacted at sea, were deeply mystified when their sets suddenly ceased functioning and most of them were of the belief that their radios suddenly had developed trouble. Hundreds put in calls last night and today to their dealers, asking for immediate repair of their sets, only to have their minds put at ease with the explanation of the pause in reception.

BIBLICAL DRAMA TO BE BROADCAST

Jonah will make an appearance in the Biblical drama, "At Ninevah's Gates," which is to be broadcast through stations of the NBC system from 4:30 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"At Ninevah's Gates" is a radio dramatization from the pen of William Ford Manley. It is based upon the Old Testament story of the warning which the Lord commanded Jonah to preach to the people of Ninevah.

Black Crows To Go On Air Again Tomorrow Night

The "Two Black Crows" are going to take wing again.

That is, they are going back on the air and tomorrow night they'll broadcast another bunch of laughs to their huge radio following throughout the United States.

KPLA and KMTR, in Los Angeles, will rebroadcast the program, which will go out over the Columbia chain from New York City and the "Two Black Crows," Warren and Mack, will go on the air at 6 p. m., Pacific coast time. Their program will be held under the auspices of the Majestic Radio company and it also will feature a program by the Majestic orchestra.

Modern Society Demands Style

CLOTHING MANUFACTURERS SPENDING MILLIONS

DEALER EVERYWHERE MEETING PUBLIC DEMAND

Appearance is now making such a vast difference in the lives of all modern Americans that people are beginning to demand more and more that the apparel they buy conforms in every way with the styles that will enable them to compete in the battle of life on an equal footing with their friends. Young men and young women in business find that their employers and associates demand that they be dressed neatly and in a style that will enhance the value of the particular position that they hold.

Manufacturers everywhere are devoting all of their energies and capital to the end that they meet this demand. They are spending Millions in research work to obtain woolens for men's clothing and silks for women's wear that will give the utmost in wear and service. And they are employing all of the best designers that they can obtain to fashion styles that will meet the ever increasing public demand.

The better clothing and ready to wear merchants are meeting the conditions of modern merchandise methods by doing their utmost to equip themselves with the necessary merchandise and thereby help their customers meet the conditions with which they are faced. Frequently the meeting of these conditions require the use of credit and for that reason Nash Outfitting Co., Orange County's largest Credit Clothing Organization, Located at 109 East Fourth Street, Santa Ana, is prepared to meet this want and extend to every person in this county who is permanently located, all the credit they need to enable them to be as well dressed as they wish and arrange for them terms of payment to suit their convenience. Radio Preview Conducted For Jazz Symphonie

What is said to be the first preview of a musical score for a sound picture ever to be presented before the microphone in a broadcast studio was given last week over KFI when Nacio Herb Brown, composer of the "Doll Dance" and other popular numbers, "previewed" his musical score for his latest sound picture in order that the producers might determine whether or not the score was suitable for the picture.

With the addition of a number of prominent Los Angeles musicians to Arthur Pryor's Packard Symphony orchestra, Brown presented his "Jazz Symphonie" with all the effect of a Paul Whiteman arrangement. If this practice becomes popular, the broadcast studio will soon become as much in demand among the motion picture producers as the neighborhood theater for studio previews.

TOASTMASTERS WILL SPEAK ON BALLOT ISSUES

Problems of the voter will be discussed at the meeting of the Toastmasters' club next Wednesday night at the Y.M.C.A., according to the program committee's schedule of speeches, announced today.

Don S. Lemon, secretary of the club, will be toastmaster. The reapportionment referendum will be discussed by William Iverson. Walter Spicer is scheduled to talk about the bonds for the Olympics of 1932. W. J. Ferris will present the provisions of the state park bonds act.

Robinson will speak of two financial propositions, No. 14, which deals with extending the existence of certain corporations, and No. 16, as to the liability of stockholders.

No. 11 and No. 15, dealing with court procedure and jury service, will be treated by C. W. Rowland and R. R. Caldwell will discuss No. 18, as to absent voters, and No. 20, dealing with jury waivers.

Other propositions will be discussed at the meeting on October 24, so that the members of the club will have an opportunity to hear about each one of the 30 proposals on the November ballot in ample time to form an intelligent opinion before the election.

Some other political speeches are in prospect in addition to those announced.

HUDSON-ESSEX PRODUCTION IN 1928 IS HIGH

Maintaining its position as the world's largest manufacturer of six-cylinder automobiles, the Hudson Motor Car company is now at the threshold of a quarter of a million Hudsons and Essex for the 1928 season. This information was received from the factory by Lambert Bros., Hudson-Essex dealers, along with reports of the general activity of the line throughout the country.

Geo. Lambert, or Lambert Bros., announces that the fall demand for cars is universally active not only in the United States but also in Canada and the world markets where Hudson-Essex has long occupied a strong position.

"It is obvious that no factory could build a quarter of a million cars in nine months unless the public were demanding those cars in exceptionally large quantities," declared Lambert. "The Hudson factory's building program is based directly on the orders sent in by their distributors and already this year, it has taken close to a quarter million cars to supply their needs."

THE CUBS IN 1929?

There isn't a doubt in the minds of the Chicago baseball writers that a part of the world series will be played in their city next year. And they do not think it necessary to explain that the Cubs will be the entry.

Despite the denials that greeted the first report that Rogers Hornsby and Glenn Wright would be sold to the Cubs during the coming winter, the Chicago men insist that the purchases are as good as made.

Mr. Wrigley, the multi-millionaire owner of the Cubs, has been convinced, it is said, that all he needs to win the championship is a good second baseman and he is going to get him regardless of the cost.

SHOW THE DOUGH

Boston men were not shocked when the first rumor was spread that Hornsby would be elsewhere in 1929. They seemed to be expecting it and Hornsby also seemed prepared for a change.

He was "experting" the series from a spot in the press box and during one of the early games he was asked about the report that he was going to Chicago.

"I'm going some place, I guess, and as long as I get the dough it doesn't make any difference to me whether I play in Philadelphia or Brooklyn," he said.

Mr. Wrigley, of course, not only is fixed financially so that he could give the Boston owners some sweet money for Hornsby, but he could pay Hornsby more than he is getting now if he so desired and he isnt inclined to quibble over a few dollars.

FUCHS IS NO SUCKER

Hornsby's salary has been a terrific load on the Boston owners. Judge Emil Fuchs, the principal owner of the team, is a man of considerable means and a very fine sportsman, but he is too good a business man to keep playing a sucker game.

It has been demonstrated to the judge, at the cost of about $50,000, that there have to be some ball players around Hornsby to make a winning club and it has been proven to him also that Boston is very fond of the Red Sox.

Late in the season Hornsby made some wise cracks about the club and, although he is a very frank young man, he hardly would have committed himself so frankly if he expected to be there another season.

WRIGHT NOT FOR CUBS

Pittsburgh men take it for granted that Glenn Wright will not play another season with the Pirates. But they can't see the Chicago transfer. Barney Dreyfuss, it is easy to figure, would not contribute to the strengthening of an already strong club if he could make a satisfactory deal with any other club. But none of the big money clubs seems to be interested in Wright.

Two years ago Wright was rated as the best shortstop in the major leagues and he is still young and a very good ball player, but he has had his disagreements with the Pittsburgh management and wants to leave. It is quite certain that he would like to play with Chicago.

With Hornsby and Wright, the Cubs would be a tremendously improved ball club. They were a powerful ball club this year and but for the kicking around they took from the terrbile Phillies the ymight have been in there this season.

Joe McCarthy is a smart baseball man and one of the very best managers in the game. He doesn't need very much now to get in next year and Hornsby might be the one necessary person.

INDIANS SHOW OLD CLASS IN 42-6 TRIUMPH

ORANGE LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Fullerton	2	0	1000.
Orange	2	0	1000.
Huntington Beach	1	0	1000.
Brea-Olinda	1	1	.500
Anaheim	1	1	.500
Tustin	0	0	.000
Garden Grove	0	1	.000
Excelsior	0	2	.000
Downey	0	2	.000

Fullerton, Orange and Brea-Olinda emerged successfully from their second round games in the Orange league yesterday, the victories of the first two elevens being their second of the season and making them the real leaders of the loop although Huntington Beach also has a perfect average mathematically.

Fullerton, showing some of its old power, ran roughshod over a weaker Anaheim than anyone supposed they were and rolled up touchdowns almost at will. The score was 42 to 6.

Orange also had a set-up in the light Downey outfit and won as it pleased, 24 to 0.

"Shorty" Smith's tough little Brea-Olinda creation put on a typical "Shorty" Smith rally to lick Excelsior in the last half, 13 to 6.

Huntington Beach, regarded as the team to beat for the championship, was idle, its contest with Bill Cole's Tustin eleven having been postponed until November 2 on account of wet grounds. Coach Cole did not break down and cry when that one was called off, the delay giving him one more week to fashion something resembling a ball club out of his light and inexperienced youths.

Anaheim was supposed to give Fullerton at least a workout but the Colonists were absolutely pitiful after the first quarter. Their teamwork was atrocious and they were so genuinely outclassed that the second and third string Indians had no trouble at all in making points. Anaheim got its touchdown in the last few minutes of play when it completed six straight forward passes.

Orange made four touchdowns on Downey, Coach "Stew" White using his secon dteam throughout the second half. Wagner, Bandick, Krueger and Richards did the ball-toting on the scores, none of which was converted.

The Brea-Olinda fuss with Excelsior was the best of the day. Sacs, the Oiler quarter, madeh a touchdown in the first period, but Excelsior got it back in the second quarter on a forward pass to Ryan. Brea won the game in the third quarter, Kueley racing around end for the 25 yards.

Montana Staters Meet Nebraskans

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 13.—The Nebraska Cornhuskers were preparing today to entertain the Montana State Bobcats football squad on a soggy gridiron. The field was wet and rain was falling this morning.

The visitors arrived today from Hastings, where they spent most of the week getting the "feel" of Nebraska turf.

The Huskers were favored to win.

Santa Anans Return From North Hunt

George S. Briggs, well known Santa Ana sportsman, and Howard Timmons, his son-in-law, were home today from the lair of northern big game where they hunted successfully for several weeks. They left Santa Ana in August..

Both men had good fortune and a good time and considered the trek a genuine success. Mr. Briggs bagged a moose, a caribou, large grizzly bear and his limit of sheep while Timmons brought down a caribou, a grissly bear, a black bear and sheep and goat.

George Briggs

Mr. Briggs and Timmons went by boat to Wrangle, Alaska, proceeding by river boat to Telegraph creek, British Columbia, from which point they packed into the big game country.

Mr. Briggs is a big game hunter of vast experience but he considered this trip one of the most pleasant he ever made.

SANTA ANA 'B' GRIDDERS LOSE TO LONG BEACH

Skidding, slithering, sliding and virtually swimming, the Santa Ana high school Class B football team lost a one-sided league battle in a sea of mud to the Long Beach 130's here yesterday. The score was 33 to 0.

Coach Clyde Patton's men were hopelessly mired by their classy opponents and were pushed all over the soggy grass. They were fortunate in making three first downs and barely got past the 50-yard line on two occasions.

During the first quarter, Long Beach kept threatening the local goal but could not quite get the pigskin over. At the end of this spasm they were 5 yards from the line and within 30 seconds after the second period started, had scored. Parke converted with a perfect boot through the sticks.

Sweep Around End

The Hares kicked off to Elliott who ran the ball back 40 yards. Long Beach soon got the ball, however, and with the aid of several sweeping end runs and through-tackle reverses, made their second tally but missed the kick.

A lucky break, in the form of a blocked pass, produced another marker. Hideo Higashi started to pass to Kaps, but the ball only went about two feet, Taylor a Long Beach man, breaking through and giving it a husky swat, sending it up and backwards. He kept on running caught the ball when it came down and churned his way 40 yards to a touchdown. The kick was good and the half ended, 20 to 0 for Long Beach.

Parke, star Jackrabbit back, caught a punt and raced back through the whole Saint team for a touchdown early in the third period. Cecil Elliott, back, nearly got him in a long angular pursuit, but took a "header" into the mud when he left his feet for the tackle. Frazier failed to convert, the score standing 26 to 0.

Parke Goes Over Again

The final touchdown came in the last of the third canto, Parke finally scoring after some deceptive reverses and passes. He kicked goal.

Santa Ana perked up a little in the fourth quarter and nearly held its own. Two first downs were made in this period, as well as an orgy of short passes toward the end. McDougall, Higashi and Elliott did the best ball packing while Kaps and Arnold were stopping them up in the line. Although he had perfect interference, Parke showed he was a first class football player. In fact, the whole Seaside team, six of whom are remnants of last year's championship team, played well.

The lineup:

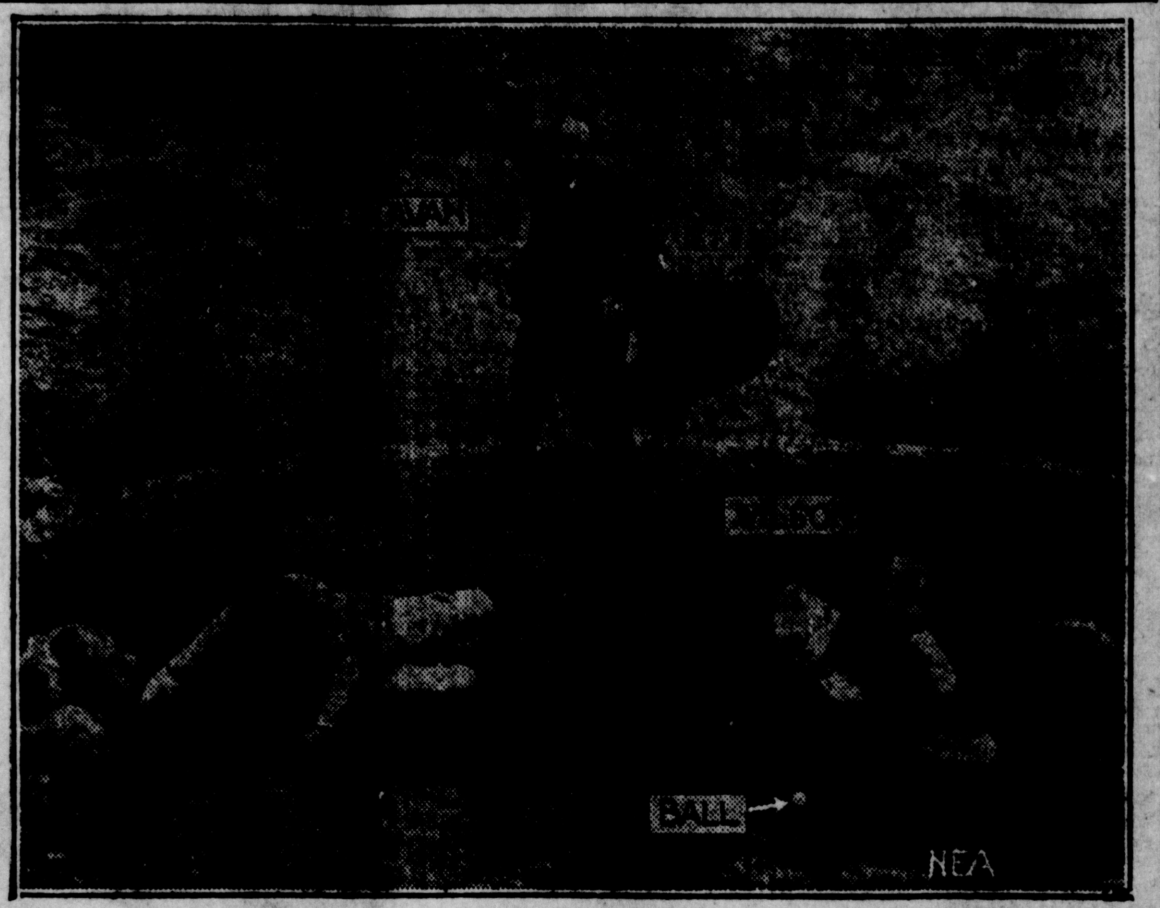
REAL ACTION AT HOME PLATE WITH THE BAM

It may be a wee bit late for world series pictures but this remarkable action picture at home plate in the third game of the world series deserves a place on anybody's sports page. Ruth, tearing home, has just hit Wilson, Cards' catcher, like a ton of brick, and Wilson has dropped the ball. The umpire's hand is upraised, calling Ruth out, a decision which was changed after the catcher had dropped the ball. Ruth's slide indirectly was responsible for three runs. Two were out at the time and shortly thereafter, Meusel scored on a double steal while Lazzeri came in on Robertson's single. Those three runs clinched the third game of the series for the Yanks.



OFFER JOHNSON LONG CONTRACT TO PILOT NATS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Only the formality of signing a contract remained today to install Walter Johnson, manager of the Newark club of the International league, as pilot of the Washington Nationals.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, said he would sign Johnson purely in the capacity of manager butsaid he would be given an opportunity to pitch if he desired.

JOHNSON

An indication that the former Senator hurler will be given full authority in his capacity as manager was contained in a statement by Griffith.

"I want it clearly understood that Johnson will be manager in fact as well as in name. I shall support every decision he makes and that includes getting new players he wants and getting rid of those he doesn't want," Griffith said.

Griffith indicated he would offer Johnson "a two or three year contract," and added a hope that the "Big Train" would be successful as a manager, "because I hope he can finish his baseball career as manager of the Nationals."

Garry Herrmann, Former Baseball Czar, Near Death

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 13—August (Garry) Herrmann, 69, former president of the Cincinnati baseball club and for years chairman of the National Baseball Commission, was in a serious condition at Jewish hospital here today, suffering from a nervous breakdown. Although Herrmann's condition is aggravated by weakness, attaches at the hospital today reported him as resting easily.

Herrmann served as chairman of the commission until it was turned over to Judge K. M. Landis and made a one-man power. He retired from the presidency of the Cincinnati Reds a year ago due to failing health.

Hollywood Team May Get Holling

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Carl Holling, whose pitching last season made the Mission Bells an obstacle for pennant-contending clubs, may wear a Hollywood uniform next season. Recently recalled by the Boston Red Sox, it is understood he will be turned over to Manager Vitt, of the Stars.

Ty Cobb Heads Ball Team On Japan Tour

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 13.—Tyrus Cobb left Augusta today for Seattle, Wash., where he will embark Oct. 20 with a group of other major league baseball stars for Japan.

Cobb said before he left the east that Herbert Hunter, Red Branch, N. J., sportsman who is promoting it, told him that he and Walter Johnson were the two principals. The "Georgia peach" said his understanding was that Johnson wauld manage a Japanese club and he another for a barnstorming trip of that country.

TWO BIG GRID GAMES BOOKED ON COAST CARD

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Two hot gridiron battles and probably more were expected to develop along the Pacific Coast today when the Washington State Cougars meet the Golden Bears of California at Berkeley, and when the scrappy St. Mary's team tangles with Southern California at Los Angeles.

Just what Washington State has in the way of a football machine this year is not definitely known.

Despite the pessimistic pronouncements of Coach Hollingberry, the Cougars have beaten Gonzaga and Montana and were expected to give California quite an argument.

California is still trying to perfect a combination with offensive ability. The Golden Bears displayed plenty of defensive power against St. Mary's a week ago, but the scoring punch was lacking.

The powerful Stanford team is expected have but little trouble with U. C. L. A., the newest member of the Pacific Coast conference.

Washington, which so far this season has not shown much strength, was to tangle with Montana at Seattle. Inasmuch as Montana has shown less, the Huskies should chalk up a victory with but little difficulty.

Idaho will entertain Whitman at Moscow. The Missionaries made a surprising stand against Washington last week and Idaho may find that it has quite a job cut out for itself.

Other games were Oregon and Willamette at Eugene; Nevada and Santa Clara at Santa Clara.

Godfrey Kayoes Rival In First

BUFFALO, Oct. 13. — George Godfrey, Philadelphia Negro, today had another knockout victory to his credit as a result of a one-round knockout of Bennie Hill, of Los Angeles, here last night. A right [illegible] finished Hill after 1 minute, 37 seconds of fighting in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

RIVERS MEETS COLORED BOXER MONDAY NIGHT

Jimmie Rivers, Fullerton welterweight, and "Tiger" Williams, Los Angeles colored 145-pounder, will meet in the main event at Boyd Ellis' Delhi Amateur Athletic club next Monday night, the promoter announced today.

Always a steady, heady, consistent performer, Rivers needs no great descriptive material to attract customers. His efforts are usually winning ones although he is ready at all times to meet any opponent Ellis may select for him.

Williams is a member of the Ted Frenchie colored stable and said to be a great improvement over the flock that the big black brought here a couple of weeks ago.

Ellis has arranged what he terms a "double semi-windup."

In one section will appear the erstwhile marine, Howard Johnston, a Santa Anan, who has been coming forward with rapid strides since he took up the leather pushing business seriously. Johnston will go against Walter Long, whose last bout at Delhi was a sensational one with Curtis Anderson in which both men were on the floor often. Long broke his hand before it was over but that didn't deter him from knocking out Anderson but it did keep him inactive pugilistically for several months.

In the other half of the feature will contend the aggressive Romeo Lemon, of Fullerton, and Eddie Sears, Los Angeles Negro welterweight. They fought here before, Lemon winning handily but Sears got his rematch for his gameness.

Johnny Nandes and Danny Stewart will lead the preliminaries of which there are four. Nandez and Stewart are welters.

The other bouts follow: Babe Orosco vs. Mike Cannelis, 125 pounds; Young Herman vs. Joe Garcia, 115 pounds; Leo Dominguez vs. Young Morales, 120 pounds.

'They're Off' At Tanforan's Track

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—After a lapse of many years, the familiar cry of "They're off," was to be heard at Tanforan track this afternoon, to send the chills along the spines of Californians devoted to thoroughbred racing.

The race meet will be under the supervision of James W. Coffroth, nominal head of the Tanforan Jockey club, who has long been identified with sporting events in the west.

TENTATIVE DATE SET

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—If Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, is sufficiently recovered from blood poisoning he will fight Santiago Zorilla here on October 23, promoters announced today. They were originally scheduled to meet here Monday night in a battle for the title.

50,000 Fans See Trojans Meet Gaels

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—More than 50,000 grid fans filed into the Coliseum here this afternoon to witness the game between Coach Howard Jones' U. S. C. Trojans and Coach "Slip" Madigan's tricky Gaels of St. Mary's college, Oakland.

Despite the fact that prognosticators are generally agreed on the Trojans as the winners, there are few who have the temerity to pronounce themselves as of the opinion that this afternoon's tussle will resemble the slaughter of a lamb.

St. Mary' sdisplay of stubborn stamina and effective tactics against the California Bears this season proved that they are not to be looked upon as innocent lambs.

LEGION'S CARD WEDNESDAY IS FEATURE FULL

BY RINGSIDER

A genuine all-star cast will "go to bat" for Santa Ana post No. 131, American Legion, when the World War veterans take charge of the boxing program at the Orange County Amateur Athletic club Wednesday night.

Henry Foust, generalissimo of the pretentious Delhi plant, has turned over his entire staff to the Legionnaires and every cent that is taken in will go to the post's welfare fund. In fact, the Legion will have charge of the show in every respect, from matchmaking to promotion and ticket-selling and expects to add a comfortable sum to its treasury which the veterans say, can stand inflation.

Zenayde Chavez, the Santa Ana whirlwind, will head the show, it was announced definitely today. The sensational welterweight, regarded as a real prospect by smart boxing men, will go against Jesse Ayala, an Anaheim lad who has been coming along almost as fast as his countryman. Intense rivalry is said to exist between the two and a real two-fisted article is assured—while it lasts.

Hymie Miller, the American amateur flyweight ruler, has donated his services to the cause and will box Tony Mareno, an aggressive youngster from Placentia who is hardly a match for the "champeen" who was robbed at Amsterdam but who, nevertheless, must be given credit for being a gamester.

As a special added attraction, the Legion has signed Jimmy Rivers, Pacific coast amateur welterweight wrestling champion, to grapple with Johnny Hill, of Los Angeles. It has been a long time since Santa Anans have seen a wrestling bout and the affair will prove a real drawing card.

The rest of the program follows:

Young Joe Rivers vs. Hymie Rudin, 128 pounds.

Abe Miller vs. Tim Lagada, 110 pounds.

Young Griffo vs. "Frenchy" Labourdette, 138 pounds.

Lemon Cunningham vs. Lloyd Emmetts, 135 pounds.

Ned Herman vs. Kid Garcia, 118 pounds.

SLATE 'BUCKY' FOR DETROIT, RAJAH TO CUBS

BY DAVID J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Alladin never exactly took me into his confidence about the matter but I have always felt that he thought his second footman was an awful sap when he fell for that dodge about new lamps for old.

It was so obvious, like a pop fly to the third baseman—bound to be a catch in it somewhere. Thus, the folly of existence; out with the old, in with the new. There are a lot of guys hanging around the baseball offices today, smoothing their hair with one hand and holding their hat with the other.

If George Moriarity doesn't resign as manager of the Detroit ball club within the next 24 hours, he is likely to do so early next week, paving the way for the announcement that Stanley Harris has been appointed in his stead.

Harris, a world's champion in his own right only four years ago, is ringing presidential door bells now and is believed to have made a sale with Frank Navin out in Detroit. They are understood to have had a conference during the world series, and since it was followed by Moriarity's decision to step down, the hook up of these circumstances hardly can be said to lack significance.

HARRIS

It may not be long, either, before Bill Killefer, former manager of the Cubs and present coach of the Browns, is announced as the new manager of the Boston Braves. This, however, cannot happen until such time, if at all, as Rogers Hornsby is passed along to the Cubs.

Hornsby and Fuchs have issued a few fevored denials of the alleged deal but no one seems to feel compelled to believe them. Both of them are said to admit that only a winner can play ball for Hornsby. He can't tolerate a failure and, in this respect, the Braves can fill in nicely until a really successful failure reports for duty.

Killefer, who either has been approached or will be, is very broadminded on this particular subject. He used to play ball for the Phillies.

RECORD CROWD ASSEMBLES FOR CHICAGO GAME

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game, the elevens of Notre Dame and the Navy took the field here today.

It may be only mid-October, and there is no disputing the fact that each of the contenders has been beaten soundly, yet such is the appeal of intercollegiate football this season that a record attendance is assured when the Middies and the Irish trot out on Soldiers' field this afternoon.

Upwards of 120,000 spectators will fill the grey slopes of the big stadium for the game.

The Navy-Notre Dame game is the feature one of a variegated program today; the "Big Ten" race is on; the leading elevens of the east are meeting their first serious opposition.

Neither Bill Ingram, who coaches the Midshipmen, nor Knute Rockne, who, in case you hadn't heard, directs the gridiron destinies of Notre Dame, was certain of his starting line-up. Each will try to outguess the other.

Despite the odds which are laid upon the Irish, the Navy is an excellent bet. Two defeats told against the Middies earlier in the season, yet they have an experienced eleven to send to battle today—one that is particularly strong in reserves.

University Man Wins Marathon

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 13.—A new marathon star to take the place of Joie Ray, Clarence De Mar and the others who are passing on was discovered in the annual New York-to-Port Chester run. Arthur Gavrin, a New York university junior who wants to be a dentist, won the race (26 miles, 385 yards) yesterday in 2 hours, 57 minutes, 37 seconds. De Mar was second, almost a mile behind.

Navy Merman On Way To Records

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Jimmy Cherry, former Navy aquatic star, had been in the water more than 38 hours today on his attempt to surpass the world's endurance swim record of 61 hours and 8 minutes, held by Martha Hill, of Texas.

Cherry reached the 38 hour mark at 6:11 a. m. He entered the outdoor plunge at 4:11 p. m. Thursday. The swimmer has been fed only soup and hot drinks.

The dramatic story of Gene Tunney's rise to fame and millions, culminated by his marriage to pretty Josephine Lauder, heiress to $50,000,000, of Greenwich, Conn., is told here in pictures.

1. Tunney begins life as an obscure clerk, studying Shakespeare and the classics in off hours.

2. In France with the marines, he becomes the light heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., although he does not get into battle.

3. At a party given by a marine corps buddy in 1926, he is introduced to Miss Lauder.

4. The first hint of the approaching romance comes after he has defeated Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship when he sends a mysterious greeting to "my friend in Greenwich" over the radio from the ring.

5. Tunney showing the muscles that made him heavyweight champion of the world.

6. A war-time picture showing Gene as a marine in France.

The artist has also shown how Miss Lauder appears in bridal veil.

COMER KILLED IN AUTO RACE CRASH

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 13.—The body of Fred Comer, automobile racer, lay today in a local undertaking parlor while his grief-stricken wife was trying to decide on funeral arrangements.

A Clover Hill hospital Jimmy Gleason and Dave Evans, two other automobile racers were suffering from fractured ankles and cuts and bruises. Ray Keech, Lou Moore and Bob McDonough, another trio of automobile speed demons, were nursing minor injuries. These casualties happened during 33 minutes that 16 auto drivers raced in a 200-mile sweepstake race before a holiday crowd yesterday.

With Cliff Woodbury in the lead at the fiftieth lap, the race was postponed until October 27 when news came of the death of Comer. Comer's car upset during the first of the series of three smashups at Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H. Comer died enroute to the hospital.

Mushy Callahan's Victory Decisive

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 13.—Mushy Callahan, of Los Angeles, junior welterweight champion of the world, defeated Jimmy Owens, of Oklahoma City, in a sensational 10-round bout here last night, but the titleholder today had only words of praise for his comparatively unknown adversary.

Owens rallied late in the fight and had the crowd cheering for a knockout as the final gong ended the fight. Callahan, however, won by a wide margin, dealing Jimmy terrible punishment to the midsection and closing both his eyes.

SEALS REGAIN ADVANTAGE IN TITLE SERIES

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 13.—Staging a rally in the eighth inning, the San Francisco Seals came from behind to win the third game of the pennant championship fight from the Sacramento Senators yesterday by a score of 7 to 4.

Spotted a two run lead in the first inning, Hollis Thurston, the Seals' twirler, who usually plays first base, lost the advantage in the third, when the Senators hopped on his offerings for four hits and three runs. Poor base running by the Solons cut down the margin they might have gained in this inning and the best they could do thereafter was to tally one run in the eighth.

The Seals gathered three runs in the eighth on three hits and added two more in the ninth to make the victory doubly certain.

Both teams left for San Francisco where they will meet in the fourth and fifth games of the series this a fternoon and Sunday.

Gophers, Purdue Renew Relations

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 13.—Purdue went into action here this afternoon against Minnesota for the first time in 31 years. Both teams will be hampered by heavy going due to recent injuries. However, the Gopher's chances for victory were slightly enhanced by a rain which slowed the field.

225 CHILDREN SEE CIRCUS AS CLUB'S GUESTS

With bulging eyes, open mouths and jumping hearts approximately 225 children of poor families yesterday saw the Sells-Floto circus as a direct result of the interest of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club in unfortunate children.

The club was host to the poor children of the city and in this work the club had the full co-operation of the management of the show and the Motor Transit company, which furnished busses for free transportation of the children to and from the big tent.

The children were given a special section of seats at the afternoon performance and special attention was given them by the performers and the clowns. Kiwanians and teachers from various schools from which the kiddies were picked chaperoned the group.

Peanuts, popcorn and soda pop were not overlooked, for the Kiwanians provided a fund for purchasing these delights for the little ones.

CUT IN BUS RATES EAST ANNOUNCED

Through a recent arrangement with the Pioneer Yelloway lines a new and reduced rate to all points east has become effective from Santa Ana. The new plan carries with it an equalization of rates to apply from Santa Ana to all points east, the rates from Santa Ana to be the same as from Los Angeles. Persons traveling from Santa Ana to any point in the east will greatly benefit by these reductions in rates. Points served from Santa Ana include Denver, Lincoln, Neb., Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and all intermediate points.

Service from Santa Ana will be twice daily, leaving the Union Stage depot, at Third and Spurgeon, at 5:20 a. m. and 6 p. m.

ALLEGED THIEF IS HELD IN BASTILE

Alleged to have been caught stealing articles from automobiles at the circus grounds, on Pomona street, early last night, William Denver Campbell, 18, of Tulsa, Okla., was arrested by Officers H. W. McKague and C. V. Adams, and is being held in the county jail on a petty theft charge. Two flashlights and several automobile robes were said to have been recovered by the officers.

T. B. TALBERS NAMED [illegible] OF COUNTY COAST ASSOCIATION; AID FOR HIGHWAY IS URGED

With an eye thoughtfully trained on the forthcoming state aid budget, the Orange County Coast association Thursday night pledged itself to the major project of widening the Coast highway to 56 feet for the entire length of the county.

Other highlights of the monthly meeting of the association last night at the Balboa Palisades club at Corona del Mar were:

The election of T. B. Talbert, of Huntington Beach, as president and the selection of other officers for the ensuing year.

The prediction of S. V. Cortelyou, division engineer of the state highway commission, that the biennial budget for state road aid, now being prepared, would contain only half of the amount called for by the present proposed co-operative projects in the county but that this would probably care for all projects actually reaching completion in the next two years.

Pass Resolution

The passage of a resolution asking the county supervisors to give all possible aid in the construction of the 56-foot-wide Coast highway through the county.

The resolution which the 40 members of the association present unanimously adopted embodied the result of the entire lengthy discussion last night. It declared, "The Orange County Coast association is in favor of the building of a 56-foot-wide Coast highway, with curbs, as soon as possible and also request the hearty cooperation of the board of supervisors in paving the present highway through Dana Point and other points where necessary."

Program Outlined

The working program that was evolved out of much discussion and the assurances of favorable attention from Cortelyou, in brief, provides for the widening and paving completely of the present 20-foot Coast highway on a co-operative basis by the state and property owners. The state is to pave 30 feet of the 56-foot road. The adjacent property owners are to pave the remainder and to build curbs and, where possible, construct sidewalks and erect ornamental lighting fixtures.

The concensus of the meeting was that little aid could be expected from the much-strained budget of the county. Instead, the co-operation with the state is proposed to be achieved through smaller districts adjacent to the highway. The program is to be the goal of the association for the ensuing biennium.

Large Appropriation

Although Cortelyou was not at liberty to estimate the amount of the state roads budget which would come to Orange county, he said, "I have recommended a rather large appropriation for co-operative work on the Coast highway from Seal Beach to Serra."

The division engineer also declared that in light of his opinion that not all of the proposed projects can be completed during the next two years, he hoped a budget would be approved for the biennium which would permit the state to pay its share of the projects actually gotten underway. He estimated the state budget for the county would contain half the amount necessary for the proposed projects but sufficient for the projects actually completed in two years.

$1,500,000 Lost

It has been estimated by cources other than Cortelyou that the present projects proposed for state aid in the county will amount to more than $1,500,000.

After listening to the plans of the Santa Fe Springs Waste Water company for a pipe line for the disposal of oil well water in the tidelands at Los Alamitos bay, outlined by C. C. Sharpenberg, president of the company, and H. C. Ferry, vice president, the association referred the matter of its opinion back to a special committee. The company is asking of the county supervisors a franchise for building its pipe line through about two miles of Orange county. The association is considering the effect of the water disposal upon the beaches.

JEROME TELLS HIS STAND ON VOTE MEASURE

Asserting that reference made in the Register Wednesday to his remarks on the federal reapportionment measure at a meeting of the board of directors of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce had been interpreted by his friends as meaning that he was opposed to the plan, W. C. Jerome, county auditor, today explained that he will vote for the measure, as he stated he would when the subject was under discussion by the directors.

In response to a request from a member of the board, Jerome discussed some of the good and bad points in the plan, discussing both merely for the purpose of informing the directors.

"My principal reason for supporting the measure is that it will give us more members from the rural district," Jerome said today, in explaining that misinterpretation of his position was due probably to failure of the Register to tell what preceded and followed the remarks quoted. "Experience has proven to me that the voters in the country districts are in better position to know the men they send to represent them than are the people in the large cities. Consequently, we get a beter type of citizens, on an average, to represent us."

Jerome was quoted as saying that "California is one of the best governed states in the union, and it probably will make little difference [illegible] both sides of the question. In his explanation, Jerome pointed out that San Francisco and Los Angeles are on opposite sides, San Francisco supporting the measure and Los Angeles opposing. He said that San Francisco is inclined to treat the outside communities with more fairness than is Los Angeles, and he intimated that rural interests would benefit by alliance with the northern city.

In discussing some of the objectionable features of the new legislation, Jerome said that Southern California would have only eight members of the senate against 12 now, while the north and middle portions of the state would have 32, although they have less than 50 per cent of the population of the state. In other words, with approximately 50 per cent of the population, Southern California would have only eight representatives, or 20 per cent in the upper house of the state legislature. Carrying the analysis a little further, Jerome expressed the belief that in Los Angeles county, selection of representatives in the senate would be made from the city of Los Angeles, in which event, a million people living outside of the city of Los Angeles would be without representation.

"If Los Angeles had sent the right kind of men to represent that section in the state legislature, there probably would have been no demand for reapportionment" Jerome commented. "The men sent from there have been out of touch with the real progressive men in the legislature."

Jerome also pointed out that the plan of apportionment under the measure is contrary to the principle of government laid down in the constitution.

SANTA ANANS ARE SATISFIED WITH SEASON'S FIRST RAIN

By LOUISE STEPHENSON

The first rain of the season fell this week, cleansing the air and making the sky more blue. It quenched the thirst of the famished earth and left it with a promise of the birth of green things in the near future. It also satisfied a longing in the hearts of all Santa Anans, for the first rain is an event to which to look forward. After the first rain, there is no turning back to the informalities of summer and early autumn—it means that society is ready for the larger, formal dances, luncheons, teas, dinners and bridges of the winter.

Santa Ana Matrons Are Hostesses at Bridge

Mothers and Sons Enjoy Banquet at Y. M. C. A.

Mothers and sons of the Julia Lathrop school shared a banquet given at the Y. M. C. A. last evening, several hundred being present. "Famous Ships" was the topic on which the program was based, the theme being particularly appropriate for the evening of the day dedicated to the memory of Columbus.

A harmonica band under the direction of Miss Maxine Zolman played a number of selections. The story of the voyage of Columbus was given by Edward Wickersham. Mrs. Roy Horton gave a toast, "Columbus," in which she outlined the courage of the navigator who opened the way to a new world but a few hundred years ago.

Duets were given by Donald and Roland Bush. The story of Magellan was given by Lee Hamilton and the story of the Mayflower by Mrs. John MacFarland. The history of "Old Ironsides" was told by Earl Motley and the historic struggle between the Monitor and the Merrimac by Frank Lansdown. Mr. Cain read Elbert Hubbard's story of the Titanic.

In talking on the question of "Whither Bound?" H. G. Nelson, principal of the school, gave a brief resume of the qualities which point the way in which the individual should walk. He cited the qualities possessed by great men of history that have directed their lives.

Brown County, Ohio, Club Meets Here

Former residents of Brown county, Ohio, who have transferred their Lares and Penates to California homes, were entertained at one of their delightful reunions yesterday in the home of Mrs. William Crissman, 617 South Birch street, with Mrs. Crissman, Mrs. Ann Cayvan of Midway City, and Mrs. Mary Crissman of Santa Ana as joint hostesses.

The hostess trio planned decorative details of the day to express the spirit of Hallowe'en, and appropriate symbols were used in conjunction with autumn flowers. The delectable menu served at noonday, featured creamed chicken with salads and other appetizing dishes, and ended with home-made pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream and crushed almonds.

In the afternoon the guests varied their Ohio reminiscences with amusing feats of fortune-telling. The club was organized a year or so ago with a membership of twelve, which has grown until there are now over 30 members in Santa Ana, Los Angeles and vicinity.

Of these 30 members those who yesterday shared the hospitality of Mrs. William Crissman, Mrs. Mary Crissman and Mrs. Cayvan, were Dr. and Mrs. Charles Salisbury, Mrs. Lottie Stevenson, Mrs. Sarah Prine, Mrs. Allie Prine, Mrs. Ruth Rhodes, Mrs. Lucy Hollenbeck, Mrs. John Rust, Mrs. Edward Tindall, Mrs. Hettie Theis and Mrs. Clara H. Beall of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Meeks and Miss Lydia Netz of Pasadena; Mrs. Merta Buchanan of Pomona, and one guest, Miss Christine Walker of La Jolla.

Mrs. Sarah Prine was the eldest one present, and despite her 94 years, is a regular attendant at the various reunions.

Brea

Club Meets

Five new members were admitted to the roll of the Brea Woman's club at a meeting of the executive board which preceded the regular business session of the organization held in its club rooms in Brea yesterday. Routine business and reports from the chairmen of the ways and means and civic welfare committees completed the matters brought before the board.

Mrs. Maude Sayles, chairman of ways and means, announced that her committee is making a drive for old papers and called upon club women to save them for that purpose. The papers are to be stored in the Sullivan brothers' garage and those who find it difficult to take them there are to call on Mrs. Sayles or one of her committee. A cooked food sale for Saturday, October 13, in front of the Gheen market, will be conducted by this committee.

Mrs. Ethelyn Gnagy, chairman of civic welfare, announced that arrangements had been made with the city trustees for the planting by the club of a living Christmas tree in Brea's new city park.

With a review of the work done that day by the executive board the business session of the club opened with Mrs. Clara Close, president, in the chair. Announcement was made that Mrs. Nadine Crump, scheduled as the speaker for the law enforcement program of October 23, will not be able to be present, but that Mrs. Dora A. Stearns, a member of the State Board of Education and president of the Woman's Political league, a woman long associated in club work and civic activities, will give the address for that occasion.

Mrs. Close is very anxious that all women of the community be present to hear this address, and a general invitation is being extended to them for that purpose.

Mrs. Phebe Spensley, chairman of the literary section announced that Mrs. Harry Sears, county chairman of literature, will present a little play at the next meeting of the section, which is to be held in the Spensley home on the evening of October 19. Members may bring guests who are prospective members and all club women who wish to join the sections are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Maurine Goodart, chairman of the art section, announced an all day meeting of its members for Friday, October 12, at the home of Mrs. Florence Anderson, South Redwood.

At the close of the business session the members adjourned to the dining room where Mrs. Emma Throop, chairman of the "birthday" committee, together with her assistants, presented a program.

The scene was laid in an old-fashioned garden and the offering was entitled "My Garden of Memories," with Mrs. Phebe Spensley in the role of the reminiscent and Mrs. Close impersonating Memory in the recitation of the lines.

The various scenes were accompanied by appropriate songs and ballads sung by Mrs. Helen Clegg, of Fullerton, with Mrs. Mabel Hay at the piano. Members of the committee were Mrs. Throop, Mrs. Spensley, Mrs. Edna Shaffer, Mrs. Edith Vorhees, Mrs. Victoria Ball, Mrs. Florence Anderson, Mrs. Clara Close, Mrs. Stella Fanning, Mrs. Alice Stevens, Mrs. Margaret Lemmon and Mrs. Jessie Cox.

Little Marjorie Sandman impersonated Childhood; the lovers were presented by Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Ball, with the former as the gallant; Mrs. Fanning was the bride and Mrs. Sraffer her young husband; Mrs. Margaret Lemmon, carrying tiny Dorothy Adele Sandman, was a lovely young mother. The roles of black mammy and her husband were taken by Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Vorhees.

Frocks for the autumn bride are unusually lovely this year as they may be had in many pale colors just off white, as well as in the traditional white. Two very smart wedding gowns are pictured here. The pink breeaded gown at the left has a circular skirt with train made in one with the black bodice panel. The veil is of Alencon lace. At the right is an off-white velvet gown featuring a novel sleeve treatment and a tiered skirt.

Wedding Breakfast Held After Church Nuptials

An autumn wedding of pronounced charm, which took place this morning at 11:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church, was that of Mrs. Ruth Remington Brenham, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank A. Remington of Pasadena and New York City, and Riley Richard Jackson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey N. Jackson of San Diego.

Dr. and Mrs. Remington spent a great deal of their time in a summer home at Balboa, and are members of Santa Ana Country club, where a nuptial breakfast was served this morning following the church wedding.

Mrs. Brenham was a very lovely bride in her formal gown of eggshell satin with picturesque hat to match. Her flower were pale tinted roses, combined with blue larkspur and arranged with maidenhair fern in shower effect. She entered the church on the arm of her father, who relinquished her to the care of Mr. Jackson, at the altar.

Miss Mildred Jackson, sister of the groom, chose a smart model in shimmering blue satin for her maid of honor frock, with which she carried a great cluster of flowers in golden autumnal hues tied with golden ribbons. Armistead B. Carter of San Diego, assisted Mr. Jackson as best man.

The young people took their marriage vows before the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the church, later pausing for good wishes from their friends before proceeding to the Country club where breakfast was served. The special table reserved for the party in that attractive spot, was a study in bridal white whose snowy blossoms had the merest suggestion of green in the feathery ferns.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will make their home in San Diego, where Mr. Jackson is with Wright and McKee, prominent law firm of the southern city.

Household Hints

PLASTERED HOLES

Holes in the wall plaster can be filled neatly and very easily now with a new plaster that comes in ten cent packages and is ready for use when a little water is added.

PIE SECRET

Southerners sprinkle a little tapioca with the fresh fruit in pies, before cooking. It gives a luscious thickness to the juice.

SLICED PERSIMMONS

Big, ripe persimmons make a delicious and unusual dessert if sliced, like peaches, and served with thick cream.

GELATINE SALADS

Fruits or vegetables make decorative salads if served, sliced and topped by a little colorful gelatine, with mayonnaise on top.

BROKEN DISHES

If you are inclined to break dishes by hitting them, while washing, on the sink faucet, slip a short piece of rubber tubing over the end of the faucet.

FRESH FLOWERS

Roses, chrysanthemums or practically any flowers can be kept fresh much longer if you clip off the ends of their stems under water.. A couple of aspirin tablets added to the water preserves their freshness also.

Louis H. Hill Honored At Birthday Dinner

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

Miss Betty Simpson, 25, is back home in Ada, Oklahoma, after serving 30 days in jail in Winchester, England, for stowing away on the Aquitania and getting caught. However, Miss Betty airily confides that she had a good view of the famous Winchester cathedral from her window, and that since she stowed away anyway in order to see cathedrals 'n such, her jail sentence wasn't hard to take.

The lady stowaway has done her stuff about five previous times and seen as much of the world as a marine. She confides that she won't really stop her stowaway tricks till she has reached Egypt and ridden a camel, but that meanwhile she will probably marry her hometown sweetheart and "settle down for a while."

That hometown sweetheart must be an amazing human being, for if there's one thing men as a class seem to want to be sure of in the women they marry is that said women have no roaming tendencies. To marry a girl who frankly confides that most any time she may hide on a boat and sail to Patagonia or Tahiti takes courage!

NO DATES, TEACHER!

Schoolma'ams of Newcomerstown, Ohio, may not "date" with their pupils. A very stern edict says that those who do must automatically resign and that those who marry their pupils must resign, too. Sensible, enough. One can hardly imagine a very high standard of scholasticism demanded from a pupil by a teacher who was "dating" with said pupil.

Does it mean that an era of flapper schoolmarms means a school problem which did not exist in an age when girls looked older at 17 than they do today at 30?

CAN HURL ROCKS

Throwing stones at a mother-in-law's home is "only malicious mischief." At least that's what a Chicago court ruled when William O'Grady hurled a rock at his mama-in-law's home because his wife was within and mama-in-law wouldn't let him see her.

Perhaps William was justified, though such a ruling does seem hard on mother-in-laws who, methinks, rarely get a fair deal due to the tradition against them. I have known more sons-in-law helped out of tight places by mothers-in-law than unjustly treated by them.

LIFE'S TRAGEDY

Who hasn't read "Ramona," or at least seen the movie of it? The publishers of a new edition of this famous novel, the 130th printing, by the way, announce that its author, Helen Hunt Jackson, died just a year after writing the book, never knowing, of course, that she had created almost a masterpiece.

Just another sample of life's constant tragedy—the dooming of the human soul never to know what it has accomplished!

Hardly do I stop steaming about dumb modern girls than I read "Another Country," by one H. Du Coudray and learn that the author is an 18-year-old girl student at Lady Margaret Hall College, Oxford. The book is amazing with its conception of character and handling of situations which an 18-year-old mind cannot be imagined as grasping.

It just means that "there are girls and girls," dumb as such an observation is!

Want Ads in the Register bring results surely, quickly and economically, whether it's renting rooms, apartments, houses, stores, shops or garages.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

"Pleasantly Plump" or "Slim Sixteen?"

Waggish statistics say that the Pleasingly Plump have it all over the Perfect Sixteens when it comes to marriage licenses. That may be very true, but I notice His roving eye can still admire the slim figure and trim ankles of Perfect Sixteen.

To be serious however, we must admit that the craze for slimness has carried many a girl away beyond the safety line of health. One need not be FAT to be nicely rounded . . . two or three pounds can do wonders on a small person.

What I object to is those ungainly humps of fat across shoulders, upper arms like Venus de Milo's thigh, and calves and ankles which should in decency go veiled all through life.

I still maintain that moderation in diet is a good story and I am going to stick to it.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Bread Crumb Pancakes

1 cup toasted breadcrumbs
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 1-2 cups rich milk
2 eggs, well beaten

The bread for these pancakes should be toasted dry, but not brown, in a cool oven. Roll fine and measure a cupful.

The flour is measured after sifting, and baking powder and salt added and sifted with it. Combine with the bread crumbs and sugar, slowly add enough milk to make a smooth "pouring" batter—you may not need all the milk and again perhaps you may need a little more. Different grades of flour take up different quantities of liquids.

Beat the batter with the egg beater to the bubbly stage, add the well beaten eggs and beat again for two or three minutes. This beating gives the batter a texture much like that of pop-overs and the pancakes are just that much more delicate in texture.

Bake the cakes in butter and stack them with a dab of butter on each cake. When the stack is eight or ten thick, cut in quarters and serve a quarter to each person. They may be baked and served hot off the griddle, if that is the way the family likes them.

If your ambition is to belong to that vast 80 percent of the pleasingly Plumps you can realize it right here and now in over-indulgence in these pancakes. That quarter section described above with its trimmings, would set you back a good 500 fat-and-energy calories.

If you can get away with it, that's fine, but remember that Man was ever fickle and he may not long enjoy buying expensive "out sizes" in dresses.

Last Call for Your Favorite Salad Dressing—15 of them, all fine ones, and yours for the trouble of sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to this department.

Next week the leaflet will describe the many good things one can make from Bread Crumbs. If stale bread has a habit of piling up in your bread box, you certainly need this leaflet.

Au revoir till Monday.

The Tinymites looked 'round and 'round, but not a single soul was found. Wee Scouty kept on shouting, "Hello, hello there! Who is near? We're just a band of Tinymites out here for fun, to see the sights. If anyone is near at hand, step out and bring us cheer."

"Oh, it's no use," another said. "I think I'll flop, and rest my head. The sparrow still is sound asleep. He's all fagged out, I guess." So they agreed a nap they'd take, but Coppy said, "I'll stay awake and act as guard. If I shout loud, of course that means distress.

"As yet we do not know this place, and there may be a funny race of people living right near by who might do us some harm." So, as the brilliant moon arose, the Tinymites began to doze, while Coppy stayed awake, all set to give a quick alarm.

All through the night the bunch slept sound. When they awoke at dawn they found that Coppy and the sparrow both were at their morning meal. "Hurray!" cried Clowny, "here we come. We're hungry, too, and we want some. The thought of eating pleases me, 'cause that's just how I feel."

They munched away an hour or so. Then Coppy jumped and shouted, "Oh! I thought I heard a funny noise. It sounded like a moo! Please, listen now, and keep real still. It seemed to come from o'er that hill. If anyone should find us here, I wonder what we'll do."

Then someone shouted, "It's all right." The Tinies saw a funny sight. A queer old man sat on a cow. He slowly rode up near. Then, pointing to the ground, nearby, he said, "You'll all be glad that I have come to show you Tinymites what wondrous things grow here."

(The Tinymites see some garden folks in the next story.)

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Margaret came downstairs in a brown plaid skirt and velveteen jacket.

"For goodness sake—what have you got that on for?" asked her mother. "It's like summer outside. Where's the pink linen you had on yesterday?"

"I'm cold and my coat's at the cleaners."

"Go and take it off. You'd think you were born in a hothouse. If you're cold, run and you'll soon get warm. It's a lovely day."

Margaret went back and changed into the linen.

At ten it grew cloudy and at eleven it started to rain and blow up cold. Margaret's mother looked out anxiously at the people waiting for the car—coat collars up, umbrellas braced against the driving rain.

Margaret came home in the Smith's car, but not another girl of the dozen crowded therein had on a thin dress.

Next day the mother got up with a headache. She shivered as she went down to put on the coffee pot and get breakfast.

But lo; half an hour later down came Miss Margaret in a white pique dress with short sleeves.

"Well, if you don't have about as much sense as a goose. I laid that dress out in the back room to pack away till next summer. Why, it's nearly the first of October, child."

"But you said—"

"March."

Margaret marched and came down in the plaid and vevelteen. The sky got bluer and bluer, the sun got hotter and hotter and a belated robin sang his spring song. Margaret's mother got over her early morning chill and had to stop the electric sweeper several times to wipe the perspiration off her face.

Looking out she noticed the women waiting for the bus at the corner in their thinnest and coolest summer things. Then came the school children, looking like a bunch of bright garden flowers, but Margaret herself looked like a solitary brown leaf in the riot of color.

"I guess the child knows better than I do," mused her mother. "I wonder how it comes."

The best explanation is that children do have a good bit of common sense as well as a sort of instinct that makes a fraternity of them all. Of course, mother's judgment is usually best, but we ought to allow children to have their own way once in a while.

BRIDGE MADE EASY

by W. W. Wentworth

(Abbreviations: A—ace, K—king, Q—queen, J—jack, X—any card lower than 10.)

SIX ALIBI CONVENTIONS—7

If you always followed the admonition to lead to weakness it would mean that third hand should always lead the weakest suit in the dummy. Assume that you are east and the dummy holds:

Spades—X X X; hearts—X; diamonds—Q 8 6 4; clubs—K X X X X.

The declaration is in a suit. Assume that on the first round west led a small club and you captured it with the club ace. What card would you return? Playing by rote, you would return a heart for it is the weakest suit in the dummy. In all probability, howeverfi the declarer would captuer it with the spade ace and he would then be in a position to ruff losing hearts in the dummy.

Instead of removing the singleton heart from the dummy, you should lead a trump and thus remove a danger spot from the table. There is a possibility that the declarer will try to finesse the trump and west, your partner, may win it. Then he would lead clubs and you would be in a position to trump.

By ignoring the convention in this instance, you make the most of your combined hands.

Platinum
The Aristocrat
It's a far cry from the steppes of Russia to the fair cities of America—yet that is the distance platinum travels before it is transformed into those beautiful jewels we see displayed by proud and discriminating possessors. Probably no other metal is aristocratic enough to demand for its embellishment only the finer gems. Beset with diamonds—rubies—emeralds—sapphires—or even when altogether unadorned—platinum almost seems to display a conscious pride in its high station in the world of jewelry.

We're approaching the time when the entire "body politic" of the country will express itself in approval or disapproval of its public servants and national policy.

It is always interesting when the public speaks—always portentous, significant, consequential. Whether the verdict applies to a national project or personality, a public utility, a private business or an individual, it is an incontrovertible force, in which judgment the victor or the victim must abide.

The public demands service—honest, fair, helpful, constructive service—no other sort of service will stand the test of time—no other sort of service will develop confidence and trust or perpetuate loyalty and patronage.

The merchants whose messages are in these columns are pledged to such a policy.

REV. OWINGS TO TAKE UP DUTIES ON DECEMBER 2

Sunday, December 2, is the date announced by the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, of Granville, O., for inauguration of his ministry with the First Baptist church of Santa Ana, according to the terms of his letter of acceptance, read at the Loyalty dinner, held last night in the church.

The letter, which was read by Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks, clerk of the pulpit committee, was received with great enthusiasm by the 388 persons present. By vote of the assembly a telegram of greeting and felicitation was ordered sent to the Rev. Mr. Owings in reply to his letter, which is as follows:

"The First Baptist Church,
"Santa Ana, Calif.,
"Dear Brethren:

"I have the telegram from your pulpit committee, advising me of your action in extending an invitation to become pastor of the First Baptist church of Santa Ana, and hereby notify you of my acceptance of that invitation. The terms and conditions as stated in the wire are satisfactory and I hope to assume the duties of the new pastorate on Sunday, December 2. Along with you I share the sincere hope that our relation as pastor and people will be most happy and wholesome and that your church will go on from strength to strength in continuing its honored history.

"You have been praying during these days that God's way would be made unmistakably clear in your selection of a pastor. Since your first communication I likewise have been earnestly seeking the divine guidance. May we not be confident that this is His leading and that He will bless the pastoral relation about to be formed to His glory and to the promotion of His kingdom. I know that you will join me in making these intervening days a period of fervent prayer and of renewed consecration that we may be prepared for the duties and opportunities that are to be ours.

"May God's abundant blessing be upon you and may those who are your leaders at this time be especially conscious of the Father's guidance in all of your labor of love.

"Most heartily yours,
"HARRY EVAN OWINGS."

ENGINEERS READY TO BLOT OIL FIRE

SANTA FE SPRINGS, Oct. 13.—(INS)—Cutting through the inner casing 50 feet below the surface of the earth, engineers were preparing today to launch their major attempt to blot out the roaring flames still spouting from the mouth of the Getty No. 77 oil well in the Santa Fe Springs field. If the attempt is successful, the fire, which has burned continuously for 28 days, may be extinguished by nightfall.

Three outer layers of casing already have been taped,p and mud and steam slowly is being forced into the throat of the flaming gusher. When the inner casing is cut, small wooden balls will be injected in the hope of clogging the well. Engineers believe the balls, forced upward by the heavy gas pressure, will jam at the casing joints and cut off the stream of gas and oil feeding the flames above.

Bunched vegetables were generally unchanged at the following prices per dozen bunches: Beets 25@30c, carrots 20@25c, mustard greens 15c, radishes 15@20c for the small red and king varieties and 12½@15c for white tips, spinach 20@25c and turnips 30@35c.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(UP)—A heavy tone developed in wheat futures late in the session of the Board of Trade today and prices worked sharply lower. Corn also suffered sharp losses. Oats were down a trifle.

At the close wheat was 1 to 1⅛ lower, corn was down 1 to 1⅛ cents and oats were unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Provisions took a sharp drop.

Wheat opened slightly higher on reports of frost damage in the Argentine. The drought in the southwest, which has hindered the sowing of winter wheat, was relieved by rains. Receipts here were 301 cars with the cash marke unchanged.

Corn advanced at the opening in hympathy with wheat and followed the later decline of that grain.

Arrivals were 131 cars. Cash trade was ½ cent lower.

Oats had a dull day. Cash demand was light and little trading was done in the futures. Receipts were 126 cars with the cash market ½ cent lower.

THE BASIC ESSENTIAL OF MOTOR CAR ENJOYMENT

It is not enough to buy a good car. For the ability of any car to fully meet the requirements of ownership depends much upon conditions exclusive to the locality in which the car is used.

Our principal reason for being in business is to provide a full measure of local responsibility for Studebaker cars owned in Orange County. You don't need to go further than here to be assured of every satisfaction in ownership.

CONGRESSIONAL IMMUNITY

The action for slander against Senator James E. Couzens of Michigan, for utterances made on the floor of the United States Senate, is an unusual action. Under the provisions of the Constitution, which says "for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place," members of Congress have always maintained that they were not subject to prosecution for any utterance made in debate, and could not have the question raised at any other point than on the floor of the body where the utterance was delivered.

A Washington tax consultant on whom Senator Couzens passed severe strictures in an address he delivered to the Senate, entered suit against the Senator for $500,000. The Senator has demurred, and the demur was overruled by a Justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court. It will now come up before the United States Supreme Court for an interpretation on that clause in the Constitution. The prosecution maintains that the Constitutional provision only applies to criminal action, that it does not give a Senator or representative immunity from damages to the reputation or business of the party injured, if the statement is untrue.

This will be an interesting question as it will form a precedent of far-reaching consequences. Senators and members of state legislatures, under similar provisions of the Constitution, have exercised unlimited license in discussing institutions and men who were hostile to them politically, which a ruling by the Supreme Court that they shall be held accountable for such utterances will tend greatly to halt.

This provision of the Constitution has been a most valuable one both in theory and in fact. If a member of Congress, or of the United States Senate, or of any legislative body, could be criminally called into question for utterances made in the legislative assembly, or if they could be arrested on their way to or from the legislature, it can easily be seen how in crucial hours a warrant for an arrest might be issued for the purpose of preventing the member of the legislature from attending to his public business, possibly voting upon a certain measure and having a measure defeated or passed, according to the desires of those who had caused the arrest. They could accomplish their object by imprisoning an enemy of their project. This freedom and immunity for arrest or being called in question criminally has been a bulwark for the freedom of our legislative body and its effectiveness. There has been an assumption that this provision of the Constitution threw its protecting mantle over the legislator in civil cases as well as in criminal. This is now called in question.

There is not the argument for its use in civil cases as in others for the reason that a man's personal liberty cannot be interferred with in civil cases. It will be simply a matter of damages and of his being held responsible for injury done a man for false or unwarranted utterances concerning the complaining party. Why should he not?

The private citizen has no redress otherwise. His reputation and business may be ruined, and very frequently has been seriously injured by the utterances on the floor which this citizen cannot meet face to face, for he is not a member of the body and being a private citizen his words do not reach as far as does the Senator's or Representative's.

We know no reason why the ends of good government would not be served by holding the Legislator to strict account in a civil manner for untruth, or slanderous things said. It would make him more thorough in his investigation, and more sure in his facts before such utterances.

Of course, this is beside the question of whether the Supreme Court will decide the matter one way or another. They will decide by what they consider the provisions covered, the language of it, without considering it in the light of the debates upon this provision and whether it would cover both civil and criminal action. It has popularly been considered so. It is possible, however, that the Supreme Court, considering the intent and purpose of the provision, may construe it in such a way as to confine it within criminal limitation, in which case Senator Couzens would have to go to trial, and if he does all others will under similar conditions.

In an Indiana town roosters are forbidden to crow before 5 a. m. An ordinance ordering all hens to lay at least one egg each day also ought to help along.

EMINENT ENGINEERS EMPLOYED

The appointment of three eminent engineers, specialists in flood control and water conservation, marks another long step in the consummation of preventing a waste of the natural water of this county.

The county is to be congratulated upon the character and ability of the men who will aid Mr. Bailey in his splendid work and will have the assurance of the best engineering skill of the country in the locating and building of the necessary dams and other structures to conserve the water and put it to its most beneficial use.

It is only unfortunate that we did not begin earlier and save the water which this year and next will flow unheeded to the sea. The greatest speed possible with safety and efficiency is demanded by the people of the county. The man on the street is becoming impatient at the long, long time the preliminary work is taking and wonders why it cannot be speeded up.

The people undoubtedly will be ready to vote the bonds when the time comes and are only waiting the opportunity to move things along. We believe the county is a unit on the necessity and desirability of the works proposed and are anxiously and impatiently looking for the time when the "dirt will fly." That is something that they can understand and appreciate.

However, they certainly do want a perfectly safe structure and all the water which naturally belongs to the county. Every event which shows progress in this most necessary public project we will applaud.

PROVISION NUMBER ELEVEN

The eleventh item on the ballot is a proposed amendment affecting the courts of the state. It will allow the legislature to:

(a). Create additional District Courts of appeal.

(b). Fix the jurisdiction of municipal and justice courts.

(c). Increase the appellate jurisdiction of district courts of appeal.

(d). Define original jurisdiction of superior courts.

(e). Limit appeals of municipal and justice courts to superior court alone.

(f). Make provision for appeal in actions for removal from public office.

The main purpose of these provisions is to relieve congestion in the appellate and supreme courts. This congestion is now so great that it takes about three years for a decision in a civil case after it gets to the district court of appeals.

The question to be decided by the voter in this item on the ballot is whether these matters shall be taken out of the Constitution and placed in the hands of the Legislature. It certainly will make the judicial department much more flexible and probably will tend to expedite the administration of justice if the Legislature should choose to act in the matter.

Tennis and other violent games are dangerous to a man past 40, says a health writer. He fails to mention bridge, however.

PROVISION NUMBER NINE

Provision number nine on the ballot would confer upon the state of California the same power now possessed by the cities and counties to appropriate a right of way immediately upon giving security to make compensation when the amount is ascertained by legal procedure.

This Constitutional amendment is eminently just and fair. There is no reason why the state should not have the same power as cities and counties especially since the state is doing such a large proportion of our road building. The highway builders of the state should not be held up pending litigation so long as the security is posted.

It's a question which will win out this year—the whispering campaign or that conducted, by, loud speakers.

RE-ENACT LINCOLN-DOUGLAS DEBATE

On a platform over the east stoop of the main building at Knox college, the exact site of the original event, the Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas debate was re-enacted the other day. A. B. Pierson, Galesburg, Ill., attorney, represented Stephen A. Douglas and Frank McGlynn, New York actor, impersonated Lincoln. Ten thousand people, half the number attending the debate seventy years ago, witnessed the historical presentation. Forty men and women who were present at the first debate, sat on the platform.

A huge banner bearing the words "Knox College for Lincoln" hung just where it hung on that great event which carried Lincoln to the presidency and Douglas to the United States Senate. A parade following the main outlines of that of 1858 preceded the re-enactment of the debate. Knox college men drew the old buggy in which Lincoln did much of his campaigning in Illinois and McGlynn and Pierson who impersonated the two debaters rode in a horse-drawn barouche.

It was an unique and rare celebration. We hope that moving pictures were taken of it. The original event would be included even in a short list of the historical events of the United States.

A Revolting Display

San Diego Union

An article on pie was featured in a recent number of that great moulder and mirror of Americanism, the Saturday Evning Post. It was an excellent and illuminating article—though possibly a little risque for the Post—but one of its principal illustrations was a picture which conveyed the most subversive suggestions. It was a picture of a man eating pie. The man sat at a lunch-counter with a wedge of pie in front of him. He had his knife in his right hand and his fork in his left—which was not refined; and he was detaining his pie with his fork while he cut it with his knife. There are countries in which the display of a picture like that would depreciate the currency.

The editors of the Saturday Evening Post should remember that copies of the Post find their way into many a righteous American household and into both houses of congress. Usually they do remember that. But this time they forgot; and, as a result, the morale of our great republic has been subjected to an insidious and sinister assault.

A man who would attack pie in that manner is no gentleman. And pie which has to be approached in that manner is no good. Yet if there are any two outstanding assets in which the people of this country feel unshaken confidence, and by which they sustain a just and patriotic pride, they are the knightliness of the American man and the perfection of American pie. Those very points were no doubt made in the article which the illustration defaced. They should have been.

We feel that the Post should at once publish a complete and suitable retraction in all newspapers. And at the usual rates.

Dirigible's Newest Bid

Oakland Tribune

Evidently, tickets on dirigibles, for a number of years, will be beyond the means of the many.

Expenses connected with the proposed flight of the big Graf Zeppelin are $296,000 and, though this trip is to bring extra revenues because of the novelty, it will represent a losing financial venture. Private passengers on board paid $[illegible] for their tickets.

The Graf Zeppelin voyage is not for profit. It is to demonstrate the possibility of regular dirigible service between continents. Once that is shown and there have been a number of successful flights, it is to be expected the insurance rates, now so large a part of the expense, will be lowered.

Aside from the costliness, the big balloon faces another obstacle, that of weather conditions. It makes little difference if a craft is able to cross the ocean in less than half the time required by steamship, if it must wait one, two or three weeks for the favorable chance to take off.

In war and peace the dirigible has been tested. This one represents the effort to put even larger ones into commercial use. The gas bag makes a new bid for place in the air and while it does so, there is in construction in this country an even larger dirigible which will carry on the story.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE LIMIT OF AMBITION

I want but little here below
  I have no great ambition,
As through this fleeting life I go
  For power or position
But when I pass a sign called "Stop!"
  I wish I dared be gruff
In answering the traffic cop
  Who yells: "Lay off that stuff!"
When clad in clouds of lowering scowls
  He walks up to my car
Pulls out his writing pad and growls:
  "Say, who d'ya think you are?"
I dearly wish I had the nerve
  To glare at him the while
And in a deep bass voice observe:
  "When you talk that way, smile!"
I'd like to look him in the eye
  Until I had him cowed
And then to ask him gently: "Why
  Must you boys talk so loud?"
And add: "It's only maniacs
  Who rave and rage and rant
You ought old, fellow, to relax.
  Why not be nonchalant?"
As I observed a while ago,
  But little I require
No urge for wealth or place I know
  No power I desire,
But while upon this earth I stop
  Contented I should be
Could I bawl out the traffic cop
  The way he bawls out me!

WHY GIVE UP

I have received a very pitiful letter from a woman out west.

She has had a hard time all her life. She has raised three children, who do nothing for her support. When her husband died he was found to have been improvident and left her no money. She has gone stone deaf. On top of this she has just had a very serious operation in a hospital.

She can see no way out. Nothing presents itself to her but continued suffering, privation and dependence. She is about ready to give up. What should she do?

Why give up?

Of course it is difficult for any one in comparative health and well being to give advice to sufferers. One is always open to the imputation of being supercilious. It is always easy for the philosopher to bear the toothache patiently when some one else has it.

At the same time, and at the risk of being called hard names, I repeat the question, "Why give up?"

Suppose you do give up. Will life be any easier to bear?

It is just as well to look squarely at the alternative.

When some one told Tolstoy that many kind, virtuous, and honest people had a very hard time, he replied: "What about those that are unkind, not virtuous and dishonest? Look about you. Do the people like that whom you know have any easier time?"

The Church in the Middle Ages is often accused of being very cruel. But what about the people outside of the Church. Were they any less cruel?

Life may be hard at best, but it is easier and pleasanter all around if we keep a stout heart and do the best we can under the circumstances.

Whatever may be in store for this woman, whatever deprivation and suffering, we can be sure that she will get along better if she meets her fate bravely and smilingly and does not give way to despair.

Whatever happens to us we are better off if we buckle on and keep our chin up.

Despair is nothing but a bog, a quicksand, that engulfs the soul. It leaves us no spirit with which to fight.

When a Persian soldier told a Lacedemonian that in battle the Persian arrows would be so thick they would darken the sky, "then," said the Lacedemonian, "we shall fight in the shade."

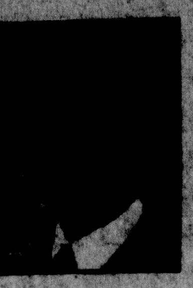
Thoughts On Modern Life



By Glenn Frank

SECRET SPRINGS OF LIFE

It is commonly believed and repeatedly said that we are living in a scientific age in which the discoveries and ideas of the great scientists filter down into the minds of the masses, finally coloring and controlling their general attitude, even though the masses themselves may never so much as learn the names, much less read the books, of the scientists.

It is commonly believed and repeatedly said that we may safely rely upon the reason alone to give meaning and progress to our civilization.

But I am not at all sure that the results of reason and scientific investigation ever really dominate the mind of an age until some impulse other than reason touches these results with light and invests them with warmth.

Even at this date it is only a very small minority of men who are directly or consciously worried by the issues of individual and social life that modern science has raised.

It is almost impossible for men who are absorbed in the professional pursuit of knowledge to realize that ideas move through the minds of vast populations with the slowness of a glacier, except in occasional and unusual times.

The majority of men throughout the United States are living their lives and thinking about themselves and their universe as if Darwin had never given us a new biology or Copernicus a new astronomy.

The great world-changing ideas of modern science are still the stock-in-trade of a limited few.

Men will not chart their direction or keep their bearings accurately except by rigidly realistic reasoning; but they may never set out bravely for far goals unless some impulse besides cold reason moves them.

Walter Rathenau, late head of the General Electric of Germany, was an able business man and a very wise observer of the trends of public affairs. A while before his death he wrote the following lines: "We must never forget that it is feeling which initiates the movement of institutions . . . the world movement is guided by the sentiment, as the hands of the watch obey the impulsion of the spring. The wheelwork is driven by the sentiment, not conversely; and no premature moving on of the hands can influence the machinery."

Most of the writing on public affairs at the present time comes from the pens of either cynics or sentimentalists, either from the smart set or the sweet set; we need more men, like Walter Rathenau, who belong to neither of these sets, but who do realize that neither sheer reason nor sheer sentiment is able alone to guide the age, men in whom there is a cross-fertilization of intellect and spirit.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

TOO MANY WORDS

"I don't want to go to school," said Jean, her eyes filled with tears.

"What's the matter?"

"I don't like that teacher."

"Jean, I'm ashamed of you. That's a fine teacher. Why don't you like her?"

"She makes my head ache."

"How? What does she do to make your head ache? It's more likely you give her a headache."

"No, I don't. I don't holler all day long like she does."

And that was true. Some perfectly fine teachers think that a good shout will fell the walls of the pupils' ignorance and round and round they march uttering blast after blast, the long day through. They drown the children with words and their accompanying noise.

If a teacher could have someone take down her lesson just as she gives it, if for one day she could have a stenographer follow her about to record her words from opening session to close of school for one day, I believe she would be astonished at the floods of eloquence of which she was guilty.

The usual teacher, and that includes the men as well and the women, allow the pupils very little margin for speech. The whole period is used by the instructor. It is his voice, his word, his explanation that you hear. Rarely will you hear the child's voice and when it comes it comes haltingly, a word now and then thrown like a chip on the raging torrent of the teacher's voice.

You know hearing someone talk, trying to listen and trying to LEARN through listening, is one of the most fatiguing processes children can experience. After an hour of it they are fatigued beyond expression and after a day of it they are reduced to tears or revolt.

The talking flood is not confined to the schools. The homes do their own share. "For pity's sake, Mary, let the boy alone. You've done nothing but talk at him and to him since he came in. Let him alone."

"But how'll he know if I don't tell him?"

"He might find out for himself if you gave him half a chance," said grandmother.

Give him a chance for his life. Set aside a day or a period a day, if you can do no other way, and determine that during that time the children have the right of way. They are to talk and you are to listen.

You will have a rested feeling and the children will have an inspired feeling, the feeling that comes from the release of the cramped creative spirit. Do try it.

Which May or May Not Be in Accord With the Views of The Register

By Horace McPhee

HERE'S A SIGN YOU MAY BELIEVE IN—In an era when hectic electric signs blazon every boulevard—

When chicken dinners and hot dogs line the highways with glitter and glare—

When nightfall turns every street of down town into a display that rivals the illuminations of Aladdin's fabled garden of jewels—.

There is something refreshingly simple about the modest night sign that Fullerton uses to proclaim its identity.

If we admit that the main purpose of a town's sign is to tell the name of the town—not to impress the visitor with chromatic pyrotechnics—then the city of Fullerton rates 100 per cent.

Across the main traveled arteries leading into our neighbor to the north, the simple word "Fullerton," not large, but stringingly plain, extends well across the road before the motorist reaches the city.

Fullerton's night sign won't knock you dead.

But it will tell you, unmistakably, where you are headed for.

POSSIBILITIES REMAIN FOR ROMANOFF ROMANCES—A considerable library of highly romantic tales could be accumulated by any one who wished to collect only the stories that arise from time to time pertaining to the "authentic" daughters of Nicholas Romanoff, late Czar of Russia.

The newest story of a discovery of one of the daughters of the czar comes from Nice. It is that of Olga, the eldest daughter of the [illegible] and tells of her having lived in that city, in retirement and the direst poverty.

While historic accounts from reliable sources tell of the execution of the czar, his wife, his four daughters and one son, in 1916, these rumors of daughters who escaped from the revolution continue to crop up and make promising material for the people who write romance.

Novelists, playwrights, scenarists and newspaper columnists will never run short of subjects for imaginative writing so long as the rumors of the house of Romanoff survive.

"The movement to suppress war and other public affairs occupied the state board of the California Federation of Women's clubs, called together here recently by the state president."

Some way or other there would appear to be a mistake in this. To suppress war would be an excellent accomplishment, but at least some "other public affairs" should be allowed to go on, should, in fact, be encouraged.

SOLUTION FOR BEACH PARKING BEING SOUGHT

In the opinion of Capt. T. W. Sheffield, manager of the Corona Del Mar pavilion, the ever increasing automobile traffic on the ocean front at Corona Del Mar calls for immediate solution of the problem as to the wisest and best parking system for residents, property owners and the general public who travel from afar to admire the wonderful scenic setting of this panoramic section of Orange county.

Expressing the belief that action of the park board of Newport Beach in prohibiting parking on the ocean side of the boulevard was perhaps timely, because, in a measure, it minimizes the destruction of the somewhat limited park area adjacent to the bluff, Capt. Sheffield said that if the city council finally adopts an ordinance covering the situation, there are three aspects that should be given consideration. Commenting on these, he said the first point is whether or not the ordinance will prevent damage to the shrubbery, grass and trees in the park area.

"We always will have vandals with us and I am inclined to believe that in their effort to get a closer view of the ocean, unthinking people will cross over the grass and trample down the shrubs unless a fence is built along the front of the entire park system," Sheffield said.

The pavilion manager then raises the point as to whether there will be parking space sufficient with parking limited to one side of the street, and at the same time protect owners who may want to park in front of their own homes.

"It is reasonable to expect the congestion in the season of 1929 will increase at least 50 per cent over what it was the past season, and for this reason it is going to be necessary for the council to work out a practical scheme that will meet these conditions," Sheffield commented.

Commenting on the suggestion to him, that arrangements be made for a parking zone on the beach, the Corona Del Mar man said that in his opinion it is somewhat unreasonable to expect an owner to consent to this treatment of valuable property. In addition, he said, utilization of beach land for the purpose of parking would penalize

COMMUNITY PLAYERS SHOWN NEW NASH AUTOMOBILE

A mingling of the dramatic life of Orange county twenty years ago and that of today, is suggested in three pictures where Carl Ward, salesman for the Nash-Eib agency, is shown at the former home of Madame Helena Modjeska, famous tragedienne of a generation ago, explaining the finer points of the beautiful new Ambassador model Nash sedan to two exponents of modern drama, Gladys Simpson Shafer and Lois Sweet Le Bard, Santa Ana Community Players. In the upper picture, Mrs. Le Bard, who plays the ingenue role in the Community Play of the season, "Mr. Pin Passes By," is shown on the left of the salesman, and Mrs. Shafer, who takes the feminine lead in the play, is one the right, while Ward explains the Bijur lubricating system, a feature of Nash cars.

HEADLEY SAYS FAIR SEX TO SELL AUTOS

The time is not far distant when women will constitute at least half of the number of automobile salesmen, in the opinion of J. E. Headley, Oldsmobile dealer here.

"It is the women who are buying automobiles today," says Headley. "Everyone knows that as the American woman began to decide what kind of a car the family should own, the manufacturer started to devote more attention to color and style.

"It was not many years ago that men were the leading salesmen in women's ready-to-wear stores, but those positions have been taken by women. A similar change is due in the automobile business.

"I am sure a woman will find out quicker than a man just what color or particular style of automobile a woman customer desires. They are more difficult to sell than men, because they are more particular about little things.

"COWBOY" ARTIST REO ENTHUSIAST

According to Joe Finley, Reo distributor in Santa Ana, J. Clinton Shepherd, often called the "Cow boy" artist, frequently is seen at the wheel of a Reo Wolverine sedan. When not on horseback he drives, anr his is a familiar face an the highways and byways about Westport, Connecticut. Riding or driving are practically the only relaxations that Shepherd allows himself after hours of grilling work in the studio.

Shepherd has an unusual back ground for his present profession, which accounts in no smoll measure for the convincing quality of his achievements. For ten yeors, as a cowpuncher, he roamed the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming and Montana, and roped sattle with the best of them. Being a clase observer of nature, particularly animal nature, thae experience now holds him on good stear.

MARMON EIGHT TRIUMPHS IN FOREIGN LANDS

Marmon straight-eights, in competition with a number of other makes of American and European cars, won first prizes in official tests of stock car acceleration and endurance conducted by automobile clubs in Guatemala and Holland, according to word received by Frank Hammett, who represents the Marmon here.

"Because acceleration and endurance are two of the qualities most desired in a present day automobile, this double victory is particularly significant since official supervision of the tests and sanction of the results present evidence that Marmon engineers have perfected the performance of Marmon straight-eights to a remarkable degree," teh dealer commented.

"The acceleration test was conducted in Guatemala City by the Guatemala Touring club. It was run over a course 700 meters, or less than half a mile, from a standing start. The winning car was a straight-eight Marmon 78 four-passenger speedster driven by Senor Juan Irigoyen, Marmon dealer in Guatemala, who covered the distance in 34 3-5 seconds at a naverage speed of 43 miles an hour. To attain this average it was necessary to reach a top speed of more than 80 miles an hour near the end of the short course.

"In winning the race, which is an annual affair, Senor Irigoyen won a second leg on the municipal trophy to be permanently awarded by the Guatemala Touring club to the car which is victorious in the race on three different occasions. A Marmon straight-eight won the first race a year ago and another victory will insure ownership of teh trophy.

"In another race on the same day, Senora Sara Irigoyen, wife of the Marmon dealer, drove the same Marmon 78 speedster to victory in a match race over the same course against a man at the wheel of another American car. Senora Irigoyen covered the 700 meters in 35 seconds, or only one-fifth of a second slower than the winning time scored by her husband in the mai nevent."

LOCAL PLAYERS INTERESTED IN LATEST NASH

Gladys Simpson Shafer and Lois Sweet Le Bard, Santa Ana Community Players, today had demonstrated to Carl Ward, salesman with the Nash-Eib Motor company,, that they are as keenly interested in modern automobiles as they are in modern plays, for they were guests this week of Ward on a short demonstration trip in a Nash Ambassador.

Declaring that in this model motor craft is found at its very finest, Ward pointed to the rear seats secluded by teh setriking design of the brougham-type rear quarters and upholstering of the interior in the choicest gray velvet mohair; the deeply upholstered arms rests at either side of the rear seat, with folding arm rests in the center; seat cushions pleated and buttoned; the trim in solid walnut, with ivory inlay, and the interior metal ware of satin silver of an exclusive new design. The oversize salon trunk on the rear was of special interest.

The salesman told his interested guests that the Ambassador is built on the Advance Six chassis and that the motor is of the high compression variety with seven main bearings, invar steel struck bohnalite pistons and light connecting rods and other reciprocating parts. The car has a 130-inch wheel base and is equipped with the Bijur centralized chassis lubricating system. The wire wheel used on the car is what Nash terms his Regal equipment.

SIGNS PLACED ON HIGHWAYS SOUTH BORDER

Guilding the motorists in the hitherto little known territory below the international border, signposts of the Automobile Club of Southern California are now performing their friendly offices far down into the interior of the Mexican peninsula. Announcement was made yesterday by the club that its crews have completed signing the main road in Lower California south to El Mulege, a distance of 671 miles.

This Mexican highway, which practically is a continuation of the Pacific highway from Canada to the Mexican border. was charted by D. C. Rhodes, field engineer of the auto club, in a trip made last July with Governor Abelardo Rodriguez of Lower California and party, on the occasion of the opening of the road.

The highway is the first attempt to connect the northern and southern ends of the peninsula, the central portion of which is a forbidding stretch of several hundred miles of waterless and rock-ribbed terrain, difficult of negotiation. The road is not continued below Mulege.

Since the road was completed travel has increased greatly, and a recent survey of the upper end of the peninsula indicates a steady and growing influx of motorists from Southern California. The principal reason for this prediction is economic, although many motorists are planning to invade the little known region as tourists, in spite of the fact that the roads are not boulevards by any means and the trip is one to be attempted only by experienced drivers.

The bridge construction just south of Ripon on the inland route to San Francisco has been completed.

DESOTO PRODUCTION REACHES 500 DAILY

That production of the Chrysler-built new DeSoto six had reached nearly 500 cars a day by the end of September it was revealed here today by Paul Clark, dealer, from which it would appear that in less than two months after its announcement, the DeSoto six is beinf produced on a scale never before attained by any other company in the same space of time.

"The speed with which the production and sales of this new Chrysler product have been developed has certainly surprised the industry and the public," Clark said.

WILLYS KNIGHT STANDARD SIX SALES BOOSTED

The outstanding success of the Willys-Knight Stadard Six which was introduced by Willys-Overland less than six months ago with a public acceptance never before attained by a new Knight- engined cad, has increased the number of Willys-Knight owners more than 325,000, sales officials of the company said at Toledo this week.

This information was received here by J. W. Schwab, Dillys-Knight dealer.

"Selling in the lowest price field ever reached by Willys-Knight Six yet maintaining the same type of design, quality of materials and workmanship and high standard of performance characteristic of the higher priced Willys-Knight cars, the new Standard Six has been a materital factor in the company's present record breaking year," Schwab, declared.

"For years it was impossible to build a Willys-Knight Six in a lower price range. However, various manufacturing economies that have been effected by the Toledo manufacturer in the various Willys-Overland plants in America and Canada, enabled the company to introduce the Standard Six, powered by a Willys-Knight sleeve valve engine, at the lowest price in the company's 20-year history."

NEW OAKLAND IS 'DIFFERENT,' CLAIMS DEALER

An entire new line of Oakland All-American sixes, embodying style and performance features described as advances of the spectacular changes and improvements made in the first All-American, will go on display here in the very near future, it was announced today by William Goodrum, sales manager for Marble Motors, Inc., Santa Ana Oakland and Pontiac representative.

Goodrum declared that he was not at liberty to disclose details of the new models until the first public showing, but intimated that, according to plans and designs already received, the new Oakland will be distinctively original and different from any car now on the market.

The features of the first All-American, which proved so popular with motorists, will be retained, according to the sales manager, and combined with numerous new refinements in performance and body design representing many months of research and designing and many years of successful motor car construction.

Goodrum pointed out that into the new models have gone the cooperative efforts of Oakland and General Motors engineers, General Motors research laboratories, General Motors proving grounds experts and the Fisher Body corporation and added that the new All-American will hold especial and important significance because of the many exclusive features introduced by its manufacturers.

The Oakland company has, in the past, Goodrum said, introduced more exclusive improvements than any other motor car builder, among them being four-wheel brakes, Duco finish, harmonic balancer, G-M-R cylinder head, foot-controlled headlights, oil filter, air cleaner, fuel pump and cross-flow radiator, and the new models will include, in addition to these, many more improvements.

Widening operations are under way on Wilshire boulevard for 2½ miles between the Los Angeles Country club and the Sawtelle Soldier's home. The road is narrow in places and delays are required at times.

persons desiring relaxation from the grind of the cities.

Continuing, Sheffield said:

"The legal side of the question seems to have been overlooked entirely in discussions and in considerations given the project of elimination of parking on the ocean side of the street. Owners of the property have not been consulted. W. S. Sparr would not oppose anything that is good for the interests of Corona Del Mar, but common courtesy is due anyone who pays something like $40,00 annually in taxes for the main section of this particular property, and the whole question should be trashed out on the broadest possible lines. No one or two interests should be considered to the disadvantage of the majority. In this connection, it is worthy of recording that from close observation, the present council cannot be railroaded into adopting any one particular pet scheme without due consideration.

"The territory surrounding Newport bay and Corona Del Mar is growing rapidly. In that development every citizen should endeavor to promote in the broadest conception a fine community spirit by supporting any policy of the council, provided it gives the greatest good to the greatest number."

GREATEST DURANT FOURS ON DISPLAY HERE

With a host of refinements and improvements, better equipped, greater power and [illegible], more beautiful and distinctive than ever before, a new line of Durant motor cars, called the Greatest Durant Fours, were on exhibition today by B. E. Morthland, dealer at 600 West Fourth. Three models in the special line are shown below—the coupe cabriolet, the two-door sedan and the four-door sedan. They are fully equipped.

Today the Durant Motor company of California announces the 1929 Greatest Durant Four.

The new models are improved throughout over the former models, having new advanced body lines, brilliant body colors, roomy body interiors, and as in all Durant motor cars, perfect balance and unrivalled comfort and performance, states B. E. Morthland, local Durant dealer.

"For the first time in automotive history it is possible for buyers of cars in this price class to own an automobile with a body that is practically rattle-proof, squeak-proof and rumble-proof," Morthland said. "Constructed on the same principle as that used in the manufacture of many of America's finest motor car bodies, the bodies of the 1929 Greatest Durant Four models have 10 per cent more wood in them that the bodies of any cars of corresponding size, regardless of price.

MUCH INTEREST IS SHOWN OVER NEW FRANKLIN

"Persons closely associated with the automobile industry declare that never before has a single car in the space of less than three months established such a remarkable high standard of performance as the Franklin Airman." Said R. W. Townsend, Franklin agent here. In a series of three gruelling tests, each conducted under dif- piloted by Cannon Ball Baker, a member of the Franklin technical staff, demonstrated not only its speed, power and inbuilt stamina but established exclusively that the air-cooled motor is the ideal power plant.

"The latest achievement of a Franklin was its performance over the gruelling 12 1-3 miles to the summit of Pikes Peak. In this terrific test the Franklin negotiated the climb, with its [illegible] dangerous hairpin and switchback curves in 19 minutes, 25 1-5 seconds, officially timed by the A. A. A. This was in the Labor Day classic up the side of the famous mountain which rises to 14,109 feet above sea level. In this test the Franklin required no special cooling equipment, the air cooled power plant functioning perfectly every inch of the route.

"Just prior to the Pikes Peak climb a Franklin Airman set a new world's record in the climb up Lookout Mountain at Chattanooga, Tenn. The Franklin, officially timed, covered the 14.2 mile course to the crest of the mountain and return in 20 minutes, 52 seconds, breaking the former record by 2 minutes and 39 seconds.

HIGHWAYS ARE BUILT BETTER BUREAU SAYS

With the co-operation of state highway departments, 8,184 miles of Federal-aid highways were improved in the fiscal year 1927-28, and 2,014 miles that had been previously improved by federal aid were given surfaces of higher type, according to the bureau of public roads, United States Department of agriculture. This work was done at a total cost of $205,043,784, of which the federal government paid $88,056,984, or 43 per cent, and the states paid the balance.

Under supervision of the bureau, 281 miles of national forest roads were improved, bringing the total improved mileage of these roads to 3,775 miles. The national forest road system embraces, at present, a total of 13,911 miles.

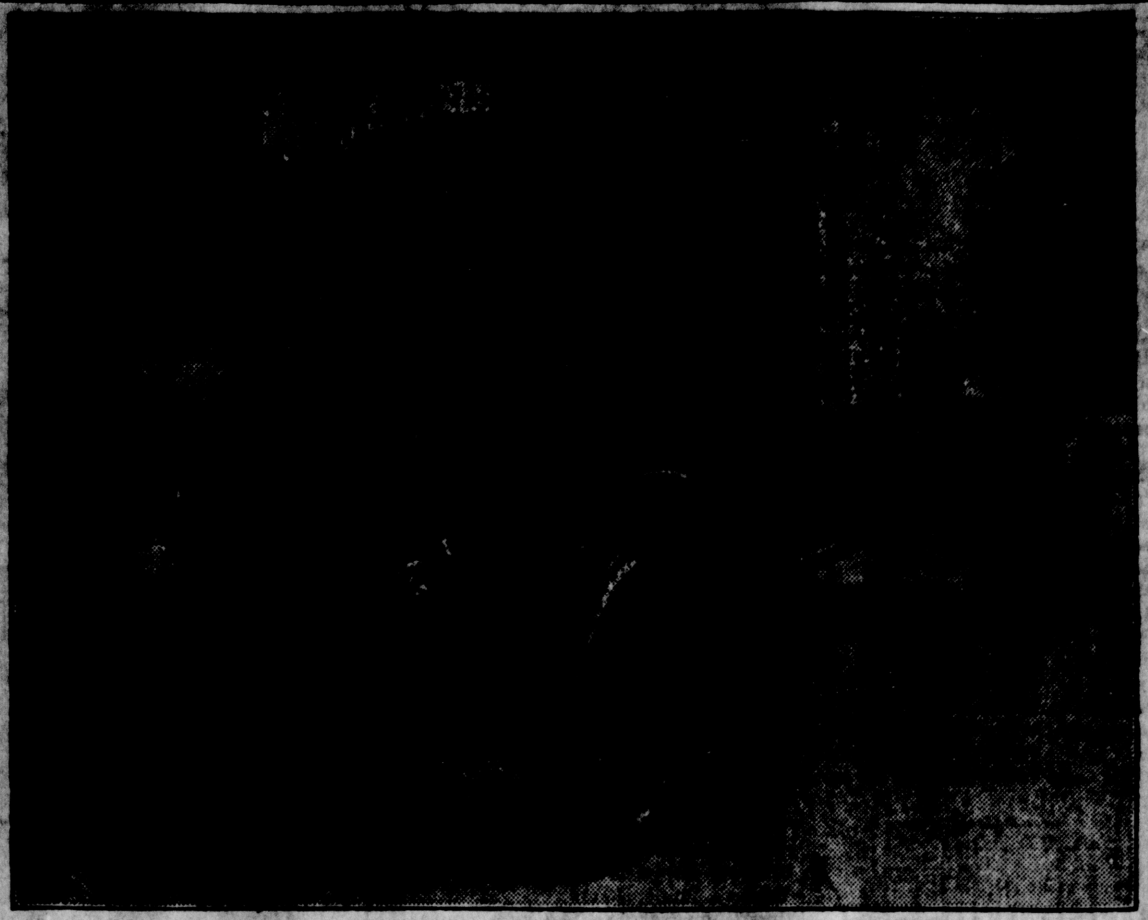
In the federal aid system, there are 187,753 miles of interstate and intercounty highways, of which, on June 30, 71.074 miles had been improved with Federal aid.

The 8,184 miles improved in 1928 include 3,183 miles of graded and drained earth roads; 844 miles of sand-clay; 1,855 miles of gravel; 92 miles of waterbound macadam; 484 miles of bituminous macadam; 136 miles of bituminous concrete; 2,533 miles of Portland cement concrete, and 43 miles paved with vitrified brick. There were 54 miles of bridges and approaches.

Federal-aid highways are the most heavily traveled in the country. Increased demands of a growing traffic are shown by the greater increases in the types more suitable for heavy traffic. The mileage of high types of pavements built, such as bituminous macadam, bituminous concrete, Portland cement concrete, and vitrified brick, increased 19 per cent in 1928, while the mileage of low types, such as waterbound macadam, gravel, sand-clay, and graded and drained increased about 9½ per cent.

NEW MORELAND TRUCK MODELS HERE

Here you see the Roadrunner model of the Moreland 1929 line, announced last week, a duplicate of which was received here a few days ago by W. W. Ross, dealer, and which was soon sold and delivered to the Truck and Speed Service company, Brea. The Roadrunner, fast utility truck, has new hood lines, deeper and stronger frame, and coupe-type cab among other mechanical improvements.



Good duck hunting is reported at Sweetwater Lake, in San Diego county, according to the touring department of the National Automobile club. Certain portions of the lake are used exclusively for decoy and blind hunting, and anyone is permitted in this section in open boats after day light. The time for hunting at this lake is from one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sundown. Those wishing to hunt on this like should be at the dam not later than 4:30 in the morning—Sundays and holidays only.

HALEY RETURNS FROM TRIP TO VISIT MOTHER

With 4000 miles registered on the speedometer of his Chrysler 72 coupe, O. A. Haley, Chrysler dealer here, was home today from a hurried trip to Rice, Wash., where he visited his mother for a brief period. The dealer was accompanied on his trip by Jack Bear, a salesman with his organization.

Haley was at the ranch home of his mother for four days and during that time shot a couple of coyotes and several Chinese pheasants.

"Had all the pheasant and chicken we could eat," Haley said in commenting on his visit to his mother.

Pointing out that he was on the road only 10 days, Haley said that his coupe averaged 400 miles a day, and that the car performed with excellent satisfaction.

Local Distributor to Have New Models On Display All of Next Week

W. W. Ross, distributor here for the Moreland, today annaunced that he would have on exhibition at his agency headquarters, 24 East First street, next week all models of the 1929 line of the Moreland Motor Truck company.

"Driver comfort has been given careful attention in the designs of the new 1929 Moreland trucks," Ross said. "Because operators have learned that the comfortable driver is the best worker, the company has improved the new models so as to insure coupe comfort for the man in the cab.

"The new Roadrunner incorporates every proved advancement that has been made in the motor truck industry in the past year. The 1929 trucks represent Moreland's greatest achievement in building trucks particularly adapted to western work.

"Cab lines of the new models have been improved, and the hood and radiator lines have been refined and beautified.

"Deep cushions, convenient window adjusters, and perfect vision windshields contribute to the comfort of these up-to-date trucks.

"Moreland engineering has endeavored to remove the physical strain from driving. The operator of the new Roadrunner can finish his run as fresh as thouh he had driven a coupe.

"The mechanical improvements on the new Moreland models have been made only after exhaustive tests. Every model is powered by a six-cylinder motor—a motor made xpressly for the truck.

"The new trucks are equipped with improved transmission. The smalle rmodels have four speeds forward and one reverse, while the larger trucks are equipped with multi-speed transmission.

"Seven bearing crankshafts are incorporated in the six-cylinder motors, providing smooth, powerful, vibrationless performance. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes are standard equipment.

"Auxiliary springs supplement the flexible Moreland springs when heavy loads are carried. A stronger, heavier frame has been designed for the 1929 trucks.

"Only those changes which have been proved by severe tests have been made in the Moreland line."

EACH day more and more of the millions who count the cost of motoring recognize the obvious superiorities of the new Plymouth in full size, style and performance.

But this is only to be expected in the Plymouth, as in every Chrysler-built car, because of the unique Chrysler principle of Standardized Quality in scientific engineering and precision manufacturing under which these cars are built.

Such features as the "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine, using any gasoline, slender profile radiator, arched windows, "air-wing" fenders, internal expanding hydraulic squeakless 4-wheel brakes—are convincing naked-eye evidence of Plymouth's greater dollar-for-dollar value in the lowest-priced field.

See it. Drive it yourself. You are then bound to know the reasons for the spectacular demand which has already necessitated a doubling of the Plymouth production capacity to meet mounting sales.

LUXURY, CLASS EVERYWHERE IN NEW CADILLACS

Cadillac long has reigned supreme for luxury in motoring and LaSalle inherited its fame when that car was introduced, according to Otto Haan, president, and Mark B. Lacy, sales manager of the Cadillac Garage company, Orange county Cadillac and LaSalle representatives, but they pointed out today the many improvements in coachcraft incorporated in the new Cadillacs and LaSalles.

Heavier sills and added reinforcements about the dash have strengthened the construction, Lacy revealed, and a coating of anti-squeak material wherever wood and metal comes into contact, has eliminated all possibility of such disturbance.

A comfort feature which is especially welcomed by women drivers, according to Lacy, is the adjustable seat arrangement. Front seats easily can be placed in the position most comfortable to the driver, the entire seat moving as a unit into position.

Door panels and the backs of front seats in the closed models are trimmed with costly broadlace, greatly enriching the interior. Hardware is finished in oxidized silver and mounted upon plates inset with Catalin stone in various pleasing colors. The driving controls are finished in bright nickel and the rear seat lights are of torchere type.

In the rear doors of the two-passenger coupe and in the rear quarters of the town sedan ash receivers of new type are set into the door panels. Cowl ventilators are situated in the side panels just above the floor boards and have a complete installation of weather stripping to prevent draughts.

Deep and roomy cushions and upholstery are done in pleasing shades and the comfortable arm rests fund in the closed models include recesses for small parcels.

INSURANCE ON LIABILITY IS TALK SUBJECT

Thos. P. Henry, of Detroit, Mich., president of the American Automobile association, in an address before the International Association of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., outlined the policy of the national motoring federation on the problem of compulsory automobile liability insurance.

The A. A. A. president told the gathering that the difficulties surrounding the efforts of Massachusetts to pioneer this law have more than ever served to caution the rest of the country against precipitate action.

"Many of the dangers and the pitfalls predicted by the opponents of compulsory automobile liability insurance in its radical form, appear to be [illegible] demonstrated in the [illegible] of Massachusetts in the first 20 months of the law," Mr. Henry declared.

At the same time that he made this declaration, the A. A. A. executive announced that motor club leaders from all parts of the United States will convene in Washington under auspices of the American Automobile association within the next week or 10 days to formulate definite recommendations.

"It is hoped," he said, "to have a model law drafted for the guidance of motor clubs in handling the problem before state legislatures. Our efforts shall be directed toward the elimination of the reckless driver, toward assuring compensation for accident victims along equitable principles, and to avoiding the pitfalls of dangerous experiments along drastic and wholesale lines. However, any plan of insurance must be kept out of politics."

Mr. Henry said that with less than 20 months of experience with compulsory insurance, car owners of Massachusetts are confronted with the possibility of rates that are almost doubled in some instances; that the number of accidents have increased; that an investigation of fraudulent claims involving the ambulance-chasing types in the legal and medical professionals is under way; that insurance companies are refusing to write policies at the existing rates and are retiring from the fray.

WIRE WHEELS ARE FEATURE OF NEW FORD

"Ever since the steel spoke wheel was introduced by Ford, its novelty and efficiency have attracted the attention of the entire wheel-making industry," said Geo. Dunton, Ford-Lincoln agent. "It marked a radical departure in both the design and manufacture of wheels.

"This was accomplished through welding into one piece the 110 pieces usually found in the 'wire' wheel.

"In making the Model A wheel, the first important process is the manufacture of the rim. This part serves both as a rim for holding the tire and as a felloe band to bind the wheel. A strip of metal known as 'band stock' with a broad level edge is cut off in lengths equal to the circumference of the rim. The two ends are joined to form a circle and welded together. The shell is then pressed between dies to form a bead along the edges, and between the beads a valley is grooved by means of rollers.

"Holes are punched for valve stems, and the rim is made ready to receive its spokes, thirty in number. The spokes are introduced to the rim in groups of ten. On the larger portion of the hub, which is on the inside or next the car, 20 shor tspokes are securely welded, while 10 longer spokes join the outer hub portion.

"The wheel is held to the hub by five cone-faced acorn nuts. The shape of these nuts minimizes the danger of their loosening, and, in addition, the layout of the hub and hub shell is such that the nuts are under constant tension when seated.

"A most important feature of the design of the wheel is that it is driven through its attachment. If the attachment bolts are tight, there is no chance for lost motion or 'shucking' under the load."

HEAVY METAL IS USED FOR OLDS FENDERS

"When an automobile owner endeavors to straighten a fender bent or dented in a collision he is apt to wonder how such heavy and resisting sheet steel, as is used for fenders in the better automobiles, ever was formed in such smooth, graceful curves." Said J. H. [illegible], Oldsmobile agent here.

"It requires the largest and heaviest machinery in an automobile factory to accomplish this work, according to Oldsmobile engineers who explain the various processes in the manufacture and finish of automobile fenders.

"Giant presses mold the heavy steel fenders used on Oldsmobiles as easily as a housewife cuts dough for cookies. An oblong sheet of steel is laid upon the under die of one of these presses and a lever is thrown. The upper die closes down, pressing the steel between the two die faces with its own ponderous weight and the added power of large electric motors. The combined pressure exerted is 265 tons. When the upper die raises the steel has been changed to a perfectly formed fender with the superfluous metal neatly trimmed from the edges.

"All other sheet metal parts are simadily formed 90$.. SHRDL H similarly formed, including radiator shells, rear axle cover plate, fender skirts, step housings and lamp brackets."

"Where two sheet metal parts ahe joined together it is the prastice in the Oldsmobile factories to use electric welding for this purpose. In some operations an electric welder which forms a cantinuous seam, and which is a recent industrial development, is used. Electric welding fuses the metals into one solid piece.

"The finishing of the full crown Oldsmobile fenders is typical of the processes used on the various enameled sheet metal parts.

Sepulveda canyon is reached from Beverly boulevard at a point 3.3 miles west of Beverly Hills hotel. A narrow rough and dusty road extends 3.1 miles to a locked gate.

On the road from Buellton to Lompoc a bridge is out just east of Lompoc, necessitating a dirt detour. This will be in effect for ten days.

Protect Yourself and Your Family with Crystal-Clear Non-Shatterable
Security-Plate Glass

Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass—an actual demonstration with driver at wheel. A regulation American League baseball thrown with all his strength by a boy seven feet from the car failed to shatter the window.

IN THE new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods there are revolutionary new safety features of vital importance in this day of high speed and congested streets and highways. Unquestionably, they make these cars the safest in the world.

There is no hazard of flying glass in case of accident. For all doors, windows and windshields are equipped with Cadillac-La Salle crystal-clear non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass.

What does Security-Plate Glass mean?

It means that if the glass in a windshield, door or window of a new Cadillac or La Salle is struck by ball, stick or stone, or if one of these cars is in a collision, there is no danger of flying glass fragments. In other words, security-plate glass means greater protection for you and your family. Thus the subconscious fear of injury is removed—you ride or drive with your mind at ease.

But security-plate glass is by no means the only new safety feature in the new Cadillacs and La Salles. There are the new [illegible] Duplex-Mechanical four-wheel brakes. [illegible] action, [illegible] effort on the part of the driver.

And there is the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift transmission—a remarkable device that enables one to shift gears easily, instantly, without clashing, and that adds greatly to getaway in traffic. You would gladly have paid extra for these new safety features in your present car could you have obtained them. But they are found only in the new Cadillacs and La Salles—and there is no extra charge for them.

LA SALLE [illegible]

The new La Salle is priced from $[illegible] to $[illegible], the new Cadillac from $[illegible] to $[illegible], all prices f. o. b. Detroit. The General Motors Time Payment Plan is a convenient way for you to enjoy all that Cadillac and La Salle offer, while you pay for the cars out of income.

NEW DICTATOR ROYAL PROVES POPULAR AUTO

One of the most popular of the new Studebaker models introduced this summer is the Dictator Royal Victoria for four. This model has won wide-spread favor with drivers who like the smartness and intimacy of a close coupled enclosed car.

"The new Dictator Royal Victoria is a particularly appropriate car for both business and social usage," says H. D. Riley, Studebaker-Erskine dealer here. "It appeals especially to women who desire a smart personal car for shopping, sports, or social occasions.

"For this reason Studebaker designers devoted unusual care to the development of comfortable and convenient seating arrangements. The driver's seat is a high backed chair, deeply cushioned and shaped to give the utmost comfort. As in other Studebaker models, the steering wheel can be adjusted to individual preference. The wide rear seat is also scientifically shaped for comfort, and accommodates two passengers. For the occasional fourth passenger there is a thickly cushioned seat which, when not in use, folds completely out of the way at the driver's right.

"Teh interior is upholstered in rich mohair, and is provided with many conveniences. There is a large parcel compartment behind the driver's seat, and a locked luggage compartment under the rear deck. Comfortable arm rests flank the rear seat. The fittings include a recessed ash receiver and Butler finished interior hardware with a fine lined design."

HUPP COMPANY ROUNDING OUT TWENTY YEARS

Rolling up a new all-time September production and shipment record, the Hupp Motor Car corporation has rounded out the twentieth year of its business, according to Wilbur Getty, Hupmobile dealer, here.

"Back in 1908 a small group of Detroit men formed what was known as the Hupp Motor Car company, to build and market a small runabout, as it was called in those days," Getty said.

"In its first year's operation the total production was 1618 cars.

"In 1928, the twentieth year of the company's existence, there have been individual weeks in which that first year's production was surpassed.

Announcement on October 1st showed that September, 1928, was the eighth consecutive month in which shipments exceeded any corresponding period of the company's history, reaching a total of 6,536 cars. The number was 65 per cent greater than in any previous September and 166 per cent greater than in September, 1927.

In the first nine months of 1928, shipments were 56, 992 cars, a figure not only 91 per cent more than the shipments for the first nine months of last year but actually 38 per cent more than the shipments for the entire year of 1927.

Hupmobile growth in factory area and facilities has been as striking as in production. In 1908 the company's operations started in a small group of rented buildings on Bellevue avenue, Detroit. Today its factories over 20 acres of ground with over 1,500,000 square feet of floor space and with additional units under construction. It has also its own axle plant and heat treatin plants at Jackson, Mich."

AUTOISTS ARE SWINDLED BY POOR MEASURE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—Urging the importance of administrative machinery in all states for the enforcement of weights and measures laws, the American Automobile association declared today that the los sto car owners of the country at the hands of "gyp" operators of gasoline pumps is conservatively estimated at $20,000,000 a year.

The statement of the national motoring body, it was said, is based on an analysis of a check-up made by affiliated A. A. A. motor clubs and by civic authorities at widely separated points throughout the country.

"This estimate of loss to the car owners through dishonest vendors of motor fuel," said the statement, "is in all probability an underestimate rather than an overestimate. The inadequacy of enforcement machinery is at the root of the evil and in order that this may be corrected, we have prepared as the basis of action by our clubs, an analysis of the situation as regards weights and measures laws and the enforcement thereof in all states."

The national motoring body pointed out, however, that the existing conditions should not be attributed to the responsible oil companies or station owners ,as it has been found that they are as anxious as the public to eliminate the dishonest operators, and the petty thieves who flourish in the ranks of pump attendants.

The Mill Creek road to Big Bear lake which was closed temporarily due to forest fires, is now open, according to latest information received from the touring department of the National Automobile club. All the forest fires in the San Bernardino mountain district are now under control.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

IMPROVED COLD WEATHER PERFORMANCE Resulting from the

CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR

—a Successful Six now winning Even Greater Success

The cross-flow radiators in the cooling systems of the Pontiac Six and the Oakland All-American Six reduce to a minimum losses of water and alcohol. An automatic thermostat prevents water circulation until the engine reaches correct operating temperature. As a consequence the engine warms up quickly and less choking is needed, reducing dilution of crankcase oil.

Because of the protection the cross-flow radiator provides against losses of water and alcohol, the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six require less attention in winter than other cars. This is only one of the many advancements which only the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six provide.

EALTY SURVEY DVOCATED IN EW BOOKLET

Cities through their real estate ards may systematically take in ntory of their real estate sup ly, both as to vacant and as to upied property. And, where this being done, in more than one e the city has averted threat d "boom" conditions, dispelled pularly exaggerated notions of r-building, stabilized real es e values, and made a more dy and stable market for real ate as a commodity, according the National Association of al Estate Boards.

How to make a real estate survey that will give an accurate picture of existing supply in all types of structures and property is detailed in a pamphlet which has just been issued by the association. The pamphlet points the way to more general use by cities everywhere of detailed periodic soundings of their real real estate market situation.

Findings of a recent inventory of the kind made by the Oak Park, Ill., Real Estate Board are included with the pamphlet as an illustration. The Oak Park survey, made by the board in co-operation with the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is, so far as known, the first attempt by a real estate board to make a complete classification of both occupied and unoccupied property of every type.

HISTORY OF STATE REALTY BODY CITED BY SECRETARY; SUBDIVISION LAWS OUTLINED

The history of the California Real Estate association was given by Glenn D. Willaman, secretary of the organization, at the annual convention of the associtien in Sacramento this week. Founded in 1895, the organization has a membership of 5000 realtors, Willaman said.

"The California Real Estate association was the only state association represented when the national body was founded and thus began the means 20 years ago for the California real estate dealer to partcipate in teh founding of the great federal circuit of boards and be the leader in the adoption of the code of ethics and the word realtor," Willaman declared. "California has ever since the year 1918, with the exception of two years, held the leadership in the number of boards and number of realtors in the National association and is the leader today among all the states, for California is the heaviest contributor to the National association and in many ways the richest beneficiary of its work.

"That the work of the association is of tremendous scope, affecting property interests and owners generally as well as the agents, is shown by the analysis of its departmentalizing work, which shows divisions or committees actively functioning in more than 40 different lines of real estate advancement.

"The association has always sponsored constructive legislation for the protection of property interests and teh advancement of the real estate business. There is now being considered an advisory board to co-operate officially with the state real estate department and to be made up of real estate men representative of the state and of the business."

Discussing proposed subdivision amendments to the present real estate license act, Stephen Barnson, state real estate commissioner, in addressing the homebuilders' and subdividers' division conference of the association at Sacramento, said:

"Section 20A as at present constituted was created for the worthey purpose of safeguarding the public in its purchase of agricultural lands in this state. It provides for skilled and learned men to examine into every material phase of the project and to give the state certificate of approval to such of these subdivisions or projects as were deemed deserving of public confidence. It also allows the state to inspect such projects on its own volition and to make a public report thereon, in which event the owner cannot be called upon to defray the expenses of the survey.

"We believe that it is advisable to entirely eliminate the possibility of marketing agricultural subdivisions by virtue or force of a certificate of approval. But the public needs the protection of the state in advice and counsel concerning the basis and elementary pre-requisites of a successful undertaking. These lands are largely purchased on promise of crop profits, which the sellers contract to produce.

"Before any such a project is launched, it should submit its setup and plans of operation to an examination of the people, and the cost of making the survey and report should be borne by the owners. All such project promoters should be made to appreciate the responsibility which goes with the opportunity to make money for themselves."

OIL OPERATORS SEEKING DEEP SAND AT BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 12.—Secret tests for the deep oil sand believed to underlie Huntington Beach are being made by oil companies here, it was reported today. In the event that a rich new oil zone is discovered, a repetition of the big boom no wunder way at Santa Fe Springs is anticipated.

As a result of the demand for leases here, property values have jumped. Practically all of the companies in teh field have had their land scouts busy here securin property in anticipation of the great drilling rush.

The Standard Oil company's Thompson No. 9 on the Will Thompson ranch on the east side and the Harter project on Garfield street on the old Montebello lease are reported to be seeking the deep sand. It is also reported that the JQamison company will sink a deep test on the Linoleum company's property.

The Rio Grande Oil company is understood to have leased the 200-acre Farnsworth property adjoining the Thompson farm and the W. T. Newland tract of 150 acres.

CHEVROLET HAS ONE MILLIONTH AUTO IN FIELD

Marking, for the second time within eight months, the passing of a millionth milestone, the Chevrolet Motor company announced today that the five millionth Chevrolet was produced at the Flint, Michigan, plant, September 8. The four millionth car was built January 11, following quickly on the spectacular nation-wide reception accorded the present "Bigger and Better" model.

"The early arrival of the 5,000,000th car was in response to a continued demand that has kept Chevrolet plants on a day and night basis since the first of the year and has resulted in the setting of new monthly production records every month this year," said B. J. MacMullen, agent.

"Production for the year promises to go well beyond the million mark and will show more than a 1000 per cent increase over 1921 when 77,565 cars were built.

"The epochal five millionth car was a standard coach and came off the line amid the cheers of a vast army of assembled mechanics who gathered momentarily to see the record making model glide off the line under its own power. Exacting schedule requirements did not permit of any ceremonies and a few seconds later the five millionth car became history, when No. 5,000,001 was driven away."

DICTIONARIES TO RECOGNIZE REALTOR

The exclusive right of the association to use of the term to designate such a member of a member board has been upheld by 11 court decisions handed down in six states.

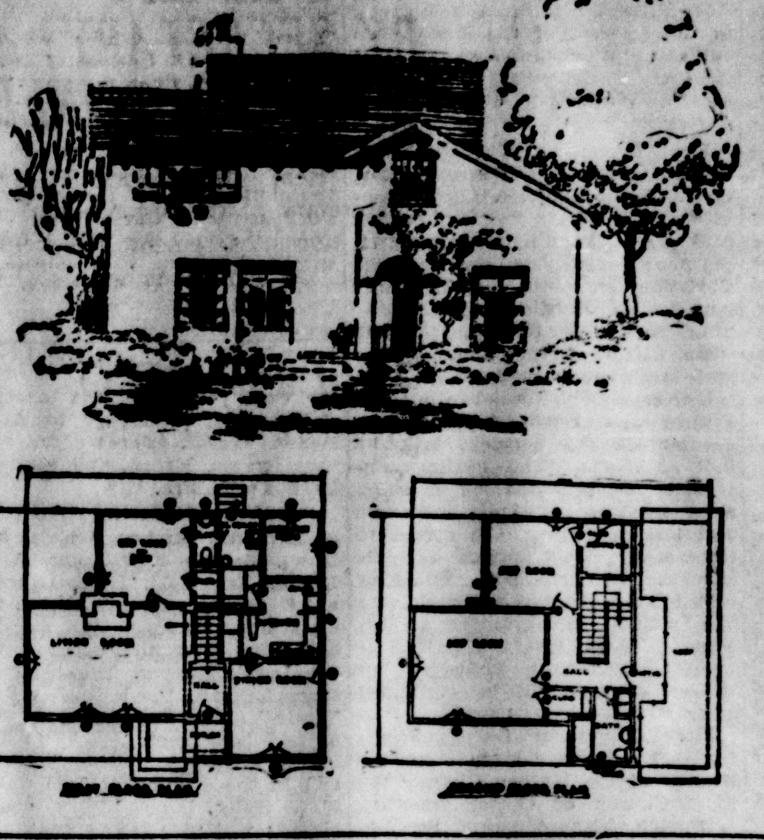
ENGLISH TYPE HOME WELL ARRANGED



This attractive seven-room English stucco house combines practical arrangement with beauty and design. It was designed by Pacific Ready-Cut Homes, Inc., especially for one of their customers. Plans are now available for the study of other prospective home builders. V. J. Anderson is local representative for the company.

The home is remarkably well arranged, all rooms but one having at least two exposures and many of them having three.

In front of the house is a terrace wall against which shrubbery may be planted, providing a very delightful secluded spot for ourdoor living.

There is a small entry way which opens into the large living room with studio window, fireplace, bookcases, etc. Dining room, breakfast room, kitchen and service porch are remarkably well arranged in relation to each other, being carefully thought out to save the steps of the house wife.

The position of the three bed rooms and two baths is also conducive to the saving of steps. One of the baths is very conveniently located between the service porch and a bedroom—an exceedingly convenient arrangement, especially where the family has a servant.

AUTOMOBILE IS PRIME FACTOR FOR HAPPINESS

Credit for the greatest stimulation of human activity during the last century if not for all modern time must be given the automobile, according to John R. Lee, general sales manager of Dodge Brothers.

"The motor car has been the prime contributing factor in our national welfare and prosperity—economically and psychologically—during the past 25 years," said Mr. Lee in a recent address in New York. "The industry has given profitable employment to 4,000,000 persons who form a large percentage of our total population when the customary four dependents of each employe are considered. The purchasing power of wages and salaries connected with the manufacture and sale of cars and associated industries, represents billions of dollars annually.

"When people have cars, they want to go, good, wide highways must be built, and roads lead to fellowship and understanding between communities and the wholesome recreation of outdoor travel. Russia would present a different picture today if 20,000,000 motor cars had been poured into that vast country. India, China, Africa and the Far East countries are slowly being aroused to teh advantages of the motor car. Remote districts have been pierced by automobiles. Bus lines have been started. The motor car is completely changing the habits and customs of most provincial people everywhere.

Lunch and Lecture daily except Monday and Saturday.

The future of Panorama Heigl[illegible] never looked brighter—with tract developments progressing rapidly to keep abreast of the volume of sales—and with the construction of homes of extraordinary magnitude—these are the things which are creating ever-increasing values in this distinctive subdivision project. It is such an outlook which provides a sound basis for the enthusiasm of those who have selected estates here, where they plan to build permanent homes.

There is still another outlook in Panorama Heights—a natural outlook—a fascinating panorama of the valley, the mountains and the sea—and this is thrown in as good measure with every estate.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

TEXT: I Cor. 13

Now there are diversities of gifts but the same spirit.

And there are differences of administration but the same Lord.

And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all.

But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal.

Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up.

Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

Rejoiceth not in inquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

Beareth all things; believeth all things; hopeth all things, endureth all things.

Charity never faileth; but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Oct. 14. Spiritual Gifts. I. Corinthians 12:4-7; 13:1-8; 13.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
(Editor of The Congregationalist)

If this lesson serves no other purpose it will do something excellent in placing one of the most beautiful gems of all literature and a distinctive spiritual message in its proper setting.

The 13th chapter of I Corinthians, Paul's great eulogy of love, has been almost always read and quoted as if it stood alone as a separate piece of Paul's writing. But it should never be forgotten that it stands as part of a great message to the Christians in the church at Corinth in two long letters, the longest of Paul's epistles that have come down to us.

Nor should it be forgotten that it stands as a distinctive part of Paul's whole writing and teaching, a revelation of the man himself and of his deepest experience and outlook on life.

Context Important

But what the lesson calls attention to particularly is that it stands in an immediate context. into chapters and verses is a modern device not a part of the original scriptures. This division, though it is exceedingly convenient and on the whole is fairly well justified by subject matter and thought, occasional tends to destroy the sequence.

Here, for instance, is part of a general discusison of the best gifts in life and the way of securing them. What is the thing that is most desirable? Paul found in this church at Corinth people who were arguing, if not quarreling, about these things.

Some who had gifts of speech or of "tongues" were disposed to despise other slower and more stolid brethren. Others who seemed to have gifts of healing were unduly proud of these gifts. Paul reminds us that the spirit of Christ has many manifestations and that though there are diverse gifts all that is good proceeds from this same spirit.

Place for Each Gift

There is a place in the church for apostles, teachers, prophets, for those who have gifts of healing, for those who have gifts of speech and powers of administration. It ought to be well known to every Bible reader that our division

tion. Perhaps it is worth while to remember that among these useful agencies in the church Paul lists "helps." That would seem to leave a place for every one, for if we cannot be apostles or preachers, or perform remarkable things, we can at least all be "helps."

Paul proceeds to say that all these gifts are earnestly to be desired and he admonishes the Corinthians "to covet earnestly the best gifts." But he says there is a more excellent way even than this and then in the 13th chapter he expounds the philosophy of love as the more excellent way to the highest gift of all.

It is in accordance with the argument that goes before that he compares the gift of love with the gift of prophecy and knowledge, and even of faith, and then in proof of what he says he proceeds to analyze love in its practical meaning and contents. Thus he comes to associate love with the highest perfection and permanence in the universe, and to assert the profound conclusion of the chapter that of the things that abide, faith, hope, love, "the greatest of these is love."

The Greene Murder Case

By S. S. Van Dine

"One never can tell. Tobias, remember, bequeathed his library to the Police Department. * * * Let's see with what tomes the old boy whiled away his inactive hours."

Vance took out his monocle and, polishing it carefully, fitted it to his eye. Then he turned to the nearest book-shelves.

I stepped forward and looked over his shoulder; and, as my glance ran over the dusty titles, I could scarcely suppress an exclamation of amazement. Here was one of the most complete and unusual private libraries of criminology in America—and I was familiar with many of the country's famous collections. Crime in all its phases—and ramifications was represented. old treatises, long out of print and now the delight of bibliophiles shouldered one another in compact tiers on Tobias Greene's shelves.

Nor were the subjects of these books limited to a narrow interpretation of criminology. All the various allied branches of the subject were represented. There were entire sections devoted to insanity and cretinism, social and criminal pathology, suicide, pauperism and philanthropy, prison reform, capital punishment, abnormal psychology, legal codes, the argot of the underworld and code-writing, toxicology and police methods. The volumes were in many languages—English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Swedish, Russian, Dutch and Latin.

Vance's eyes sparkled as he moved along the crowded shelves. Markham also was deeply interested; and Heath bending here and there toward a volume, registered an expression of bewildered curiosity.

"My word!" murmured Vance. "No wonder your department, Sergeant, was chosen as the future custodian of these tomes. What a collection! Extr'ordin'ry! Aren't you glad, Markham, you wangled the old lady into relinquishing the key—?"

Suddenly he stiffened and jerked his head toward the door, at the same time lifting his hand for silence. I, too, had heard a slight noise in the hall, like some one brushing against the woodwork of the door, but had thought nothing of it. For a few moments we waited tensely. But no further sound came to us, and Vance stepped quickly to the door and drew it open. The hall was empty. He stood on the threshold for a while listening. Then he closed the door and turned again to the room.

"I could have sworn some one was listening in the hall."

"I heard a rustle of some kind," Markham corroborated him. "I took it for granted it was Sproot or the maid passing by."

"Why should anybody's hanging round the hall worry us, Mr. Vance?" Heath asked.

"I really couldn't say, don't y' know. But it bothers me, nevertheless. If some one was at the door listening, it shows that our presence here has produced a state of anxiety in the person privy to the fact. It's possible, d' ye see, that some one is desirous of ascertaining what we have found out."

"Well, I can't see that we've found out enough to make anybody lose any sleep," mumbled Heath.

"You're so discouraging, Sergeant." Vance sighed and went to the book-shelves in front of the wicker reading chair. "There may be something in this section to cheer us. Let us see if there's a glad tiding or two written in the dust."

He struck match after match as he carefully inspected the tops of the books, beginning at the highest shelf and systematically scrutinising the volumes of each row. He had reached the second shelf from the floor when he bent over curiously and gave a second long look at two thick gray volumes. Then, putting out the match, he took the volumes to the window.

"The thing is quite mad," he remarked, after a brief examination. "These are the only books within arm's reach of the chair that have been handled recently. And what do you think they are? An two volume edition of Prof. Hans Gross' 'Handbuch fur Untersuchungsrichter als SEystem der Kriminalistik,' or—to claw the title loosely into the vulgate—'A Handbook on the Criminal Sciences for Examining Magistrates'."

He gave Markham a look of facetious reproach. "I say, you haven't, by any chance, been spending your nights in this library learning how to ballyrag suspects?"

Markham ignored his levity. He recognized the outward sign of Vance's uneasiness.

"The apparently irrelevant theme of the book," he returned, "might indicate a mere coincidence between the visits of some person to this room and the crimes committed in the house."

Vance made no answer. He thoughtfully returned the books to their place and ran over the remaining volumes of the bottom shelf. Suddenly he knelt down and struck another match.

"Here are several books out of place," I detected a subdued note of eagerness in his voice, "They belong in other sections; and they've been crowded in here a little out of alignment."

Moreover, they're innocent of dust * * * 'Pon my soul, Markham, here's a coincidence for your skeptical legal mind! Lend an ear to these titles: 'Poisons: Their Effects and Detection,' by Alexander Wynter Blyth, and 'Textbook of Medical Jurisprudence, Toxicology, and Public Health,' by John Glaister, professor of forensic medicine at the University of Glasgow. And here we have Friedrich Brugeelmann's 'Uber Hysterische Dammerzustande,' and Schwarzwald's 'Uber Hystero-Paralyse and Somnambulismus.'—I say! That's deuced queer. * * *

He rose and walked up and down agitatedly.

"No—no; absolutely not," he muttered. "It simply can't be * * * Why should Von Blon lie to us about her?"

We all knew what was in his mind. Even Heath sensed it at once, for, though he did not speak German, the titles of the two German books—especially the latter—needed no translation to be understood. Hysteria and twilight sleep! Hysterical paralysis and somnambulism! The gruesome and terrible implication in these two titles, and their possible relation to the sinister tragedies of the Greene mansion, sent a chill of horror over me.

Vance stopped his restless pacing and fixed a grave gaze on Markham.

"This thing gets deeper and deeper. Something unthinkable is going on here—come, let us get out of this polluted room. It has told us its gibbering, nightmarish story. And now we will have to interpret it—find some glimmer of sanity in its black suggestions. Sergeant, will you draw the curtains while I straighten these books? We'd best leave no evidence of our visit."

CHAPTER 28

Wednesday, December 1; 4:30 p. m.

When we returned to Mrs. Greene's room the old lady was apparently sleeping peacefully and we did not disturb her. Heath gave the key to Nurse O'Brien with instructions to replace it in the jewel case, and we went downstairs.

Although it was but a little past 4 o'clock, the early winter twilight had already descended. Sproot had not yet lighted the lamps, and the lower hall was in semidarkness. A ghostly atmosphere pervaded the house. Even the silence was oppressive, and seemed fraught with the spirit of combination. We went straight to the hall table where we had thrown our coats, eager to get out into the open air.

But we were not to shake the depressing influence of the old mansion so quickly. We had scarcely reached the table when there came a slight stirring of the portieres of the archway opposite to the drawing room, and a tense, whispered voice said:

"Mr. Vance—please!"

We turned, startled. There, just inside of the reception room, hiding behind the heavy draperies, stood Ada, her face a patch of ghastly white in the gathering gloom. With one finger placed on her lips for silence, she beckoned to us; and we stepped softly into the chill, unused room.

"There's something I must tell you," she said, in a half whisper, "something terrible! I was going to telephone you today, but I was afraid. * * * A fit of trembling seized her.

"Don't be frightened, Ada," Vance encouraged her soothingly. "In a few days all these awful things will be over. What have you to tell us?"

She made an effort to draw herself together, and when the tremor had passed she went on hesitantly.

"Last night—it was long after midnight—I woke, and felt hungry. So I got up, slipped on a wrap and stole downstairs. Cook always leaves something in the pantry for me. * * * "Again she [illegible] her haunted eyes [illegible] faces. "But when I [illegible] lower landing of the [illegible] a soft, shuffling sound [illegible] far back, near the library [illegible] heart was in my mouth, but I [illegible] myself look over the banister [illegible] just then—some one struck [illegible] match. * * *

Her trembling began afresh, [illegible] she clutched Vance's arm [illegible] both hands. I was afraid the [illegible] was going to faint, and I moved closer to her; but Vance's voice seemed to steady her.

"Who was it, Ada?"

She caught her breath and looked about her. Her face the picture of deadly fear. Then she leaned forward.

"It was mother! * * * And she was walking!"

The dread significance of this revelation chilled us all into silence. After a moment a choked whistle escaped Heath; and Markham threw back his head like a man shaking himself out of an encroaching spell of hypnosis. It was Vance who first recovered himself sufficiently to speak.

"Your mother was near the library door?"

"Could she, for instance, have been carrying a pair of galoshes?" he persisted.

"She might have been. I don't know. She had on her long Oriental shawl, and it fell down about her in folds. Maybe under the shawl. * * * Or she might have put them down when she struck the match. I only know I saw her moving slowly * * * there in the darkness."

Markham cleared his throat nervously.

"You say yourself it was dark in the hall last night, Miss Greene. Perhaps your fears got the better of you. Are you sure it might not have been Hemming or the cook?"

She brought her eyes back to Markham with sudden resentment.

HORTICULTURE JOBS OPEN IN FOREIGN LANDS

Excellent opportunities for positions abroad and for foreign experience are open to students trained in subtropical horticulture, according to H. E. Wahlberg, farm advisor of Orange county. The division of subtropical horticulture of the University of California reports that within the past few months it has been asked to recommend men for professional positions in subtropical horticulture in several foreign countries, scattered all the way from Palestine to Peru.

It reports difficulty in finding men who are properly trained for these positions, most of which require a working knowledge of either Spanish or French and some practical experience in addition to the professional training which is given by the college of agriculture.

"Most of the students are too anxious to get through and do not stay with us long enough to obtain the training most helpful for foreign work," says Prof. R. W. Hodgson of that division, and he advises that students interested in obtaining foreign experience in subtropical horticulture should by all means include Spanish in their program, as most of the opportunities are in Spanish-American countries. He also recommends that students preparing for work in foreign countries should plan to take advanced degrees, either the master of science degree or, preferably, the doctor of philosophy degree in horticulture.

During the past year requests for recommendations for men to fill positions have been received from Spain, Egypt, South Africa, Palestine, Turkey, Persia, India, Australia, Peru and Haiti.

LOWER INSURANCE RATES FOR GRAIN

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 13.—Preferential insurance rates for California grain when the crop is within regularly organized rural fire districts probably will be given within a short time, it was indicated at the department of agriculture here.

Actuaries and insurance rate makers are considering reductions which it will be possible to allow, according to word received by the governor's committee on fire hazards.

The committee is comprised of Directors Fred G. Stevenot, natural resources; B. B. Meek, public works, and George H. Hecke, agriculture. As a result of the work of this committee, many agencies are co-operating on methods of reducing fire hazards and increasing protection against grain losses by fire.

POTATO CROP IN IDAHO SHOWS DROP

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Oct. 13.—Present crop estimates at present indicate the 1928 Idaho potato crop will fall 2753 bushels under the last year's total, according to a report received here from J. H. Jacobson, statistician with the division of crop and livestock estimates of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Present prospects are for a crop of 20,627,000 bushels, according to the report. The indicated yield would be 180 bushels per acre, compared with 212 bushels last year.

GIRLS MANAGE LARGE FARM IN TURLOCK AREA

TURLOCK, Oct. 13.—If it were possible for John Greenleaf Whittier to pay a visit to the Austin ranch, six miles southwest of here, he might be able to write an even better poem than his famous pastoral masterpiece about the hay-pitching Maude Muller.

For here he would find three Maude Mullers, all possessing pep and muscle in proportions equal to that of the famous poet's favorite.

And besides pitching hay, these three maids, Violet, Lilly and May Austin, plow, harrow and hoe.

Is that all? Not by a jugful! They irrigate the land, care for 10 head of horses, raise 30 acres of alfalfa a year, grow and market 220 tons of melons, 160 tons of grapes and lesser quantities of fruits and vegetables.

And—oh yes! They mend harness and dig ditches; they repair windmills and other things. Every day they market 100 gallons of milk derived from 40 cows. Also they feed the chickens and attend to the chores. Aside from that they have little to do.

Their mother does the cooking and housework.

These three girls, the oldest, 19, and the youngest barely 16, manage the 100 acre ranch of their father, Leonard Austin, who was disabled in an accident four years ago.

When the day's work is over there is the radio to provide recreation—something Whittier's poetized country lass didn't dream of.

U. S. RECLAMATION SUPPORT IS URGED

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 13.—The opposition to reclamation makes it imperative for believers in this service to support it, and I am convinced that cessation of federal reclamation will prove a calamity not only to the west, but the nation, was the declaration of Elwood Mead, commissioner of the federal reclamation service at Washington on a visit here.

Reclamation work varies in different states, Mead stated. In California the value of land and water, and the combined development of irrigation and power, make it feasible for private capital to interest itself in this type of improvement, the director said.

Reports from field supervisors and district counsels regarding various western irrigation projects coupled with reports of engineers and of economic experts are now being gathered by the reclamation bureau, the director said. These will afford a real basis for formulating a national reclamation policy, Mead declared.

Complete utilization of present streams to lessen cost and difficulty of construction in the reclamation work now requires that other streams be developed to afford more feasible projects in the reclamation field, the director said.

The annual 4-H club convention at Davis will be held this year October 18, 19 and 20. Approximately 60 members and leaders will be invited to go from Orange county.

The convention convenes at 6:30 p. m. on Thursday and closes at 1 p. m. on Saturday. In addition to the usual type of program, each delegate will be given an opportunity to choose one of five major demonstrations, at which two hours will be spent in concentrated instruction. These five demonstrations will be in poultry, dairying, swine, field crops (including vegetables), and clothing. The usual program of 4-H club instruction, tours of the University farm, etc., will occupy the remainder of the time.

SHE'S PRIZE RANCHER

It isn't the prize chickens that make this picture as much as it's Miss Ernestine Driscoll, 16-year-old high school girl of Southern California. Miss Driscoll was chosen as the most representative girl rancher of that part of the state at the recent Los Angeles county fair. She can handle horses, cows, pigs and chickens, as well as agricultural implements, with ease and skill.

ICELESS CAR FOR COOLING FRUIT SHOWN

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 13.—An iceless "reefer," the latest development in railroad circles for shipping of perishable fruits and vegetables, was on display at Roseville this week.

The "reefer" or refrigerator car, is of standard car size, but instead of ice, used the principle now popular in iceless home refrigerators.

The car was cooled by a fuel known as purofax gas, and carried a shipment of frozen filet of haddock, consigned from Groton, Conn. It maintained an even temperature of 14 degrees above zero.

If the car proves practical, it will virtually revolutionize the shipping of perishable fruits from nearly every county in California, according to officials in charge of the car.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—It was just too bad for Harry M. Baker. He was aboard a liner, with his wife, bound for a vacation trip to Ireland. Then a deputy sheriff placed him under arrest by direction of Mrs. Viola Baker, his first wife, for non-payment of alimony and counsel fees. As a result the second Mrs. Baker went on to Ireland while Harry languished in jail.

STATE COTTON PRODUCTION AT HIGHEST POINT

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 13.—California's cotton crop is "looking up" with every indication of a record yield, according to R. E. Blair, assistant chief of the division of field crops, department of agriculture.

The only likelihood of failure is an early rain, damaging opened bolls, Blair said. Most of the bolls already have opened and a shortage of pickers seems to be the only thing between the growers and a satisfactory return on their investments.

California's crop is particularly early this year, Blair reported, with the northern Sacramento valley feeling particularly early maturity. Warm, dry weather has produced a good yield with prospects of continuing good climatic conditions making every prospect of prosperity in cotton growing centers.

This year's plantings are the largest in the history of California, and although considerable acreage has been turned to experimental growing, the average yield per acre should compare favorably with former bumper crops.

VEGETABLE AND FRUIT GAIN IN U. S. REVEALED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—Additional evidence of the remarkable expansion of the fruit and vegetable industry in the United States in recent years, due to steadily increasing population, the changing food habits of the American people, and the ability to buy products formerly considered luxuries, is presented in recent statistics compiled by the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture.

The bureau's figures on shipments of lettuce, for example, show an increase of nearly 13,000 cars in 1926 as compared with the year 1924; peaches an increase of nearly 20,000 cars; sweet potatoes about 7500 cars; apples 16,000 cars, and watermelons 10,000 cars. The figures on these and other products cover only rail and boat shipments, but there has been also a tremendous unmeasured expansion in shipments of many products by motor truck.

Development of new districts, improvement in transportation facilities and in the technique of preventing the deterioration of highly perishable products have made available the year round former seasonal products such as lettuce, celery, citrus and core fruits. Commercial areas for the production of these products have been established thousands of miles from leading consuming markets. More recently the motor truck has opened up possibilities for the development of similar specialized areas within overnight hauling distance of market centers, and the great expansion in motor truck transportation has made it necessary for the department of agriculture to study the situation for some method of measuring this movement.

The larger market outlet for fruits and vegetables has encouraged increased production with some danger of over expansion, say the bureau's economists, especially from speculative financing or production. Studies indicate that a supply of products considerably in excess of consumptive requirements often results in ruinously low returns to producers, without necessarily affecting retail prices in the same proportion.

The bureau's statistics on carlot shipments and unloads of important fruits and vegetables for the calendar years 1924-1926 have been published by the department of agriculture in statistical bulletin No. 23-S, "Carlot Shipments and Unloads of Important Fruits and Vegetables." This bulletin covers shipments of 16 important fruits and vegetables for the three-year period; shipments of 21 other commodities; total shipments of 37 commodities by states; carlot unloads of 16 commodities in 36 cities; carlot unloads in 36 cities by months, and total carlot shipments and unloads at 36 cities by states of origin.

BUMPER CROP OF U. S. CORN INDICATED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—How best to utilize the corn crop is a question confronting farmers and stockmen each year. In discussing the 1928 corn crop, which is expected to be about 2,981,000,000 bushels, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine pointed out that this bumper yield, if actually obtained, will be nearly six per cent above that for last year, which in turn was very close to the average of the preceding five years.

"Normally about 85 per cent of the corn crop is fed to domestic animals," Jardine stated, "but it is often advisable to vary the proportion, thereby preventing undue disturbance of either corn or livestock prices. In the economic machinery of agriculture the utilization of surplus crops by livestock can be made to act as a governor in maintaining smooth operation."

Booklet On Oranges Off Press

"Oranges" is the title of a new bulletin by H. R. Wellman and E. W. Braun of the University of California, which has just reached the farm advisor's office.

In this bulletin, seasonal movements of oranges in the United States, with particular reference to California and Florida, and the relation of orange shipments to the seasonal movements of other fresh fruits come in for discussion. The purchasing power of the grower's dollars which he receives from the sale of oranges is discussed. The purchasing power of the orange grower's dollars has been going up gradually.

This bulletin on oranges can be obtained from the farm advisor's office for the asking.

'TALKING COW' EXHIBITED AT MEMPHIS FAIR

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—A "talking cow," eight feet in height, moving her head, switching her tail, rolling her eyes, carrying on a conversation, and exposing some of her internal processes, greeted visitors at the opening of the exposition at Memphis, Tenn., today.

Big Bossy is a part of the United States department of agriculture exhibit at the exposition. The figure requires the constant attention of an operator manipulating the switches and strings that control the movable parts of the cow and those of the farmer with whom she discusses the merits of better feeding. At appropriate moments the spectators may look into her interior and watch her masticate, digest and assimilate.

The department's exhibit also includes 13 sections prepared by three bureaus engaged in dairy activities. Two of the exhibits allow the spectator to participate in the show by judging the merits of animals represented by photographs. One exhibit dealing with "Transmitting Abilities of Dairy Sires" shows 17 bulls.

CATTLE, HOGS ON INCREASE IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—A stimulus to increased production of hogs, cattle and dairy animals is seen by the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriclture, in the increased feed crop this year.

Livestock producers, including dairymen, cattlemen, hog and sheep raisers, say the bureau in its October 1 report on the agricultural situation, are in relatively good shape, with the presumption that livestock prices and the prospective feed situation may stimulate increased production of animals.

Cattlemen already are beginning to enlarge their herds, the bureau reports, but some time is required to produce and raise steers, and to get heifer calves grown into milk cows. Meantime, there is more or less widespread complaint among consumers over the increased price of meat, particularly beef and veal.

"The current meat price situation is inevitable," says the bureau. "For six years, beginning in 1920, the cattle industry was flat on its back, with western cattlemen going bankrupt on all sides and their stock almost without market value. It is doubtful if this country ever witnessed a more acute case of distress in its agricultural industries than this depression in cattle."

MANAGERS OF EXCHANGE ON PARK PROGRAM

The annual fall conference and picnic of Southern California avocado growers will be directed to marketing problems and disposal of the large crop to be harvested this year, according to William McPherson, secretary of the California Avocado Growers' association, under whose auspices the meeting will be held.

The big gathering of avocado growers will be at the Orange County park, October 20. The morning session will start at 10 o'clock. Leigh Crosby, advertising manager of the Calavo Growers' exchange; George Hodgkin, manager, and Joseph Brodkey, a Los Angeles avocado distributor, will be the principal speakers. They will discuss various phases of the marketing and crop situations.

The growers will bring their basket lunches and the association will furnish coffee and cream.

After luncheon, a field tour under the direction of the agricultural extension service will visit avocado plantings of the San Joaquin Fruit company near Irvine. Fertilizer, pruning and variety plots will be examined by the delegation.

All growers are invited to attend.

EXPERT URGES GRAPE MEN TO STUDY MARKET

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 13.—Whether it be grapes, peaches, or prunes, there is no such thing as overproduction of good quality fruit in California.

Such is the belief of Donald V. Conn, "Mussolini of the California grape industry," and managing director of the California Vineyardists' association. Conn, accompanied by Director George H. Hecke, state department of agriculture, discussed the grape situation with Governor Young here this week.

Growers shouldn't begin tearing out their vines and trees until they've attempted to develop the American market and considered the Asiatic and European fields, Conn said. He urged that they follow the example set by orange and lemon growers of this state.

Grape producers, faced with disaster because of a bumper crop and shipping congestion, must work out their problems this year without the aid of a governor's committee, Director Hecke announced after the conference.

"Adjustment of the grape or peach questions cannot be accomplished over night," Hecke said. "It will require much thought and intensive study. By next year, or 1930 at the latest, it is likely that a method of distribution and standardization can be perfected which will provide a steady, profitable market for growers."

The clearing house principle is the most practicable solution of California's perishable fruit problem, Conn insisted. The clearing house will not work unless individual shippers can be compelled to follow out its orders, however.

"The 1929 legislature will be asked to enact five new laws that will provide for extension of standardization, a proper system of licensing all classes of shippers, and put 'teeth' into the clearing house system," Conn declared.

"The whole trouble with grape and tree fruit growers in California is that they haven't been seeing their industries from a large enough viewpoint. If they would do this, they would realize that a program of advertising and trade promotion will result in satisfactory distribution and a steady flow of their products to market."

Uncle Sam Steps In to Stop The Craze to Be Slender

Fake Reducing Remedies Have Robbed Fat Ladies Of So Many Millions That Government Forces Have Been Set To Work To Break Up the Biggest Get-Rich-Quick Racket Put Over in Years

This generously proportioned woman is an exception. . . . Most such ample ladies seeking sveltness are notorious for their loathing of physical exertion.

That school-girl figure. . . . An army of over-plump women consume tons of boxed and bottled hooey yearly in a vain quest for its beauty and comfort.

By ALMA CHESNUT

DAME FASHION is a ruthless goddess. When she turned thumbs down on stylish stouts, she was aware that her edict would cause mental anguish in the ranks of her followers, but, in fairness to her, it is unlikely that she had any idea of working off a grudge on the candy maker, increasing the cares of the federal government, or creating new and fertile opportunities for the get-rich-quick men.

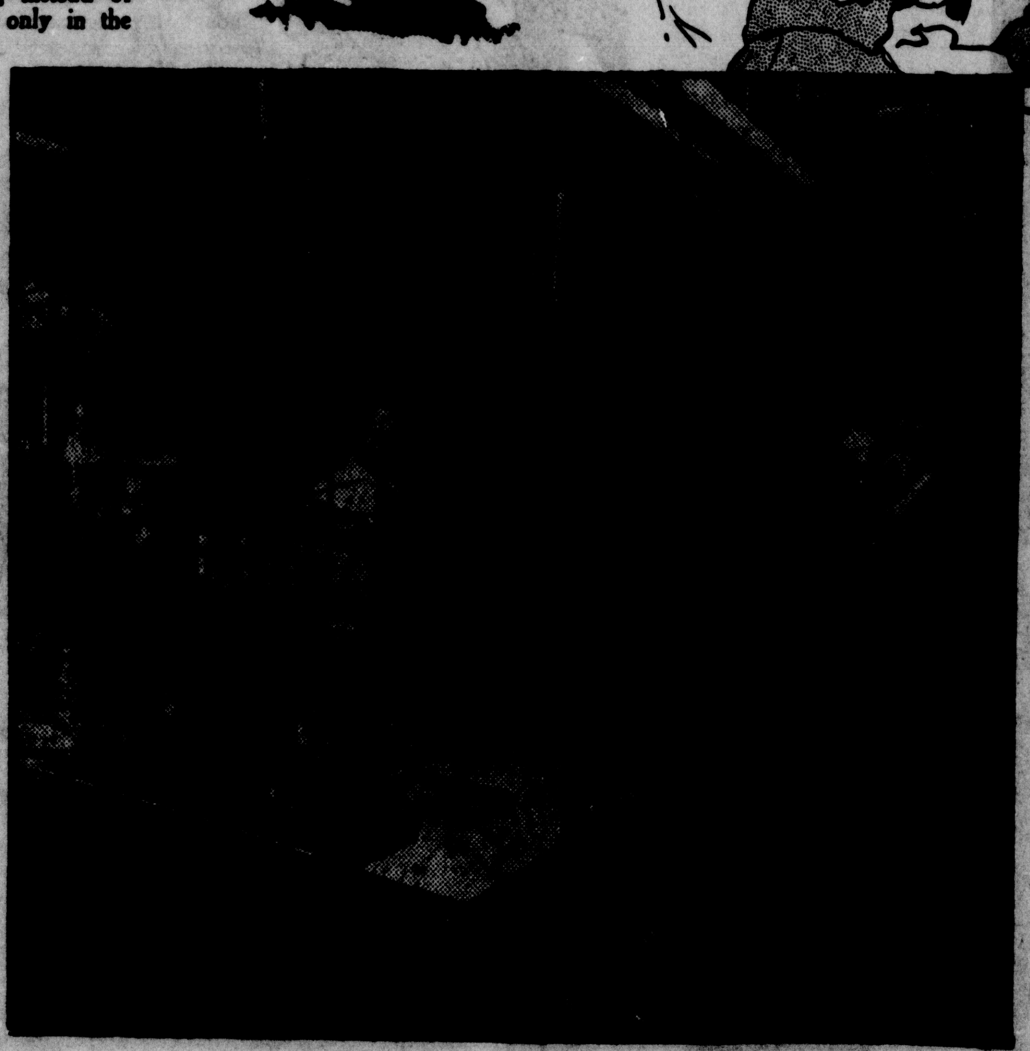
She has done all three. The confectioner complains that women are smoking instead of eating candy, and find consolation only in the fact that the American man, more or less stinted on alcohol, has developed a sweet tooth.

And the get-rich-quick men have made millions since the craze for sylph-like figures started, literally flooding the mails with obesity remedies guaranteed to soak off, rub off or otherwise dispose of excess adipose tissue.

Postal authorities, exercising their right to prevent use of the mails to defraud and, incidentally, seeking to protect from her own gullibility the woman who wishes to reduce without too much effort, is doing battle with the get-rich-quick boys. After a struggle that has lasted for months, both camps admit that, at any rate where stout sisters are concerned, Barnum was right.

Patent medicines under suspicion of fraudulency, are turned over by the postoffice authorities to the Department of Agriculture for chemical analysis in its division of drugs, and, it might be added, all obesity remedies are under suspicion. More than 40 brands have been examined and, to date, not one has been found which combines the virtues of safety and effectiveness.

Some of the remedies are harmless but ineffectual, while others are dangerous to the health, and ineffectual, says Dr. Lyman Frederick Kebler, chief of the division of drugs. Many contain thyroids, he explains, which might work to advantage on certain types of obesity, but should be taken only under the supervision of a competent physician. All contain laxatives and physicians agree that laxatives, persistently taken, can have a damaging effect.



To Uncle Sam all anti-fat remedies are under suspicion. . . . In this laboratory more than 40 brands of reducing concoctions have been analyzed, found lacking effectiveness and safety.

THE labels contain little or no information about the ingredients used and, behind the catchy name, the glowing advertisement and elaborate testimonials, lie a few cents worth of inexpensive home remedies and household products, for which the unsuspecting and optimistic willingly pay from $1 to $10.

Manufacturers of such remedies reap profits ranging from 100 to 300 or 400 per cent, the department states, many quickly attaining the millionaire class. A net profit, per year, of from $50,000 to as much as $500,000 is not at all uncommon.

While the government has been successful in driving a great many "reducers" from the market through the issuance of fraud orders, fighting them is very much like trying to kill a hydra. Two new remedies, it is stated, bob up for each one that is downed.

Fines are ordered when the manufacturer is proved guilty, but the business is so profitable while it lasts that even heavy fines, aggregating thousands of dollars, have not proved a deterrent to others. Sometimes the culprit even nets a jail sentence.

So serious has the situation become that, recently, the Federal Trade Commission announced its intention to join forces with the Postoffice Department in going after "reducers."

A discouraging phase of the situation lies in the attitude of women toward such cures and, indeed, to the whole question of reducing. The fat woman, having spent five or ten dollars for one remedy, only to find it ineffectual, optimistically tries another, often running the gauntlet of five or six before she becomes discouraged.

Her desire to escape the stigma of being called "fat," apparently has rendered her deaf to the warnings of physicians, dumb where suggestive advertisements are concerned, and blind to the example furnished by friends who have suffered breakdowns during the course of too strenuous efforts to reduce.

Even a cursory examination of the newspapers and magazines reveals that the big, vital issue American women are facing today is, apparently, that of attaining or keeping a schoolgirl figure, presidential elections, crime waves and prohibition notwithstanding.

Venus de Milo, after a reign of centuries, is no longer a beauty criterion. Modern woman sniffs at the beautiful Greek and says, "Why, she's hefty!" And even her admirers are forced to admit that, beyond the peradventure of a doubt, Venus, were she to return, would find fashion's loveliest creations a very, very snug fit.

OBESITY remedies which government chemists have subjected to laboratory tests, assume varied forms and are to be administered in intriguing ways. An advertisement portrays a figure divine, arrayed in a bathing suit—they are always in bathing suits—surrounded by handsome admirers. Nearby sits the dismal and undesirable fat lady.

It is too much to expect the overweight to pass this by without seeking to learn how she may revert from the second to the first state.

The "ad" says: "Chew So-and-So's gum and lose a pound a day. No dieting. No exercise."

Stout people notoriously loathe exercise and doing without rich foods and they fall for reducing gum and chew with determination and vigor. Their weight remains the same.

Another ad says: "Use Pine Breeze bath salts. Take hot baths and the fat will melt." Which sounds fine. The stout lady sees the fat fairly floating down the drain on top of the bath water. She buys the bath salts, soaks for an hour or so and mounts the scales, convinced that she has lost at least 10 pounds. She finds that she has lost three. But alas, a few hours later, after eating her dinner, she finds that all she lost has come back.

Hot baths cause a temporary loss of weight, any physician can tell you, bath salts or no bath salts, and the preparation used in this instance had for its basic ingredient Epsom salts, which certainly did not help matters.

There is another advertisement which assures the stout that they can lose a pound a day by taking a certain tablet after meals. The virtues of pretty pink ones during the day, with a brown one at night, are extolled and it all sounds quite plausible and scientific, with the money-back guarantee and the testimonials. A booklet and other advertising data come with the pills. Included are the now-familiar "before" and "after" pictures.

What do fat reducing pills such as these contain? Nux vomica and a laxative, says the analyst, just enough to stir up the digestive apparatus, and, often, thyroid. After taking the tablets regularly for a while, the would-be sylph loses her appetite, becomes nervous and begins to have faint spells, indicating that her heart is misbehaving. Perhaps she finds it necessary to consult a doctor, who tells her that thyroids are just the thing for her not to take. Even with all these troubles, she has not lost weight.

THE lure of a foreign label is just as attractive on a medicine bottle as on a coat or frock, the scientist has found. Descriptions of obesity remedies often hint mysteriously at a great discovery of some distinguished foreign scientist, whose name, for some reason, cannot be divulged.

One says that a famous tea, discovered on the Island of Borneo, will turn the trick . . . send for booklet containing, etc. In a few days along comes the booklet. It is titled, "How I lost 34 pounds in 30 days," and proves to be the story of a famous beauty who, tired of exercising and dieting, went to the Island of Borneo, where an aged servant gave her a mysterious liquid, strange yet pleasant to the taste, which caused her to lose weight rapidly without inconvenience or sacrifice.

Analysis reveals a well-known laxative, incapable of removing surplus flesh, and an imaginative yarn about a beauty who existed only in the imagination of the enterprising promoter.

Just when the would-be sylph is beginning to despair, a new "sure cure" is heralded. This time it is bread. You eat the bread and reduce while you eat, which seems a little odd, but the arguments are convincing. The bread retails at a dollar a loaf and the stout are admonished to eat a slice or two at each meal. The "well-known" fat-reducing qualities of the ingredients are guaranteed to make you feel better and look better, in addition to lopping off the undesired avoirdupois.

The would-be sylph buys the bread, reads all of the literature that comes with it and indulges in her quota regularly. Nothing interesting happens. In due time the bread, too, arrives at the laboratory to be tested. Its one virtue over ordinary bread, reads the verdict, is that it contains a small quantity of agar-agar, which furnishes roughage. To get a medicinal dose of the agar-agar, however, an entire loaf would have to be consumed at one meal.

NEVERTHELESS, scientists and doctors agree that persons who are genuinely overweight should make an effort to reduce and that it is possible for them to do so in a safe and sane fashion, provided they are not too lazy.

At a recent medical conference the fad for reducing was condemned as a "mass phenomenon, resulting from psychic contagion and capable of leading to a nervous breakdown," but the physicians were not putting the seal of their approval upon the excessively fat person.

Fat persons are usually fat because they overeat and do not exercise, is the cold-blooded verdict of another branch of the Department of Agriculture, the Bureau of Home Economics, where studies of nutrition and diet are carried on.

It is a rare day when the Bureau of Home Economics does not receive a query or two about diets for reducing, and this, in substance, is the advice that is given along with a copy of their bulletin, "Good Proportions in the Diet":

"Reducing or keeping the weight down is largely a matter of a low caloric diet and sufficient exercise. The watery and bulky fruits and vegetables, which are low in calories, or fuel value, should predominate if there is a tendency for the individual to store up fat. Foods rich in starch, fat content and protein—the more concentrated foods—should be used sparingly. Since most of our fat is added to the diet, it is fairly easy to plan a diet low in fat content.

"This means cutting down or limiting butter, cream, and dishes prepared from cream, salad oils of all kinds, fat meat, and fried foods. Fruit and vegetables all have a very small proportion of fat and are most useful additions to such diets.

"Where fat is restricted it is wise to use some in the form of butter since butter carries a vitamin which is very essential. It is very important in the selection of food to reduce the body weight that all food requirements of the body be met. Unwise dieting has, in many cases, been very harmful to the general state of health. For this reason, we advise that a physician be consulted before any drastic program of dieting is begun."

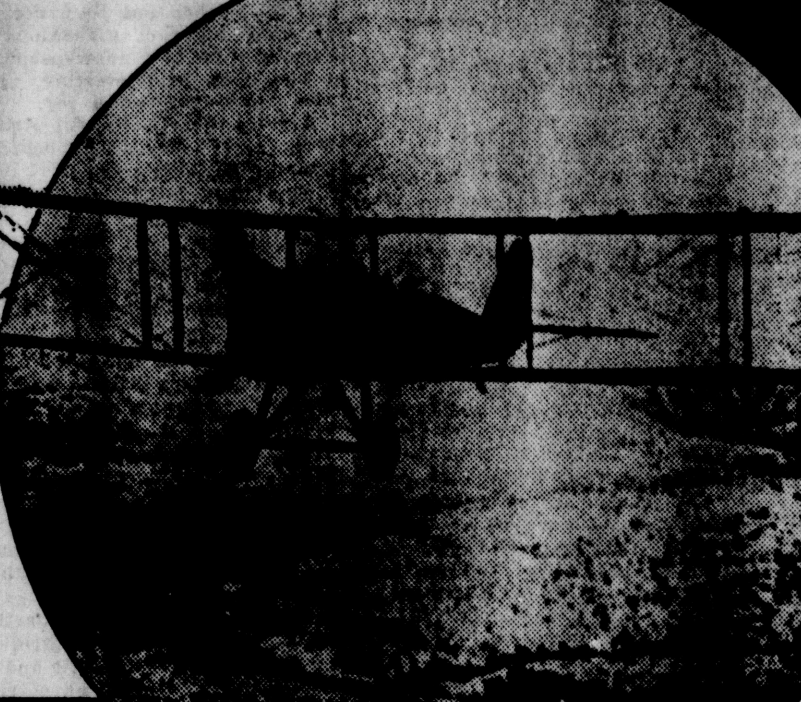
Fighting Forest Fires With Planes

Three Alarm Lads of the Big Woods Used to Depend on Army Aviators For Their Wilderness Patrols . . . But Now They Ride Their Own Ships In Running Down and Combating America's Most Costly Blazes

By JAMES NEVIN MILLER



From a plane an observer can size up a forest fire in a few seconds . . . Left, a U. S. Forest Service plane, the last word in forest fire protection, patroling a stretch of timberland.

HIGH above a blazing fire on one of our great national forests in the northwest, an airplane circled and sped not long ago. For miles around, curling clouds of blue-gray smoke filled the atmosphere, while down on the ground, large squads of fire fighters fought their way through acres of fast-burning timber.

As the plane flew above his head, one of the forest rangers, directing ground operations, paused a fraction of a moment to watch its maneuvers. Almost simultaneously a slight whirring sound caught his ear, and then, crashing through a nearby thicket, he saw a small object fall. It was a canvas bag, and within it was a message.

Knowing that the ground men were severely handicapped by the stifling smoke, the plane observer, likewise a ranger, was now offering to aid the operations. His advice was taken, and soon the fire was well under control.

The above incident is typical of the efficiency of the new airplane patrol system just inaugurated by the U. S. Forest Service. For about nine years the service has been experimenting with planes under the able guidance and co-operation of the Army Air Corps.

Until this summer the planes, old-type de Havilands, were piloted by air corps officers temporarily in the employ of the Forest Service and accompanied by forest officers acting as observers. The main bases were at Mather Field, near Sacramento; at Glendale, near Los Angeles; and at Seattle and Spokane, Washington.

Today, however, the patrol system is entirely free from the co-operative arrangement with the air corps. Early this spring, authorities from the Aeronautics branch of the Commerce Department, the Forest Service and the air corps, unanimously agreed that from now on the wisest procedure would be to hire both planes and pilots from commercial interests. Each forest district hereafter will make its own contracts according to its peculiar needs, and the planes, of the most modern type, will have a considerably better cruising power.

OF the new system, Roy H. Headley, assistant forester of the Forest Service, says: "After years of extensive tests the service is convinced that the science of fighting forest fires from the air has great possibilities. We have been only too glad to work under the kindly supervision of the air corps. But having now served our apprenticeship, we feel ready to paddle our own canoe. Contracting each year with the commercial aircraft people will undoubtedly mean that we shall be better able to take advantage of the very latest aviation developments.

"Of course, the air corps has by no means stepped entirely out of the picture. The body will continue to help us materially in an advisory capacity, as will the aeronautics branch of the Commerce Department. At the start of each season, experts from one or both organizations will inspect planes and pilots and the latter must of course carry the regulation Commerce Department license."

A "blazer" getting underway. . . . High flying forest rangers drop directions from aloft, help men on the ground fight the creeping demon.
(All photos courtesy U. S. Forest Service).

During the early years of experimentation with the air patrol, regular flights were made over our heavily timbered areas. But by 1921 it was declared that "in view of previous experience, desirable as they might be, regular flights are not justified by the degree of protection they afford as compared with that afforded by the lookouts stationed on most of the sizable mountain peaks."

It was, therefore, arranged to have planes at intervals of a few hundred miles held ready for emergency flights. Thereafter, such has been the plan followed up to this summer.

In order really to understand the role of the new air patrol in fire-fighting maneuvers, you need a general idea of the regulation personnel. First of all there are the lookouts. Stationed at strategic points on most of the high mountain peaks, their sole duty is to watch for fires and to telephone their location immediately to the forest rangers or wardens. From daylight to dark, from early summer to early fall, the lookout men remain constantly on duty.

THE lookouts occupy small buildings or observatories with windows on all sides. Some observatories are set on steel towers, 30 to 80 feet above the ground, while others are set on the mountain peaks. Co-operating with the lookouts proper are fire guards or patrolmen who travel along the ridges and other high routes which provide a good view of areas where fires are likely to occur.

Ranger stations likewise are scattered throughout the mountains. The rangers are the executive fire fighters. When the report of a fire is received, the ranger or one of his assistants may go it alone if the blaze is small. But if it is reported as large, a considerable number of men with fire-fighting tools is gathered together and sent to the scene of the blaze as rapidly as possible.

Food supplies sufficient for several days, and other equipment, follow by slower transportation, for the ranger must keep at the fire until it is completely out. He cannot afford to waste time in going back and forth for food, bedding and tools.

From isolated mountain lookouts . . . alert forest rangers can co-operate effectively with airplane observers.

One of the main uses of the plane today relates to the reconnaissance of large fires. In certain portions of our heavily timbered regions it is extremely difficult for the ground men in charge to visualize the situation readily. Again and again the plane has proved its worth in this regard.

A notable instance took place back in 1924 in the great Southern California fire where 50,000 acres of valuable timber land were consumed. The situation was complicated by the reugh topography and the unusually inflammable brush, widespread and thick.

When a violent wind arose, a long stretch of timber soon would become ignited. Oftentimes the boiling, smoke-drenched atmosphere prevented the ground observers from seeing more than a few paces in front of them. So the men in charge tried out the scheme of making daily observations via the plane method. Signal success resulted, so that today the plane reconnaissance method is very much in order.

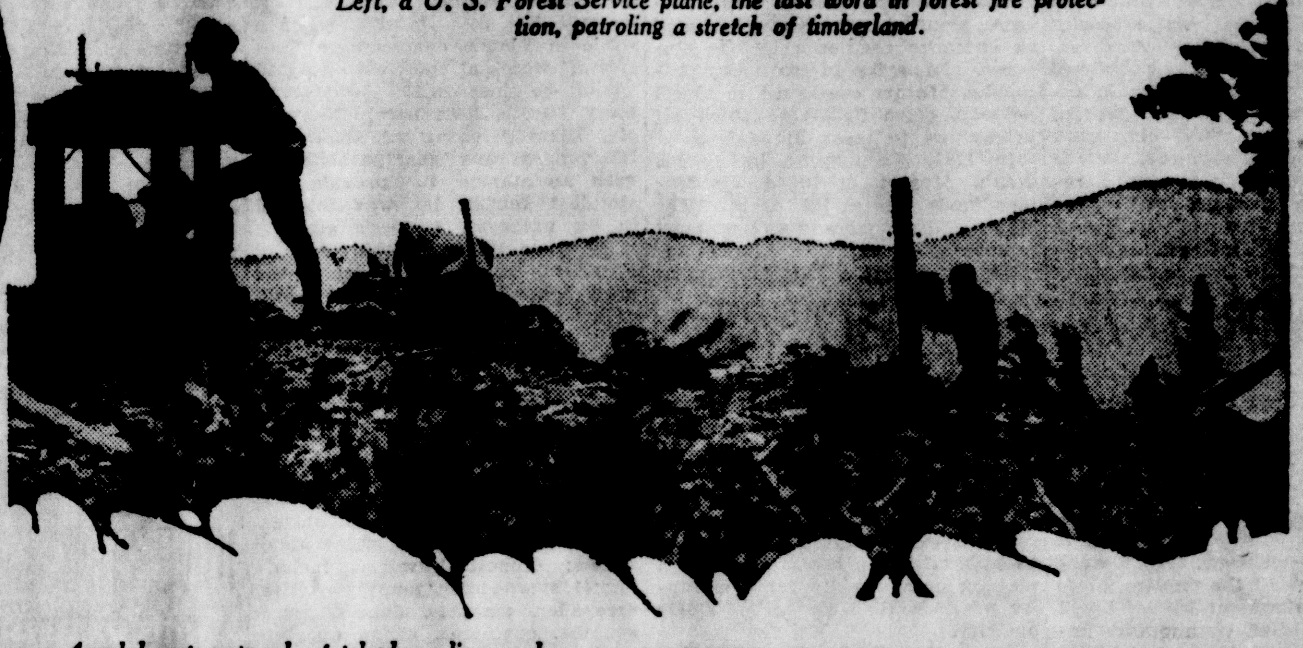
In forests carefully guarded from fires caused by man's carelessness, there exists always the hazard of fires started by lightning. Various estimates hold that 40 to 50 per cent of our great conflagrations arise from this source. At any rate lightning fires are unquestionably the most severe in point of damage done. Experts say the reason is that lightning is likely to start fires in inaccessible spots where it will not be discovered promptly by the lookouts.

Here again the airplane assumes an important role. Under its new system the Forest Service is developing a scheme whereby after every sizable lightning storm a plane will make a complete tour of the district, forever on the alert for smoldering fires which frequently arise in widely separated sections.

CONSIDERABLE experimentation is being done concerning the carrying of messages by plane, besides its use in dropping food and supplies on the fire lines. Here the plane offers excellent potentialities because there are many thickly timbered regions in our national forests which either are virtually inaccessible by land, or take many days to penetrate. Frequently the trails are few and far between, while there are sections where there are no passageways of any description whatsoever.

To force his way painstakingly through these densely wooded districts with a forty-pound pack on his back is the task of the fire-fighter. Therefore, many experts urge the extensive use of the plane in this regard. Yet there is a besetting difficulty in the way, according to Assistant Forester Headley. The government is not yet sure whether in the long run the air transportation system, costing something like $30 an hour, is more economical than the ground method.

Probably it would be so, were there proper landing places for the planes. But today in the mountainous regions of rough topography and dense forests it usually is well nigh impossible to land a plane within a few hundred miles, at the least, of its base.

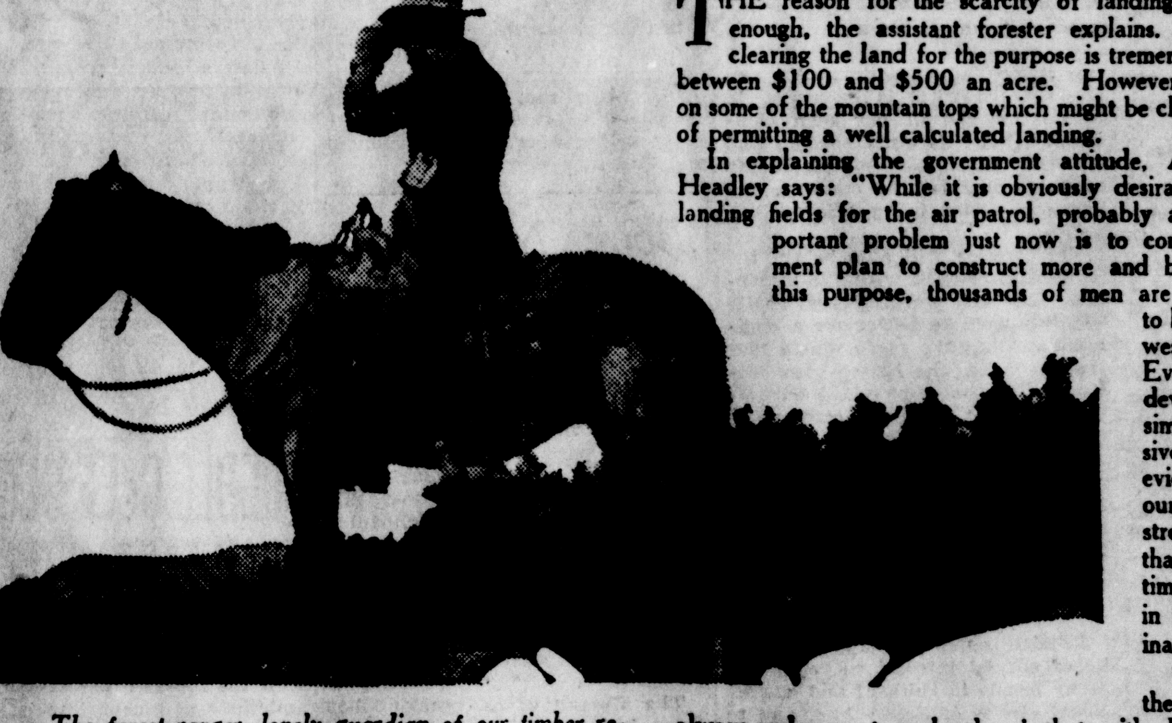


An elaborate network of telephone lines and signal connections . . . helps forest rangers to get fighters quickly to the scene of timberland fires.

THE reason for the scarcity of landing fields is obvious enough, the assistant forester explains. The expense of clearing the land for the purpose is tremendous—somewhere between $100 and $500 an acre. However, there are ridges on some of the mountain tops which might be cleared to the extent of permitting a well calculated landing.

In explaining the government attitude, Assistant Forester Headley says: "While it is obviously desirable to have good landing fields for the air patrol, probably an even more important problem just now is to continue the government plan to construct more and better trails. For this purpose, thousands of men are drafted annually to be employed in the west and northwest. Eventually a well devised network of simple yet inexpensive trails will be in evidence throughout our great timber stretches. We hope that when that happy time arrives, no point in the woods will be inaccessible.

"One other point the Forest Service always endeavors to make clear is that, with all their advantages, planes will never be able to replace the operations of the men on the ground. Air maneuvers are supplementary only. However, the Forest Service always is striving to bring them up to the maximum of efficiency."



The forest ranger, lonely guardian of our timber resources . . . has an able ally in the observer equipped with speeding wings.

THAT it is very essential that the Forest Service take advantage of every effective means of controling forest fires is evident in the recently compiled figures for 1926.

During this year forest fire damage in the United States amounted to $26,900,000.

This gigantic loss was the result of 91,793 fires which burned over 24,300,000 acres of land.

More than 72 per cent of these fires are known to have been caused by man and 12 per cent by lightning. The causes of a little more than 15 per cent are unknown.

Smokers led all others as starters of forest fires with over 16 per cent of the total damage directly attributable to their carelessness. Railroads came next on the list with 13 per cent, and brush burning third with 12 per cent.

Mississippi suffered 23,170 forest fires—more than any other state in the Union. Alabama was next with 14,953 and Georgia was third with 6446. The southeastern states as a group—the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi—had by far the most fires of any section of the country, 54,200.

The west Mississippi states, which include Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas, came next with 10.657 forest fires.

The northeastern states had 6251 fires; the Appalachian states, 4827; the east Mississippi states, 1747; the lake states, 3326; the Rocky Mountain states, 3877, and the Pacific states 6842.

In 1924 the forest fire loss was even greater, 29,000,000 acres of timber being burned with a $38,000,000 loss.

It was estimated at the time the 1924 forest fire figures were announced that the cost of reforesting the burned-over area would cost $300,000,000 and that the work of setting out new trees would take nearly three centuries at the then rate of reforestation in this country.

The Forest Service and other agencies are doing much to educate people to keep down the preventable cause of woods fires, but the foresters—on foot, in the lookout towers and in the air—never relax their vigilance and find plenty to do.

MOZART'S "THE MAGIC FLUTE" PRODUCED SIX MONTHS BEFORE DEATH OF FAMOUS COMPOSER

By Ruth Andrews

Acknowledged one of Music's major divinities through two centuries of musical progress. Mozart instantly challenges the tribute of admiration and wonder ever paid instinctively to genius!

Pre-eminently the brilliant artist, marked with the creative fire Fate lends her chosen few, I like best to think of Mozart as one who lived life vividly, draining it to the last drop of the glass, feverishly crowding within his too brief years prodigious attainments and triumphs lifting him among the Immortaly. Today the darling of court circles, tomorrow driven by poverty to an unknown grave, Mozart's life-story is alike replete with romance and irony!

Born at Salzburg, Austria, January 27, 1756, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart displayed such extraordinary musical precocity that at three years, his father, then court music-master, began his early training. At once the child composed minuets, at six years having composed sonatas and a concerto. As though his talent was heaven-sent, this baby virtuoso played violin and organ intuitively, without instruction.

Making his debut in Munich this same year, the child was taken to Vienna by his father, where he was royally feted, his precocity fascinating court circles. At seven, he concertized in Paris, acclaimed a prodigy by critics, victor in remarkable tests of sight-reading and improvising, publishing four sonatas from Harpsichord.

In London, he was again received with tremendous enthusiasm, playing for royalty, exciting great public interest, composing his first symphony, also six sonatas for violin and harp.

Making his debut as a conductor in 1768, (age 12), his father took him to Italy the following year. His concert performance in Milan, Verona and Florence created frenzied excitement, also in Rome and Naples. Producing an opera, "Mitridate," in Milan with great success that same year, he returned to Paris, producing two new symphonies, highly applauded.

Returning to Germany, Mozart successfully produced an opera "Idomeneo" in Munich in 1781, (aged 25), marking the beginning of his career as a great German master. He married this same year. Due to improvidence and poor management, financial hardships continually dogged his footsteps, and he struggled vainly with debts the remaining 10 years of his life.

Crowding an unbelievable amount of work into his life, possessed with foreboding it would be all too brief, anxiety and ceaseless mental activity now took toll in Mozart's failing health.

In 1786, his comic opera "Figaro," produced in Vienna, was a splendid triumph, bringing Mozart much joy. "Don Juan," produced in Prague in 1787, also a huge success, resulted in his appointment as chamber composer by the emperor. In spite of so many triumphs, Mozart continued in abject poverty, often forced to pawn his belongings to meet his debts.

In 1791, six months before his death, Mozart produced his tremendously successful opera, "The Magic Flute," also his two most famous symphonies. Failing rapidly from overstrain and constant worry, he was fatally stricken while in Vienna composing a "Requiem," which at the time he stated would be his own! He passed away Dec. 5, 1791, barely 35 years old, literally dying of starvation. His funeral was most pathetic, for with no money to provide the simplest burial, he was interred in an unknown pauper's grave.

By some bitterly ironic twist of Fate, this great genius, one of the most brilliant musicians the world of art can ever claim for its own, who during days of good fortune had been welcomed by royalty, was at the end hounded by Poverty to a nameless grave, deserted by friends, his life a vivid contrast of glory and tragedy!

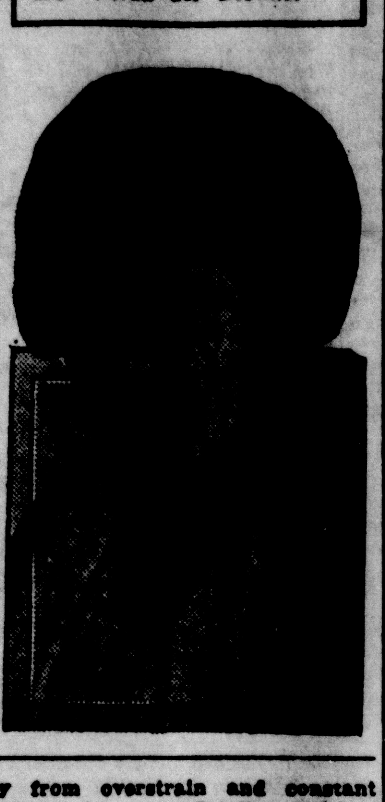
Alike a master of melody and counterpoint, respecting traditions religiously, possessing a marvellous memory, Mozart combined uncanny sense of discrimination with remarkable instinct for instrumentation.

His work exhales tenderness, simplicity, refined charm, childlike freshness, beauty and strength. He made music the vehicle of direct emotional expression, replete with universality, wide range of thought and human sympathy.

IN OPERA DEBUT

Dreda Aves, daughter of a Houston, Tex., clergyman, scored a sensational success the other night in Dresden in her operatic debut. She received a dozen curtain calls after singing in Verdi's "Forza del Destino."



CONGRATULATORY LETTERS

Educator Endorses Music Section

I feel that the new Music Section now appearing weekly in the Santa Ana Register, will aid greatly in stimulating increased musical interest throughout this section, and will look forward to reading it personally every week. It will work in well with what the public schools are trying to accomplish, and will present in a brief, concise way important phases of musical history, current music news, and aid in promoting a cooperative spirit between musicians of the community and the general public.

Much recent emphasis is being placed on the study of music in schools throughout our nation. Where formerly musical interest in America has been low in comparison with European countries, rapid strides are now being made here. One of the most treasured possessions one can have is to be able to appreciate good music, and for young people to early realize this, is a very valuable step toward creation of good citizenship and high ideals of community service.

Musical appreciation should be a big part of everyone's life, since it is both a social and individual asset. Besides broadening and widening an individual's cultural outlook, musical appreciation will refine his personality. It is a quality possible for practically everyone to possess, being developed through training and contact with the best in music, an outgrowth of musical environment and associations. We must make good music popular with growing youth as well as the general public.

The publicity Santa Ana receives from her musical activity will be more valuable than any it can receive in any other way. It will give us publicity as a center of culture, making more rapidly for community progress than any other single activity.

(Signed) J. A. CRANSTON,
City Superintendent of Schools.

Musical Leader Stresses Need for Music Section

The new musical page is what I have been wishing for a long time. It is most appropriate that a newspaper furnish its community with news regarding musical activities throughout the country. We can easily learn what is occurring in musical circles of our own community, but it is quite hard to find out the musical progress being made throughout the country, unless our papers bring this to our notice.

This section will also bring the laymen in contact with the musicians and their work. Educationally nothing could be better for a community, since the more music lovers we make, the better community will we have, provided our efforts are put forth for community development only, and not for personal gain.

(Signed) D. C. CIANFONI,
Director Santa Ana Musical Band and Santa Ana Symphony Orchestra.

Hanson Enthusiastic About New Section

I feel this new Music Section will be of special interest to a great many people in cultural and educational circles of Santa Ana, and to all interested in the community's artistic progress. I feel there is vital necessity for such a section in our paper, to be devoted to artistic pursuits, as an aid to our community's cultural development, as well as an excellent, influential means of promoting greater musical interest among the general public.

(Signed) HARRY L. HANSON,
Pres. and Mgr. S. A. Municipal Band and Pres. S. A. Music Week Committee.

Book Notes . .

Mr. Wyndham Lewis's new novel "The Childermass" which came out on September 8 is in the nature of an immense dream. As is a dream the scenes sometimes rise up with an intense vividness, and then the story will pass into dark and confused passages, as though the sleeper had momentarily lost his way. The second part is scheduled to come out in the spring.

VISEL CONCERT SINGERS PLAN PROGRAM HERE

The Visel Concert singers, a group of talented young people of the community, organized and directed by Holly Lash Visel, will present a program that promises much enjoyment to the audience of the Methodist Episcopal church of Santa Ana, on Sunday, October 14, as a feature of the regular evening church service.

The program will open with two numbers by a trio composed of Messrs. Lawrence Sweeney, Harold Tompkins and Hugh Runnels, who will sing "Just for Today" by Seaver, and "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" by Shelley. Miss Lorene Croddy, soprano soloist of the organization, will follow with a song of her own selection, and a woman's trio composed of the Misses Mary Demaree, Lorene Croddy and Margaret Wells, will sing "How Lovely Are Thy Messengers," by Mendelssohn.

Miss Faye Stinson will present Henry Van Dyke's "The Lost Word" as a reading, after which the Women's Octette will sing Smart's "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "Lift Thine Eyes" by Mendelssohn. The octette is composed of the Misses Mary Demaree, Lorene Croddy, Enid Bowles, Velda Dunham, Helen Gillogly, Lois Dunham, Hazel Filer and Margaret Wells. Earl Lyon will follow with an organ solo and the program will close with an ensemble number, "On Life's Highway" by Bertrand-Brown.

The Visel Concert singers organization is expected to play a prominent part in the musical affairs of the community. Mrs. Visel, its organizer and director, is known not only as a leading teacher of voice and expression, but as one of the foremost directors of the county.

IONE TUNISON PEEK PRESENTS RECITAL

Launching a series of monthly recitals in her home studio at 1612 North Broadway, Santa Ana, Ione Tunison Peek presented a few pupils last Saturday afternoon in informal recital.

After a short explanatory talk upon a few of the necessary requirements of the artistic pianist, and the use of the Visuola as an aid to correct interpretation of phrasing and memorizing, Mrs. Peek introduced Rosemary Blodgett, aged 4, who played three numbers from memory, after having had but four Visuola lessons.

Others appearing on the program were Frances Bergay, Gale Bergay, Mark Stewart, Marjory Tubach, June Blodgett, Frances Bitcher and Mary Louise Budrow.

TREBLE CLEF CLUB IS WELCOMED HERE

It is with great satisfaction we view the recent organization of the ambitious new choral society, "The Treble Clef Club," feeling it will fill a vitally important place in our community's musical life. It is very gratifying to know Santa Ana is now so well equipped with such excellent musical organizations, so thoroughly capable of furthering our local musical progress, and speaking well for an especially active, successful winter season.

By MARY BURKE KING

Masks In A Pageant, by William Allen White, published by The MacMillan Company.

Reading America knows its William Allen White and without doubt there are many who have been impatiently waiting the completing and publishing of this book which is a copious series of news and magazine articles, reporter's "stuff" about men in America's political limelight for the past 40 years. Mr. White has known personally all the presidents of the United States from Harrison to Coolidge and he gives in this book one of his characteristic studies of each. In these sketches is the same keen unbiased analysis of men, the result of careful scrutiny and perception, amounting to clairvoyance, and the good use of words that makes one hundreds of times look about for someone to read excerpts to.

It isn't that the words Mr. White uses strike the reader as being always exactly right, though that is usually the case but that they are so fraught with meaning and pictures: "All my life," the author says at one place, "the two sides of every political proposal have stood giggling before me so that I never could be as bitter as I should be to convince the suggestible."

At another place he says, about Taft, "Figuratively he used to come out upon the front stoop of the White House and quarrel petulantly with the American people every day." It is a temptation to quote too voluminously.

The characters in the pageant presented begin with Richard Croker and Platt and end with, who all people but William Hale Thompson and in the pages in between are paraded Roosevelt and Wilson and Bryan and McKinley and Cleveland. White's rapier thrusts in his analyses are sharp-edged but usually just. One is struck here and there with the cruelty and mercilessness of a certain description and then again, by the author's humanness which at times, however, hurts even more than the harsher criticism.

Unlike H. H. Kolsaats book "From McKinley to Harding" and several others which have come out in the last 10 years similar in kind, newspapermen's experiences with the political figures of all ages, this is not written in the first person and possibly loses slightly in interest thereby. But William Allen White is inimitable.

America has not developed the presidential type yet, says Mr. White. It isn't yet fixed in the minds of the people just what sort of a man they want in the White House. In their vacillations they picked on Warren Harding. "Some day America will realize," says Mr. White, "the tragic drama in which he moved, will realize how wickedly unfair the Republic was to pick that man—weak, unprepared, with no executive talent, and with an unused mind—and pinnacle him in the most powerful place on earth."

In the emergence of Al Smith in the national political arena the author calls our attention to the fact that we see emerging a new type, the city bred type. "There is no reason," he says, "why the back alley cannot produce as good moral, spiritual, mental, and physical timber for politics as the backwoods." The statement is arresting because it is a new idea still to be proved.

"Masks In A Pageant" is dignified. The author holds himself aloof from the recountals of the little things which might tickle the appetite of a too curious public and prove his own intimacy and close contact with the characters about whom he writes. There are intimate touches but they are gentlemanly and not scandalous and certainly not window-peepings.

The book is interesting, profitable, masterful and a joy.

Service Record by An Artillery Man, L. V. Jacks, published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

This book is the service record of the light artillery brigade of the 32nd division, also known as the "Red Arrow" and Wisconsin-Michigan national guard division.

The author explains that the book was written in the intervals between battles on the western front and unpublished until 1928. Written for purposes of personal record, the book is filled with descriptions of scenes and experiences which although done in rather trite and commonplace fashion yet brings to light a picture of a soldier under difficulties quite different from the popular heroic conception.

L. V. Jacks is a horse artillery man. His battery is entitled to a hundred and sixty odd fit and able horses. He should have ridden a horse or gun carriage in his wearisome journeys over France, but instead of the snorting artillery charges so frequently displayed in army posters his battery at one time crawled up beyond the infantry with thirty-two, hungry, lanky, dejected scarecrows that moved the battery guns in relays; with the aid of pushing and howling artillerymen, who fully appreciate that any kind of a horse except a dead one is more valuable to an artillery regiment than a human being.

Horse artillery, unliked the infantry could not be taken up and down the front in motor trucks; it had to hike and the hardships of the hikes are frightful. The brigade's first hike to the front got under way at 9 a. m., and except for rest periods, lasted until 2 a. m. the next morning; then a night of two hours was granted and the battery was under way at 4 a. m. and marched until 8 p. m. when it dropped out to sleep along the roadside and was so worn and wasted as a result of marching with 40 pounds of equipment for 33 out of 35 hours that it could not be gotten up until 10 hours later when it was again under way. Thirty-six per cent of the men dropped from exhaustion to lie where they fell, stumbled or rolled while their buddies held on and struggled forward.

Unlike the infantry, the artillery of the 32nd division did not leave the front lines whenever the infantry of the regiment withdrew but generally stayed to support, for a while, the new troops. So it happens that except for five days the light artillery of 32nd was either in line at the front or marching to new positions from June 9th to November 8 when in the final big push it was unable

IN VIOLIN PLAYING the quality of instruction at the beginning is more important than at any other period. Faulty instruction at this time is a serious handicap to all, but for young children especially unless corrected in time, it is practically ruinous for life.

The teacher must have successful teaching experience, modern and systematic method, thoroughness, patience and an understanding of the temperament of individual pupils to arouse confidence and acquire satisfactory results.

Assistant teachers under direct supervision of Mr. Bear are available at most moderate rates. All pupils under assistant teachers receive periodic lessons from Mr. Bear personally at no additional expense.

WEST COAST-WALKER

With a [illegible] based largely on romantic [illegible], told with his characteristic flair for visual brilliance, Samuel Goldwyn adds still another element, mystery and adventure, in his latest and last co-starring vehicle for Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky.

"Two Lovers," in which Goldwyn's famous team of stars make their final appearance at the Walker theater beginning Wednesday, is an adaptation by Alice D. G. Miller of the celebrated Baroness Orczy novel, "Leatherface."

Ghent in the 16th century furnishes the background for the story of Donna Lenora of Spain and Mark Van Rycke of Flanders.

Completing the series of which "The Dark Angel," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Night of Love" and "The Magic Flame" were former contributions, Mr. Goldwyn has lavished on "Two Lovers" the most ambitious production of his career.

YOST SPURGEON

Santa Ana will welcome its first musical comedy of the season on Sunday, October 21, when "Happy Days," fresh from ten successful weeks in Los Angeles, comes to the Yost Spurgeon theater for two performances.

There are three song-dance-and-comedy stars in this bright new offering. These headliners are Max Dill of the famous team of Kolb and Dill, local favorite for the past 25 years; Richard Carle, famous star and author of "The Tenderfoot," "The Mayor of Tokio," "The Spring Chicken" and "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl;" and May Boley, star of "Hit the Deck," "So Long Letty," and many other hits.

Others in the company of 50 [illegible] in "Queen High;" [illegible] phenomenal new prima donna; Josephine Clark from "Queen High;" Buddy Wattles, a hit in "Hit the Deck," Jack Leigh, English comedian, Ernest Young and Virginia Cleary.

A large chorus of hand-picked beauties appear in "Happy Days," as well as two quartettes of singers. The orchestra is under the direction of Leo Flanders, noted composer of song hits, who wrote the music for "Happy Days," Let's Pretend," "Happy Days," "Listen and Your Heart Will Tell," "The Tampa," and "When the Girlie You Love" are among the hits.

Reservations can be made in advance for this clever and sparkling show. Tickets go on sale Thursday at Yost Broadway.

WEST COAST-WALKER

How a boy crook falls into bad ways, puts over his first "stick-up," graduates into bigger "jobs" and finally accomplishes a "solo," with the inevitable slip in plans, which sends him to prison and brings about his subsequent regeneration is told in "Me, Gangster," a unique type of underworld story coming to the Walker theater for three days beginning tomorrow.

Told in diary form, the picture is frank in the extreme in dealing with underworld angles heretofore overlooked, and following the theory that truth is stranger than fiction. It reveals some interesting details of gangland activities, leaving out murders, machine guns and mock heroic situations often resorted to in this type of picture.

Raoul Walsh directed for Fox from Charles Francis Coe's widely read Saturday Evening Post story. Don Terry and June Collyer have the leads.

For the stage show in conjunction with "Me, Gangster," the Walker theater is offering a selected Fanchon and Marco vaudeville bill featuring little June Clyde, perhaps known as the "I Don't Wanna" girl, who was here some months ago in Will King's revue. Other acts include Rose Glesby, the Three Freehands, Othello, and Eight Sunkist Beauties. By the way, Les is again weilding the baton for the Walker band.

YOST'S BROADWAY

"The Night Bird," Reginald Denny's hilarious comedy feature film will close its run tonight at the Yost Broadway theater, where it has delighted audiences for the past few days.

The picture is the latest starring vehicle of the popular comedian, whose "Good Morning, Judge" and other successes have earned for him, an enviable reputation as the Prince of Comedians. "The Night Bird" is an entirely new story which centers about a prize fighter and his private life and how his manager insists that he indulge in a few night excursions so that the public will like him better and go to see him fight.

Betsy Lee, a new discovery, has the feminine lead and plays it with the grace of a veteran. She is very beautiful. In fact there are three beautiful girls in the cast. The other two are Corliss Palmer and Jocelyn Lee. They add much to the general air of hilarity.

Sam Hardy a nd Harvey Clark put many more gay "kicks" in the picture while George Bookasta, Michael Visaroff and Alphonse Martel are splendid in more serious roles.

WALKER

Lila Lee, famous actress of the stage and screen, has a prominent role in "Just Married," the rollicking comedy co-starring Ruth Taylor and James Hall, and now showing at the Walker theater. Miss Lee has been a leading screen favorite for several years, with many fine portrayals to her credit.

Prior to her advent to film stardom, she was known as "Cuddles" on the stage.

Miss Lee portrays the role of Victoire, a fiery-tempered French girl, whose presence aboard the trans-Atlantic liner is most disconcerting to William Austin, fiancee of Ruth Taylor.

Ruth Taylor and James Hall bid fair to win great popularity. Miss Taylor will be remembered for her role as "Lorelei" in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Hall has already won personal fame with his work opposite Bebe Daniels.

WEST END

Hailed as the most laughable farce of the current season, First National's film version of the famous newspaper comic strip of "Harold Teen" will close its run tonight at the West End theater.

It will be followed by the presentation tomorrow and Monday of a great double bill, Bryant Washburn in "With Sitting Bull at the Spirit Lake Massacre," and "The Cloud Dodger," a masterly air thriller.

In the Bryant Washburn feature, that popular star found that height and carriage are valuable features to a screen player, when he was selected over a host of others to play the role of "Donald Keefe."

The casting director placed one limitation that barred many of the heroes of the screen, i.e., the character must not be [illegible] six feet tall, must be handsome of face and possessed of just enough "he man" characteristics and not too much. When the final selection was made, it was found that Washburn was the ideal type.

Al Wilson plays the lead in "The Cloud Dodger," and is conceded to be the greatest dare-devil ace in filmdom. He has had many narrow escapes during his career as a flyer but none more thrilling than the one he experienced during the filming of "The Cloud Dodger."

He was preparing to make a parachute leap and was climbing through the struts of the plane, when a guest of wind caught an open fold of his parachute and yanked it open. The sudden jerk dragged Wilson through the wires, tearing them away with him and throwing the plane into a tail spin. Both pilot and parachute jumper made safe landings, however, and repeated the stunt until it was done properly. Wilson is supported in this picture by such able players as Gloria Grey, Julia Griffith, Joe O'Brien and Pee Wee Holmes.

YOST'S BROADWAY

Alice White. Just 10 letters that spell also: Pep, vivacity, verve, charm, personality and appeal.

And Alice White has every one of these. She uses them all, moreover, in "Show Girl," her first leading role picture from First National, coming to the Broadway theater tomorrow.

Alice used to be a script girl, and it is now an old story how she had a test made, which she didn't like, but which brought her an interview and later a contract with First National pictures.

In "Show Girl," Miss White heads the cast, takes the bows—also the brickbats—and has full responsibility.

She has a fine supporting cast, with Charles Delaney, Donald Reed, Kate Price, Gwen Lee, James Finlayson, Richard Tucker and others on the list.

She has a brilliant chorus, a magnificent series of settings and a real story—from the book by J. P. McEvoy. It is a sprightly narrative, all about a humble Irish girl in New York who makes good in the night clubs and then in a big revue.

CALIFORNIANS VISIT GRANT'S NATIONAL PARK

Californians showed remarkable loyalty to General Grant National Park during the official year which closed September 30th. There were 33 Californians visited the park to every one person from outsode of the state.

Although every state in the union was represented by the visitors, there were only 1,280 visitors from outside of California against 42,627 visitors hesiding in the state.

In Sequoia National Park records for the year showed there were 59,943 visitors wha were seeing the park for the first time. California has usually furnisher the bulk of the travel with 77,477 registered. It is noted that a large number of park visitors from other states and foreign countries entered the park in cars and stages registered in California, which automatically credits them with being residents of the state.

Complete figures received by the Automobile Club of Southern California of these two favorite parks indicate they retain their wide popularity with the motoring public.

Last Day of 80,000 Extra Vote Offer in Register's $17,000 Prize Campaign

R. D. Crenshaw & Company, Certified Public Accountants, to have charge of auditing returns.

Just a few hours are left before the great 80,000 extra-vote offer in The Register's $17,000 prize campaign comes to a close. Today is the last day on which candidates may turn in new subscriptions and receive at the rate of 80,000 extra votes for every $20 club.

The campaign itself, which is to decide the winners of ten automobiles and sixteen cash awards does not end until October 20. During the next, and last week of the campaign, new subscriptions will be worth less votes than they will be during the period which closes tonight.

Candidates are not limited during the special voting period closing tonight to just one club of $20 worth on new subscriptions. Get two clubs, three clubs or more and the 80,000 extra votes will be given on each club. Regular votes are issued, of course, on each separate subscription comprising the club as usual.

R. D. Crenshaw & Company to Audit Returns

The well-known firm of R. D. CRENSHAW & COMPANY, Certified Public Accountants, located in rooms 314-16 First National Bank Building, Santa Ana, will have charge of auditing the vote returns in the campaign. The following was received yesterday from Mr. R. D. Crenshaw:

Mr. L. K. King,
Business Manager, The Santa Ana Register,
Santa Ana, California.

Dear Sir:

In accordance with your request we are arranging to send our representative to your offic on Monday next to lock and seal the ballot box to be used by candidates for depositing their cash and subscriptions during the final week of The Register's $17,000 prize campaign.

We will have our representative in your offices, the closing night of the campaign, to open the ballot box and begin an audit of the records showing the number of votes cast by the candidates.

Yours very truly,
Signed: R. D. CRENSHAW

Ballot Box Used Last Week

During the last week of the campaign a locked and sealed ballot box will be used for depositing subscriptions and remittances to cover same. Candidates during this last week will deposit their subscriptions and money to cover same in the ballot box and it will not be opened until after the close of the campaign October 20. By using the ballot box, no one will know what each candidate is turning in, not even the campaign manager.. This assures absolute fairness to all.

The list of candidates below shows these nominations received up to [illegible] evening. The list does not necessarily show the actual standing of all [illegible]didates, as only enough votes are published to show who are the [illegible] contestants.

50,000 MILES WIRES USED TO FEED STATION

Fifty thousand miles of telephone and telegraph wire from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast are used every Saturday night in the broadcasting of the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra Hour. Broadcast from WEAF in New York, the key station of the National Broadcasting system, the music of the Lucky Strike Dance orchestra goes out to the entire country from 39 powerful stations dotting the whole United States.

In addition to the 35 musicians comprising the orchestra itself and the main station staff of some hundred and fifty persons, a small technical army of over 300 experts is on duty handling the broadcast at various points throughout the country. These include special repeater attendants, test board men, and telephone and telegraph operators and engineers. This does not include the large fore of alert linemen who are kept in readiness for action at the first indication of trouble along the 39,000 miles of telephone wire and 11,000 miles of telegraph line essential to the Lucky Strike broadcast.

As the Lucky Strike Dance orchestra strains reach the microphone in the N. B. C. studio at 711 Fifth avenue, New York, they pass over a telephone wire to the downtown headquarters of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. From this point a web of telephone and telegraph circuits spreads out fanwise carrying the Lucky Strike music to the various nation-spread stations which in turn rely the program millions of receiving sets from he Atlantic to the Pacific.

Until the inauguration of the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra hour, no regular weekly radio hour had ever reached such an audience. Now, under the American Tobacco company's arrangement with the National Broadcasting company, the Lucky Strike orchestra playing in the studio of WEAF is heard each Saturday evening in New York and San Francisco simultaneously, although there is a four hour difference in clock time. From WEAF the music is given by telephone wire to Chicago, and telegraphic messages from all stations on the network keep the sending studio advised of its reception. At Chicago the program is relayed by wire to Denver, from there to Salt Lake City and to every station on the Pacific chain. Thus the entire nation is enabled to dance to the Lucky Strike Dance orchestra music every Saturday night.

One morning recently a providence, R. I., subscriber picked up his telephone and, within a short time, carried on seperate conversations with London, Brussels, Paris, Rotterdam, New York and Chicago.

LODGE ACTIVITIES

SARAH ROUNDS TENT REPORTS SOCIAL PLANS

Plans for a social tea to be presented by Sarah A. Rounds Tent No. 10, Daughters of Union Veterans, were completed at the recent meeting of that patriotic order in Knights of Pythias hall. The tea will be held Friday afternoon, October 19, in the home of Mrs. Cood Adams, Glenn avenue, Tustin, with members of both September and October committees as hostesses.

Other matters of interest that came up at the recent session, were the initiation of a new member, Mrs. Hope D. Hodgman, and the honoring of another member who is leaving Santa Ana for Arizona, Mrs. Olive Baird. Mrs. Baird was escorted by the guide, Mrs. Lulu Davis, to a place of honor to the right of the president, Mrs. Edith Ward Moore, who presented her with a handsome linen set from the members of the tent. The gift was accompanied by the tent's good wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Baird in their new home. The members all expressed their regret at losing Mrs. Baird who has been active in the order for a long time.

The visiting committee reported 30 calls made on sick members, and the floral committee announced that 13 bouquets had been sent out.

Of special interest was the statement that Ward 13 of the Union Veterans of the Civil war at the National Soldiers' home, Sawtelle, had been assigned to the Sarah A. Rounds tent for supervision and care. A year's subscription to a club of magazines was selected as a suitable gift.

As the final interesting feature of the day, Mrs. Nellie Parker, delegate to the National G. A. R. encampment at Denver, gave a wonderful report of the sessions and her experiences in the Colorado city.

ORDER OFFERS RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY

Two of the recently installed officers of the Pythian Sisters temple were present to assume their duties at this week's meeting of the order in Knights of Pythias hall. The two new officers were Mrs. J. E. Clifton, protector, and Mrs. Hasel Perkins, guard. Mrs. E. E. Frisby is commanding officer of the order.

Approximately half a hundred members were out for the session, which had for one of its chief features, the drafting of a memorial to A. D. Bishop, valued member of the order recently called by death. The charter was draped in black as an indication of the chapter's grief, and the following resolution adopted:

"Whereas, our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom and mercy, has seen fit to call our beloved brother, Amos D. Bishop, home,

"Be it resolved, that we, the members of Santa Ana Temple No. 115, Pythian Sisters, extend to our bereaved sister and family, our heart-felt sympathy, and commend them to the care of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all thing well.

"We know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
We only know, we cannot drift
Beyond his love and care."

"Be it further resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, also a copy be sent to the local papers, one to the Pythian Sister Tidings, and a copy be spread upon the records of the Temple.

"Fraternally submitted in P. L. E. and F.
"EDNA BELFORD CLEMENS,
"MARGARET CULVER,
"EMMA COCHEMS."

At the conclusion of the business session, the Pythian Sisters were entertained in the banquet room by the Calanthe club of the organization, whose members served sandwiches and coffee.

A delightful bridge party was held Tuesday afternoon by the White Shrine Bridge circle at the lovely home of Mrs. Mary Matthews on East Fourth street. Gorgeous autumn flowers and [illegible] adorned the rooms and later the [illegible] tables, when a dainty tea menu was served, after a short business session.

Seven tables were required for bridge, at which the circle members spent a happy afternoon. Mrs. [illegible] Cook scored high and Mrs. Harry Roberts, second, [illegible] received a lovely bon-bon dish.

Dept. Inspector To Attend Meet

A varied program is anticipated by members of Calumpit auxiliary, U. S. W. V., at their meeting next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in Knights of Pythias hall, for in addition to the initiation of several new members, there will be the annual inspection of the order, by Mrs. Betty Bassett, department inspector.

Mrs. Bassett will arrive in the city Tuesday from her home in San Luis Obispo, and will conduct inspection the same evening. Mrs. Bertha E. Dixon, presiding officer of the auxiliary, has elaborate plans under way for entertainment of the department officer.

TOROSAS HOLD BUSY SESSION IN LODGE ROOM

Torosa Rebekah members and their noble grand, Mrs. Jessie Dawson, held an interesting and valuable session in the I. O. O. F. hall Wednesday evening, when they entertained their district deputy, Mrs. Mamie Walker and their district marshal, Miss Elizabeth Andrews, of Huntington Beach.

Special places of honor for the attendant ceremonies, were accorded Mrs. Amelia Prather, warden of the Rebekah assembly; Mrs. Fannie M. Lavy, past president of the assembly, and Herbert Allen, district deputy grand master, all of whom were seated on the platform at the right of the noble grand.

The evening closed with a social hour during which refreshments were served in the banquet hall to the large crowd gathered for the event.

Among plans for the future announced at the meeting, was the next Torosa Rebekah night on October 24, when Uncle Remus of radio fans, will be a guest of honor and will present the entertainment. His program will be given under the direction of the Past Noble Grands' association. Informal dancing will conclude the evening for the Rebekahs and their friends.

November 14 was announced as the date for the official visit of Mrs. Carrie Hutchings, president of the Rebekah assembly. Special features will mark that evening's program, and will include floor work by the staff, who have been asked to reserve four practice dates, October 22, November 2, 6 and 13, in which to prepare for the affair.

AMBER CIRCLE WELCOMED TO DOBSON HOME

Four hostesses joined Thursday afternoon in entertaining the Amber circle, that pleasant social organization of Hermosa chapter, Order of Eastern Star, which met in the home of Mrs. George H. Dobson, 1069 West Fifth street. Teh four were Mrs. Dobson, Mrs. L. L. Whitson, Mrs. Alice Tubbs and Mrs. Cassius Paul, and their hospitality was expressed in the most charming arrangement of dahlias with quantities of feathery cosmos.

Half a dozen tables were called into play for bridge, while others of the 35 or more guests present, turned their attention to needlework and lively chat. Mrs. Thomas Brooks scored high among the card players and received an attractive prize offered by the hostess quartet, while among the needleworkers, Mrs. Hoyt, of Orange, was the fortunate one.

One out-of-town guest was present, Mrs. Reifsteck, houseguest of Mrs. S. A. Jones. As the afternoon drew to a close, the hostesses served an enjoyable tea menu.

MANY PRESENT AT RELIEF CORPS MEET

The Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps meeting on October 10 in K. P. hall was well filled with business, as five new members were taken in and one new application read. The following names were accepted: Letitia Matthews, Meta Caldwell, Mary B. Nelson, Frances Fuller, and one by transfer from Oregon, Minnie Curry. There was a good attendance of officers, members, visitors and comrades, 45 in all.

The inspector will be present next meeting on October 24 and the corps hopes to have a good attendance then. Any planning on having dinner at noon with the inspector are asked to notify Viola Figgs so she can make reservations.

Seventy-eight calls on sick and shut-ins were made and 15 bouquets presented. Members and friends are asked to remember the date of the bazaar on October 27, the location to be announced later.

Book Reviews

to go forward. "Out of 1700 men of the 119 F. A. 1000 remained, 700 of whom were replacements. Of 1459 horses, 300 remained, so weak, sick and stunned they seemed about to die. Every man in rags, gaunt, famished and exhausted; too tired even to move to the rear." The signing of the armistice brings to these exhausted men only a dull sense that maybe it is true, but no joy or sorrow—the hardships of existence had ground them to automatons.

The book abounds with acts of heroism and stoicism under fire. Those who imagine that the artillery is always far back will be surprised to learn that on numerous occasions its own machine gunners were its only defenders, and on one occasion at least it found itself leading the advance to be horribly shot up for its aggressiveness. The manner in which the division artillery was handled has frequently been the subject of discussion in army circles and is generally acknowledge as extremely bold and effective. To this soldier in the ranks it was, however, a matter of replacing battery mates and companions and the thought of replacing the dead of a single gun crew four times in a day provokes a different picture to the companion of these men than it does to the higher command.

The author does his best to describe aerial combats, artillery barrages, infantry attacks, enemy bombardments, scenes of troops in movements along the front, the appalling devastation of newly won battle fields, scenes of the death and wounded, and those battle grounds over which the opposing armies fought for four years along certain portions of the front finally so over-run with rats grown fat and bold on human and animal carcases they attacked even the living.

There is much of stoic heroism in this book but it is above all else just war, from the standpoint of one of those many often unnamed and unknown who do the actual fighting.

Love, by William Lyon Phelps published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

Professor Phelps, who is Lampson Professor of English Literature at Yale University, has written a charming little inspirational volume "Love." It is a companion to another on "Happiness." This one is only forty-six small pages. The author does not write of love sentimentally but with a clear understanding of its beauty; its power; its benefits, its true function in our lives.

"If we have love in the heart," he says, "sincere, unalloyed affection for others, free from hatred or jealousy, without a shade of resentment, then we know we are Christians . . . One cannot become a good critic of music unless one loves music; one will never understand men and women unless one begins by loving them."

Involvements of theology and elaborate tenates of belief are sloughed off as one reads this book. It is refreshing and invigorating—a gospel in itself.

Daughters of India, by Margaret Wilson, published by Harper & Brothers.

This is the story of Davida Baillie, American missionary of India. It is a presentation of the forces of Indian culture, missionary zeal, and Davida's exuberant spirit working themselves out within her, and her observance of the missionary conscience in contact with Indian people.

Unfortunately the authoress has not been won by the Indian people. In her picture they are slothful, deceitful, dirty, mean, sexual. She shares Katherine Mayo's feeling toward India, judging solely from this book. At one place Davida yearns for America where the men are chasing clean American dollars instead of women as they do in India.

Miss Wilson's theme and the characters take precedence over the plot.

Davida's missionary superior is forced to compromise with his conscience and betray the confidence of the people he is serving. Though he brings about the capture of a gang of kidnapers he suffers terribly because of an anguished conscience. It is a sad story in which fate conspires to overthrow years of missionary labor.

SCIOTS ORDER INSTALLS ITS NEW OFFICERS

Santa Ana Pyramid No. 41, Ancient Egyptian Order of Sciots, installed officers for the ensuing year, at the regular meeting in the K. of P. hall, Thursday night, October 11.

Past Toparch Charles P. Hale, of Long Beach, acted as master of ceremonies, and Past Toparch A. H. Gritton, acted as installing officer. The installation services were very impressive.

The program following the service included very delightful solos by Maurice Phillips and Lloyd E. Roach, accompanied by Harry Garstang, and short but pointed talks on Sciotry by Past Toparch Hale and "Jack" Hatter.

The Lybian guard, in full uniform, acted as escort and also demonstrated some of the fancy drill work, receiving much applause. Past Toparch A. H. Gritton was presented with a life membership in the organization and a gold card typifying same, together with a past toparch jewel.

After the close of the evening's program all repaired to the banquet hall for refreshments, where the wives of some of the officers delightfully surprised the Sciots with brick ice cream, home-made cakes and coffee. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers.

Schipa to Open L. A. Harmonic Course

Tito Schipa, noted Italian tenor, opens the Philharmonic Artists series next Thursday, October 18, which L. E. Behymer is presenting at L. A. Philharmonic Auditorium during an active winter season. Schipa, a great public favorite, is noted alike for superb voice, perfect art, and heart appeal marking his [illegible]. Critics say that his art "reaches across the footlights, captivates, and sings itself into people's hearts."

This marks Schipa's seventh season in the United States, where he has scored great success with the Chicago Grand Opera Co., in New York, and on many concert tours. He is enthusiastic about musical possibilities of the West, and the excellent talent developing here, which he feels will make [illegible] future material for opera and concert.

He points out that many internationally known artists have recently established homes in Southern California, predicting a vivid future for this section as a music center.
